Preface—

The Slav community of Watsonville has quite an interesting story to tell—if only the story can be found. This book is an attempt to provide some of that information. It is a reference book and a guide, compiled for historians and genealogists who would often be at a loss to know where to find such information on their own.

I first came to Watsonville in 2002 after having spent three years researching the history of my mother's Croatian family, both here and in Croatia. In my retirement I was looking for a project that would involve a Slavic community. I didn't want to write the history of a community; I just wanted to collect the information.

I knew that someone would come along some day and use such information to write a proper history or genealogy, or perhaps produce a documentary film. It might be next week or a hundred years from now. It didn't matter. I knew that if the material could be found, something good would come of it.

I also knew from the experience of researching my mother's family history that 90% of the effort (to produce a book, for example) goes into gathering the material. I also knew that many people with good intentions have given up on book or film projects once they have come to this realization.

Having chosen Watsonville for my project, I started by collecting all the old photos I could find of the pioneer Slav families. I was very lucky early on to come across the photo collection of Mary Scurich Farris. Her grandfather, Luke Scurich, was one of the earliest Slav pioneers to Watsonville. She very graciously let me scan much of her collection, which amounted to nearly 500 photos. (Thank goodness that families years ago gave photos to each other like we exchange Christmas cards.)

Mary named as many people in the photos as she could. But there were still many "unidentified" people. I then took these around to other older Croatians to see if they could name who were in the photos. Many could or they would send me to other people. About this time I also started a database of Watsonville Slavs using a genealogy program (which made it easier to keep track of relationships). Slowly I was starting to learn who these people were, and getting to know some of the current Slav families in Watsonville at the same time. The faces in the photos were starting to become old friends. My database got up over 9200 people (including many generations, some back to the old country, some of these into the 1700s).

I then gathered other sources, such as census records, WWI draft records, naturalization records, voting records, cemetery records, Ellis Island records, marriage records, birth and death records on-line, etc.

And then I learned of the newspaper microfilms. It didn't take long to figure out that about 80% of the available history of the Slav community in Watsonville was in those newspapers. (Watsonville is very lucky, indeed, to have microfilms of local newspapers from 1868 to 2009, with very few issues missing.) These microfilms, however, had never been indexed, which meant that they had to be read line by line. And so I started in...

It is truly tedious to read newspapers on microfilm machines. Often they are too dark or too light. Many are scratched. But after about two years I made it up to 1905 (I could only do it for about 3 hours a day, every other day or so, without burning out). But I finally did burn out. At that point (to 1905) I had collected over 1200 excerpts from the microfilmed newspapers. It was a good, basic collection. It covered the very early years of the Slavs in Watsonville. But I simply could not continue with that type of research.

At that point I approached the directors of the Borina Foundation and they provided the funds to hire professional researchers and transcribers to continue to 1920. Having once been in the publishing profession, I provided the editing, book design and indexing. And that's how this book came to be.

As I said, it's a reference book. It contains no narrative. However, it will provide a very sturdy foundation for future historians and genealogists. And that is its main purpose.

Introduction—

Beginning about the 1830s the young men of the Eastern Adriatic, in what is today Croatia but then was part of Austria, found themselves increasingly able to earn money outside of their country. Previously a few men had hired out as seamen along the Adriatic and in the Mediterranean, but now other jobs were becoming available. In the 1860s in Egypt, thousands of young men from the Mediterranean region were hired to work on the Suez Canal. And there was fishing, oystering, mining, railroad work, fruit harvesting, cooking, as well as the usual seaman's work opening up all over the world—Australia, New Zealand, Chile, Argentina, Peru, South Africa. And many of them headed for America, in particular for California.

The first Slavs came during the Gold Rush and by 1880 there were thousands of them in California, mostly in the Mother Lode region, working in the mines. These were uneducated men; most were illiterate. However they were earning about five times what they could earn back home. Many of them saved up and returned home with large bankrolls. Others saved up and remained in California.

Then the next generation immigrated, and some of these were a little more educated because their fathers and uncles had earned enough while abroad to pay the local priests to teach their sons and nephews to read and write. (State-run schools did not exist in Dalmatia until the late 1800s.) And so this new, more educated generation had the experience and some of the financial backing of the previous generation to serve them.

In San Francisco a few of this generation began brokering fruit—importing and exporting all over the Pacific—Hawaii, Mexico and Central America. Luke Sresovich, in particular, was quite innovative (for example: drying and distributing coconut meat) and had quite a few irons in the fire regarding the fruit industry. He was based in San Francisco and traveled all over the Bay Area and beyond finding produce to buy directly from the farmers. He also had commission men buying for him.

In the early to late 1880s there arrived in Watsonville a few Slavs who probably had worked for Sresovich, and had certainly witnessed his success and methods. Sresovich and Marco Rabasa are mentioned in this book many times as the fruit brokering pioneers in the Pajaro Valley. And they were. But Sresovich never lived here and Rabasa lived here only for a few years in the mid-1890s. However others came and stayed, such as Luke Scurich and his siblings; M. N. Lettunich and his brothers; Mateo Lettunich and his nephews and niece; Filip Marinovich; the Opusichs; John Miovich; Luke Cikuth; the Rilovich brothers; the Stolich brothers; the Alaga family; and the Secondo family. Interestingly, all of these people were born in a region of (then) Austria called Konavle (today it's the southern-most tip of Croatia). Luke Scurich, M. N. Lettunich and Filip Marinovich were all born in Konavle in the same year (1864) within three miles of each other. Slavs from other regions came too. But almost all of them were from the southern Dalmatian coast (see the Map appendix) or from the inland regions a few miles of the coast.

From the island of Mljet (an Adriatic island that can be seen from Konavle, off the coast) came the hoteliers, restaurateurs, saloonmen—Strazicich, Belin, Dabelich, Cumbelich, Sersen. From the regions immediately surrounding Dubrovnik (Pelješac, Župa, Primorje) came Puhiera, Milanovich, Ivanovich, Biskup, Banovac, Zadielovich, Pulisevich, Borina, Knego, Colendich, Gera. From the island of Brač came Gospodnetich, Hrepich, Matulich, Kusanovich. And these were just the early ones; hundreds more came later.

Of course, this is not the usual sequence of immigrant influx into a community. More often the laborers came first by many years. However, in Watsonville the business men and the laborers arrived at about the same time, one helping the other.

In general the Slavs did well in Watsonville, their Golden Age being from around 1900 to the beginning of WWI. However, as you will see in these pages, there were many setbacks and tragedies; many bankruptcies; packing houses and homes burning; deaths of children; deaths of mothers or fathers before their time.

And there were good times too. Like when Luke Scurich returned from his first visit to the old country in 1901 and brought back with him more than 25 immigrants from Konavle. Or when the Alaga Brothers won the Sweepstakes prize three years in a row at the Apple Annuals of 1910-12. Or when over 2000 people attended the Slav picnic at Port Watsonville in May of 1911. Or when half-Slav and Croatian-speaking George W. Smith became a lawyer in Watsonville in January of 1909, and was elected district attorney of Santa Cruz County in 1914. Or when Yugoslavia was formed out of the tragedy of World War I and everyone was so proud.

So many stories. But very few were written down. The "mentions" in the local newspapers are, by far, the best source of information on these people. Through these we can learn how they were treated, what was important to them, how they treated others, their successes and failures—in general, how they lived. This is their story as told through the newspapers of the time.

Definition of “Slav”—

The term “Slav,” as used in this book and in its title, refers to the Croats and Serbs who immigrated to Watsonville, Calif. Croats and Serbs are only two of many types of Slavs in the world but no other types were found in Watsonville in the days before 1920.

Newspapers—

The newspaper excerpts in this book came mostly from two Watsonville newspapers, the Pajaronian (weekly) and the Evening Pajaronian (daily). Every page of these newspapers was looked through by the researchers (on microfilm). Everything that was found is included here—nothing was intentionally left out. However, each excerpt was edited to include only Slav material. The omissions are indicated by ellipses [...].

CHAPTER I —

PRE-1900

[These first two entries have nothing to do with Slavs but they may be of interest to local readers. There are many such entries in this book—put there to set the scene.]

Paj; 19 Mar 1868; item: “Produce is shipped from different points on the coast, from the Salinas Slough, upper landing, about 2 miles from town by steamer Salinas. Freight $5 per ton. From other landings on the coast, accessible at all times by teams, produce is shipped in sailing vessels to San Francisco at $5 per ton. Vessels can only come to the landing in good weather, during rough or stormy seasons it is an impossibility to ship freight of any kind.

“The population of the valley is estimated at about 7,000. Good schools are established and kept up in nearly every district. In the town of Watsonville is to be found one of the best schoolhouses in the State...

“There are four churches in this place, the Presbyterian, Methodist, Catholic and Mormon. The Baptists have a pastor but no regular church organization. The Masons and Odd Fellows are well represented and a Dashaway Society has recently been formed, which will counteract in a measure the influence of the 20 or 30 places where liquor is sold...

“The county appropriated $300...for the purpose of building a Calaboose at this place—a worthy and very charitable movement we think, for if it is not charity to put drunken men in a dry place to sober off, instead of half drowning them under a hydrant, we don’t know what is. These midnight and daytime songsters, who warble their obscene and profane notes in our streets from time to time, will have ample opportunity in the sweet quietude of the Calaboose to learn new songs.”

SC Sent; 5 Oct 1878; item: “Santa Cruz Years Ago. A correspondent of the Alta writing from Watsonville, Santa Cruz county, says: ‘We recently came in contact with a native who was born at Santa Cruz in 1822. For years he lived there, and his memory of events occurring in this section is remarkable. He says on one occasion, about 1834, he passed with his father through this valley, and the present site of Watsonville. At that time it was nothing but a vast plain—not the vestige of an habitation anywhere. As they were crossing the Pajaro river, he says hundreds and hundreds of antelopes galloped past them. The country at that time, with the exception of the Missions...was devoid of the rudest hut...This native’s father subsequently owned the whole Pajaro valley, but as with most all natives, through the advent of the Americans, he either sold or transferred for little or nothing, his interests. The Blackburn orchard at Santa Cruz, he says his father sold to Judge Blackburn, the first Alcalde, for $300, one hundred and fifty in coin and the balance in trade. The same place is now worth about $100,000.’”

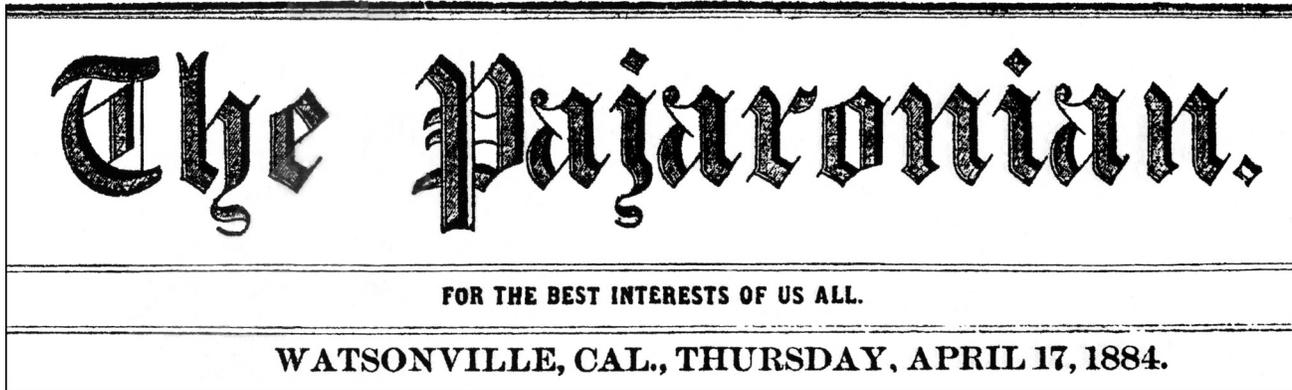

Fig. 1-2. A banner from an early Watsonville newspaper. Watsonville newspapers from 1868 to present are available to the public on microfilm. Without this unique resource most of the Slavic immigrant history to Pajaro Valley would be lost.

[Here is the first article we found with mention of a Slav. Marco Rabasa came from the Pelješac peninsula.]

Paj; 22 Sep 1881; article: “The Adaptability of Pajaro Valley as a Fruit Growing District. One day last week, in company with J. A. Blackburn, we visited his large orchard, situated in the eastern part of town. His orchard is principally composed of apple trees, though he has a large quantity of cherry, peach, prune and other trees, and also has a large strawberry tract. The apple orchard occupies 8 acres of ground, all of which are of standard varieties, the larger portion being what is known as winter apples. The apple crop is sold to Marco Robassi [sic Rabasa], of San Jose, who has a force of men in the orchard picking, boxing and shipping the apples. From here the apples are shipped to San Francisco, then either sold in that market or shipped to Mexico, Arizona or the Pacific islands. For his apple crop (and it is only an average crop)...Mr. Blackburn received $100 per acre, and is to no expense for picking, boxing or shipping. All he had to do was cultivate the ground in the orchard and attend to necessary trimming. Counting 600 trees...and $800 for the crop, yield per tree is worth $1.25, and all this with no expense to speak of. The price paid for the crop is good interest on the land even if we place a value on the land of $1000 per acre...”

Paj; 20 Oct 1881; item: “M. S. Lopes is boxing apples in wholesale fashion in a barn on lower Main street. Large shipments of apples are made and will be made from here this year. Apples, particularly standard varieties, are commanding good prices. Some of our orchardists have been shipping their apples direct to Arizona.” [Lopes and Rabasa were partners in many business ventures early on. Lopes was local; Rabasa was not, at first.]

Paj; 6 Apr 1882; item: “Several San Jose fruit buyers have made this valley their base of operations for nearly a year and so effectually did they get control of the apple crop last season that apples are now but seldom seen in the local markets.” [probably refers to Sresovich and Rabasa, among others]

Paj; 24 Aug 1882; item: “L. G. Sresovich & Co., of San Jose, are buying up large quantities of apples in this valley... They box the fruit and ship it to San Jose and San Francisco. They are shipping about a carload daily.”

Paj; 16 Nov 1882; item: “The Great Register of this county, as far as the nativity of the foreign voters goes, is divided up as follows: England, 91; Ireland, 249... Australia, 6...Germany, 139...Austria, 3; Denmark, 46...Portugal, 23; Azores Islands, 35...Mexico, 12... Italy, 29...—Sentinel.” [The Great Register is a register of eligible voters. All Croatians and many Serbs were citizens of Austria in those days. Above shows only 3 naturalized Austrians living in Santa Cruz Co. in 1882, and those were in the town of Santa Cruz.]

Paj; 4 Jan 1883; item: “One of the reasons why Santa Cruz mountain land, aside from its acknowledged richness of soil, is so well adapted to the cultivation of the hardier fruits, is that a dry season is never known in those hills or mountains. When we have but 12 or 13 inches of rain in a season between 30 and 40 inches will fall in the hills back of and near Corralitos. A dry season is unknown on those hills...[I]rrigation is not required, and fruit trees of the hardier families grow rapidly and bear largely. Apples, prunes and peaches especially thrive well on those hill lands...”

Paj; 26 Jul 1883; item: “Apple men feel confident of good prices this year. Mr. Robassi [Rabasa], who has been buying Pajaro valley orchards for several years, has most of the year’s apple crop bought up.”

[ALL = Advertised Letter List; also see Fig. A-1]

Paj; 16 Aug 1883; ALL: Giovanni Bussuvich.

Paj; 31 Jan 1884, item: "The Carr field, lately owned by D. Tuttle, has been purchased by M. S. Lopes and M. Robassi [Rabasa]. We are informed that they intend planting it in fruit trees. Mr. Robassi is the pioneer in the wholesale exporting of apples from this valley, and we hope he will make a success of his new venture."

Paj; 21 Feb 1884, article: "I referred to this valley last week as being now celebrated for nearly all kinds of fruit. As a proof thereof we have permanently located here three large fruit firms each having storage for at least ten thousand boxes. Sresovich & Co., San Francisco, are the heaviest fruit operators on the coast. This firm bought last year the Corralitos and Green Valley fruit, and shipped nearly all of it from here to Mexico and the Sandwich Islands. Anderson & Co., San Jose, shipped half their apples to Denver, Col. Next comes Rabbasa [Rabasa]. This man was the first to come here and ship fruit abroad. He tried his luck here often. Sometimes he won, sometimes lost, but his perseverance was rewarded this year, as he made $10,000 on his operations, on apples alone. Marco Rabbasa is a jolly old bach, a Slavonian, and weighs 340 pounds. He has bought a piece of good land at $300 per acre, which he intends to plant with French prunes...I hope the fruit business will not be overdone. There will be at least 500 acres set out this year, in addition to what we already have..."

Paj; 28 Feb 1884, item: "M. Rabassi [Rabasa] has sold his entire stock of apples and boxes to L. Sresovich, the lessee of the Blackburn orchard. Apple buyers made considerable money during the past season."

Paj; 14 Aug 1884; item: "Thomas Kennedy to Sresovich, Gray & Co, lot on the west side of Main street, Watsonville, adjoining Palmtag lot, for $1,400."

Paj; 14 Aug 1884; item: "L. G. Sresovich, of Sresovich & Gray, San Francisco fruit dealers, was in town last week, and while here bought the Kennedy lot and buildings opposite the Farmers' flouring mill. His firm will use the building as a fruit depot and packing establishment."

Paj; 25 Sep 1884; item: "Sresovich, Gray & Co, are shipping large quantities of apples...to Australia."

Paj; 15 Jan 1885; item: "Around the Horn. The ships that sail from this port [NY] to San Francisco take about 125 days to make the outward trip. The price usually charged to carry a passenger is $300. As one can go to San Francisco by rail for half that sum in a week, it would not at first appear that people could be found to occupy the fine staterooms that are filled up for the use of passengers in all the California clippers. But the existence of three classes of monomaniacs—people who are inordinately fond of the sea, drunkards and lovesick youths—furnish occupants for the staterooms...—New York Tribune"

Paj; 19 Feb 1885; item: "Luke G. Sresovich and James M. Gray to R. Levy, lot on Main street in Watsonville, near the bridge, being 82 ft. on Main street by 214 ft. deep, for $5."

Paj; 27 Aug 1885; item: "Marco Robassi [Rabasa] has a force of men gathering and shipping apples from this valley. The apple crop is large this year."

Paj; 3 Sep 1885; item: "Marco Robassi [Rabasa] is shipping his choicest apples to Australia, where Pajaro valley apples, being free from 'bugs,' find ready sale. He has shipped two carloads during the past week."

Paj; 24 Sep 1885; item: "L. G. Sresovich has bought several Pajaro apple orchards, and has a large force of employees picking, boxing and shipping. Mr. S. is firmly convinced of the superiority of Pajaro apples for export, and is buying all of this fruit he can secure. He is employing nearly 30 boys and is giving them good wages. This is a most worthy act, and opens up a field of employment which is being readily accepted by our young men."

Paj; 29 Oct 1885; article: "For several months past the shipments of apples from this valley have been heavy, as the production was unusually large this year. Notwithstanding the continued output there are yet about 45,000 boxes of apples in the valley, principally held by Sresovich, Robassa [Rabasa], and others. Sresovich & Co. have about 20,000 boxes, stored at different points, their principal storeroom being near Palmtag's brewery. Robassa has nearly 8,000 boxes, Nick Vucich has 3,000 boxes, John Millich has 3,000 boxes, Anderson has a large lot, and many small orchardists yet hold their apple crop. In addition to these buyers S. Martinelli has purchased and is storing immense quantities of apples to be converted into cider...[I]t will be seen that the Pajaro valley crop has been immense this season, and this crop is free from pest of any kind...we believe it would not be placing the estimate too high to say that the apple crop of this valley amounted to over 100,000 boxes this season."

Paj; 3 Dec 1885; ALL: Peter Orladovich [Obradovich].

Trans; 6 Feb 1886; list: "[list of delinquent taxes, property to be put up for sale by the Sheriff]: ...Sresovitch, L. G.; Lot 3, Block J of Camp Capitola; Value: $50; Improvements: $350; Tax: $7.40; 5% for delinquency: $0.37; Costs: $0.50..."

Paj; 8 Apr 1886; item: "Carpenters are at work fitting up the Bockius building for occupancy as a restaurant. The lessees are A. [Lov]retich and F. Batiza."

Paj; 15 Apr 1886; item: "Messrs. Lovretich & Batazza [Batizza] opened the Elite restaurant (opposite the post-office)... They are experienced restaurateurs, and will keep everything in first class style. Only the best meats furnished, and California and Eastern Oysters cooked in any style."

[Many of the entries throughout this book, and especially the next several entries, do not pertain to specific Slavs. They are included because they describe some of the issues and topics that Slavs were eventually involved in, such as shipping by railroad, agricultural fairs, apple pests, real estate, regulations governing hotels, saloons, and restaurants, etc.]

Paj; 24 Feb 1887; item: "Watsonville freight depot will be opened as soon as the railroad company can provide storage room in one of the warehouses. The establishment of this depot will be a great accommodation to merchants, farmers and fruit growers; and though it is stated that berry growers will not be benefited by the change, the future may show that the railroad connections will [be to their advantage]."

Paj; 21 Apr 1887; item: "The Watsonville freight depot was opened yesterday...The rate is two cents per hundred higher on city freight than in Pajaro. This increase will probably continue most of the business at Pajaro, as the additional freight to Watsonville, together with hauling from the depot, will amount to more than the cost of hauling from Pajaro. The opening of the depot will be beneficial for persons having to ship to Santa Cruz or intermediate points."

Paj; 9 Jun 1887; item: "At a meeting of the Watsonville Grange...the question of holding a fair in Watsonville... was discussed at considerable length, and it was finally carried...that a fair should be held here sometime during the fall, and that a public meeting of the Grange would be held on Saturday, June 18th...for the purpose of making arrangements for holding the fair. All persons interested in this matter are invited to meet with the Grange at that time, and it is hoped that our citizens will take a live interest in the valley and attend that meeting..."

[lists that do not include Slavs can also be of interest]

Paj; 21 Jul 1887; item: “Wealthy Tax Payers. The following is a list of taxpayers residing or owning property in Pajaro valley who are assessed for $5000 and upwards: [no Slavs were listed].”

Paj; 1 Sep 1887; item: “California has been a State of many excitements. First came the mining fever, then there was a rush to engage in the cattle business, then everybody went into grain farming, then followed the rush into horticulture and viticulture, and now we have the mania for town lots. It does not make any particular difference where these lots are so long as they are town lots...”

“The portions of California where the real estate fever is prevailing are rapidly increasing in population, and the boom is doing for California what it has long needed—bringing here a thrifty, well-to-do class of people who are enterprising and energetic...”

Paj; 22 Sep 1887; item: “Sresovich & Co., and other apple buyers, have large crews of men gathering fruit. The crop is large and of fine quality.”

Paj; 20 Oct 1887; item: “The first Pajaro Valley Fair will open this afternoon at 2 PM. The ladies and gentlemen of the various committees have worked untiringly for the past week, and the results they have accomplished are wonderful. The interior of the Rink presents a beautiful scene with its many booths and varied display of fruits, merchandise, fancy articles, etc. The decorations are neat and plentiful. To the north of the Rink is the floral department, and it is a charming spot, rich with its collections of beautiful flowers and delicate ferns. The main hallway is bordered with a variety of farm products, including a large collection of Pajaro mammoths—a ton of pumpkins—from Judge Bockius and A. McNeely. They average about 175 lbs. In one of the front rooms is the art department, and it contains a fine collection of paintings, etchings and sketches. The fair gives every promise of being a success...”

Paj; 27 Oct 1887; [a complete list of all exhibitors at this fair shows that no Slavs participated]

Paj; 3 Nov 1887; item: “Pajaro Products and Crops. The Pajaro Valley proper contains but few large tracts of land, being principally cut up into small farms, averaging, perhaps, 80 acres each. Farming is diversified, embracing the cultivation of nearly every cereal, fruit and vegetable indigenous to the temperate zone, while recent experiments in the citrus fruits and in olives have been made with satisfactory success. On the beach at the base of the foothills the culture of the olive has been entered into with every prospect of a successful issue, and several orchards have been set out this spring. The large area formerly devoted to wheat, barley, beans and potatoes is being rapidly decreased to make room for orchards and strawberry plantations. The crops of fruit, especially apples, cherries and strawberries are phenomenal, and the profit per acre, in many instances, such as to be almost incredible to those not accustomed to the combination of favorable conditions here found. In strawberry cultivation great activity has been manifested for the past four years, and there are now over 300 acres of strawberries in the Pajaro Valley. The season extends from April to Christmas—sometimes far into the new year, and the profits frequently run high into the hundreds of dollars per acre. It is estimated by the best judges that there are not less than 2000 acres in apples in the valley. The favorite varieties are Newtown Pippins and Bellefleurs and, in quality and quantity, the yield is remarkable...”

Paj; 19 Jan 1888; item: “L. G. Sresovich, the well known San Francisco fruit dealer who has a packing house in this town, made an assignment last Saturday. Mr. Sresovich was one of the pioneer fruit shippers from this valley, and has been active in working up markets for Pajaro valley apples. The city papers say that the failure is not serious, and that Mr. Sresovich will be in active business again before long.” [he went bankrupt more than once]

Paj; 26 Jan 1888; item: “Sresovich & Co. have offered to pay forty cents on the dollar in settlement of their claims, and the majority of the creditors are willing to accept it.”

Paj; 12 Apr 1888; item: “Empty houses are a rarity in this place, and when a dwelling is vacated a sign on it is not needed to attract a tenant. A year ago there were between 30 and 40 vacant houses in this place. Since that time many new houses have been constructed, none have been removed and only one was destroyed by fire... Today there are no vacant houses in town. It is safe to say that the population of the town has increased fully 250 during the past year, and a much larger increase may be expected within the next six months, as the demands of the sugar factory and the cultivation of beets will require more labor than the town can supply...”

Paj; 10 May 1888; item: “Marco Robassi [Rabasa] and other fruit buyers are interviewing orchardists. Their principal inquiry is for apricots.”

Paj; 24 May 1888; item: “L. G. Sresovich, a fruit dealer of San Francisco, who has always handled a large portion of the Pajaro valley fruit crop, was here last week trying to lease orchards. He will have the Ford orchard, near Corralitos, this season.”

Paj; 24 May 1888; item: “Frank Batizza has leased the Pearson orchard for this season. He will continue to run his restaurant.”

Paj; 14 Jun 1888; item: "Frank Batizza has sold his restaurant business to Messrs. Strasicich & Bellin who will continue to conduct the business at the old stand. Frank is going to engage in the fruit business, having secured several large orchards." [first mention of a Strazicich in local papers; no indication of which Strazicich this is, but it's either George or Steve, and probably George]

He has leased the Blackburn, Nugent, Bockius, Tuttle, Peckham, Pearson and Helmer orchards."

Paj; 21 Jun 1888; item: "Marco Rabasa invited a number of the boys from the Orphan Asylum...to visit one of his rented orchards and obtain a supply of cherries. The orphanage was duly remembered with a bountiful supply of fruit." [1st time his surname was spelled correctly]

Paj; 31 Jan 1889; item: "M. N. Lettunich, who is engaged in the apple packing business in this valley, has gone to Los Angeles to handle oranges for the San Francisco market. He will return here in the spring."

Paj; 14 Feb 1889; item: "Ever since the apple business has been of considerable importance in this valley it has been the proud boast of our orchardists and packers that the apple orchards...were free from dangerous pests... [T]he dreaded pest in California orchards is the codlin moth. Where ever it has once obtained good foothold it has remained until the orchard was destroyed. It has killed the apple orchards near San Jose, it is doing work equally as effective in the northern part of the State, and for several years has been plentiful in the orchards near Santa Cruz. Six or seven years ago the codlin moth made its appearance in orchards near town and started to clean them out; but a long spell of foggy weather came about that time and the moth was killed thereby. In the fogs that usually prevail here at certain seasons of the year our orchardists have found their protection against codlin moth.

"The moth that appeared here six or seven years ago was brought here in old boxes by San Jose fruit packers. Since that time orchardists have tried to compel packers to use new boxes. But so much faith has been placed in the protection of the fogs that the precaution of new boxes has not been rigidly maintained in all cases.

"Last year fogs were not as frequent as in previous years. In a short time the codlin moth made its appearance in apple orchards in different parts of the valley. It is probable that they were brought here in old boxes. Their appearance did not give orchardists much concern at that time; but fogs have been rare visitors for nearly a year past, and the moth has had a most favorable season in which to gain a residence in the Pajaro valley. If fogs should be more frequent for the remainder of the year the moth might be killed off; otherwise orchardists will have a pest to fight that will require all their attention. At the present time the moth has been found in but a few orchards in this part of the county; but in view of the great loss that would follow in case the moth got a foothold it stands our farmers in hand to take some concerted steps to eradicate this pest and prevent its appearance. The best way to do this is for the apple growers of this valley to meet in convention as soon as possible, locate the affected places, and then employ in a remedy that will kill the pest. In fighting the pest every orchardist should contribute to stop the further progress of the moth, or they may, before many years, find themselves in the position of the Santa Clara orchardists, possessing trees and land but gaining no revenue therefrom."

Paj; 21 Feb 1889; item: "M. Rabasa has several hundred boxes of Alencon pears, of last year's crop, on hand. They are now about ripe enough to ship..."

Paj; 21 Mar 1889; ALL: Sigr. Biagio Puhiera. [first mention of Puhiera; first immigrant from Primorje]

Paj; 30 May 1889; item: "L. G. Sresovich, of San Francisco, was here last week looking after apple orchards, and during his visit he inspected the fruit dryer. He is anxious to rent it for this season."

Paj; 6 Jun 1889; item: "L. G. Sresovich has rented the Watsonville fruit dryer for this season."

Paj; 6 Jun 1889; item: "M. N. Lettunich has returned from Alhambra, Los Angeles county, where he has been engaged in packing and shipping oranges for several months. He will remain here until the close of the apple season handling orchards he has purchased for the season. He expects to continue in business at Alhambra as well as here, and thinks that between apples and oranges he will find very active business during the entire year."

Paj; 27 Jun 1889; article: "M. N. Lettunich, the apple packer of lower Main street, is building a new packing house on his place. The dimensions of the house are: 150 feet long, 26 feet wide, and 10 feet high, and it will hold about 20,000 boxes of fruit. Mr. Lettunich has built up an extensive packing business, and has branch houses (for the orange crop) in Alhambra and San Gabriel and his business is rapidly growing. Mr. Lettunich takes an intelligent and active interest in the development of the fruit interests of this valley, and in doing so he is only following the line of building up his own business. He pronounces the apples of this valley without a superior on the coast, but says the product would be materially increased and benefited by careful and intelligent work in the pruning season. He has given much attention to the matter of pruning, and says that therein many orchardists make a serious mistake."

Paj; 1 Aug 1889; item: "Matteo Bellini [Bellin] has sold the Vienna Restaurant to John Silenco, who will continue to conduct the business at the old stand."

Paj; 23 Jan 1890; item: "M. N. Lettunich has returned from the orange groves of Southern California."

Paj; 23 Jan 1890; item: "A sworn complaint from Eureka restaurant, against Geo. Strazicich, proprietor of the Morning Star restaurant, was read. The complaint stated that Strazicich disobeyed the law in relation to selling liquor between the hours of 12 M. and 5 A.M. Action on the complaint was postponed until the next meeting, when it is probable both parties will be examined. This is the first complaint of the kind brought before this Board."

Paj; 30 Jan 1890; article: "...The complaint of Rokovich against Strazicich, in which Strazicich was accused of selling liquor after midnight, now came up. At the previous meeting there was a doubt as to whether Mr. Rokovich was an elector or not, and in case he was not the complaint would fall to the ground. City Attorney Hall said that in order for a person to be an elector he had to be on the great register. Mr. Rokovich was sworn and stated that he was not on the great register... T. J. Horgan said that Mr. Rokovich thought he was signing the complaint as a witness and not as a complainant..."

Paj; 30 Jan 1890; article: "...The storm had been gathering for nearly two days, and on Friday it broke. The rain descended without interruption until Saturday morning..."

"[T]he Plaza was under water... On the block of Main street nearest the river is located the apple packing houses of Sresovich & Co., Banaz & Scurich, M. N. Lettunich and M. Rabasa. They were damaged by the washing away of fruit boxes and the loss of apples. Their losses were nominal..." [first mention of Scurich in local papers; this was Luke, who arrived around 1886]

Paj; 6 Feb 1890; item: "Marshall Bridgewater entered a complaint against Geo. Strazicich, proprietor of the Morning Star Hotel, for violation of the liquor ordinance on or about Jan. 19th. He made the complaint on the sworn statement of S. Rokovich and the unsworn statement of R. Binsacca."

Paj; 13 Feb 1890; article: "...The case of Geo. Strazicich, charged with violating the liquor ordinance, now came up... City Attorney Hall offered the record book of the city as evidence that the defendant had been granted a license to conduct a saloon. Julius Lee, defendant's attorney, questioned the right of the Board to sit in a matter of this nature and thought it should probably come up in the courts. He delivered quite a speech in support of the same, but the Board thought otherwise and said they were ready to hear the testimony.

"Lee moved to dismiss the whole matter as it was informally commenced and brought before a tribunal not entitled to act on the same.

"Jackson replied to Mr. Lee and said that if the Board did not have power to try these cases then they might as well quit making ordinances for the government of the city. Mr. Lee's motion was defeated.

"Mr. Rokovich [Rokovich] was sworn and testified that he had lived here since last October and had known the defendant about two years. He and a number of other men were in Strazicich's restaurant on 19th January, about 11:30 o'clock P.M., and had two or three drinks but did not see him sell liquor after midnight. He claimed that when he signed the complaint he thought it was as a witness to some fact and did not know it was a complaint. It was very hard to get much out of the witness as he would plead ignorance of the English language when a hard question was propounded.

"C. Martinelli was sworn and testified that it was after 12 o'clock when the liquor was sold. He said he looked at his watch before entering the restaurant and it was 12:20 P.M. He denied that he was a particular friend of R. Binsacca's and was trying to injure Strazicich's business in order to gratify the spite of Binsacca. Judge Lee put the witness under a severe cross examination and the witness complained at times that the attorney's questions were 'too high toned' for him to understand.

"Marshall Bridgewater testified as to Rokovich's signing the complaint and of Judge Beckett telling him what it was he was signing.

"F. Holmquist, a cigar maker[,] testified that he went to the restaurant to get supper that evening and the party of gentlemen named in the complaint were in the restaurant drinking at the time. He was positive it was long before 12 o'clock as all the saloons on Main street were open... He thought the gentlemen who were drinking left the place before he finished his meal.

"Geo. Strazicich, the defendant, was sworn and made a general denial of everything charged in the complaint and in Martinelli's testimony. He told a very straight story. This finished the testimony.

"It appears from the testimony adduced that Rokovich, a restaurant keeper, was prompted to make the complaint by one R. Binsacca, another restaurant keeper on Main street, who appears to have had a grudge against Strazicich and wanted to play for even in this manner. It would have appeared more honorable if he had made his own complaint and stayed here and given his testimony instead of having 'gone to the springs.' The Board has taken the matter under advisement and will render their decision next Tuesday evening to which time they adjourned."

Paj; 20 Feb 1890; item: "Under the head of unfinished business the decision in the Strazicich case was to be rendered. Jackson moved to dismiss the complaint. Seconded by Ingham and all voted 'aye.'"

Paj; 6 Mar 1890; ALL: Marco Gercovich.

Paj; 13 Mar 1890; item: "J. Christenson to L. G. Sresovich—Lot 3, Block J of Camp Capitola, $1,000."

Paj; 8 May 1890; item: "Petitions for saloon licenses were read from Geo. Strazicich, D. Malieu, J. S. Yoacham, A. J. Mattos, A. Binsacca, L. Ginocchio, M. S. Lopes and A. Lewis. The petitions were accompanied by bonds, and were laid over for one week."

Paj; 15 May 1890; item: "Petitions of A. Lewis, M. S. Lopes, L. Ginocchio, A. Binsacca, A. J. Mattos, D. Maheu, J. S. Yoacham and Geo. Strazicich & Co. for saloon licenses were read, and were ordered laid on the table, as the amended ordinance did not require petitions for saloon licenses."

Paj; 29 May 1890; ALL: Castrapelli & Beline [Bellin].

Paj; 24 Jul 1890; item: "The men who are exclusively engaged in buying, packing and selling Pajaro valley fruits are showing a strong desire to make contracts for a long term of years...Last week Marco Rabasa, the pioneer fruit packer of this place, contracted for J. S. Menasco's young orchard near Corralitos, agreeing to pay 85 cents per hundred pounds for apples and 75 cents per hundred pounds for prunes, the contract to run 8 years from January 1st, 1891. The buyer agrees to take all sound fruit, large or small, at these figures, and is to prop the trees and pick the fruit, and use only new boxes. The orchard was set out early in 1888..."

Paj; 31 Jul 1890; item: "Marco Rabasa has made another contract for a young orchard, covering a term of years. G. H. Brewington is the other party to the contract. His orchard is on Lake avenue, adjoining the land of James Waters, and is a very promising orchard."

Paj; 7 Aug 1890; item: "At the present time the main shipments from the Watsonville depot are tree fruits and berries, and from 3 to 5 carloads are shipped daily, while the packing houses are storing considerable and two dryers are at work in the northern part of the township. A car will hold 400 boxes of apples...A good bearing apple orchard should produce 400 boxes to the acre, and they will do it in the Pajaro valley in even this 'off year'. Packers are paying from 45 to 60 cents per box for apples on the trees, and where growers are shipping to the city on their own account they are averaging not less than $1.00 per box. Taking the former price as the basis we find that the crop of one acre of a good apple orchard in this valley this year is worth not less than $200..."

Paj; 7 Aug 1890; item: "George Winston and Sam Lorton, two young vagrants, aged 15 and 16 years respectively, struck the town on Thursday night, and were given entertainment by George Strazicich, proprietor of the Morning Star restaurant. The boys showed their ingratitude by stealing their benefactor's overcoat. They were arrested and taken before Justice Swank, who sent them to jail for 10 days."

He left here last November, and since that time he has been in very poor health; and as his condition does not assure permanent improvement he concluded to retire from the apple packing business. Paj; 4 Jun 1891; item: "Fruit buyers are not in the great rush to buy orchards that they were last year. Their haste at that time proved expensive, as between the loss of fruit which fell from the trees and the lowness of the prices, they did not find the season profitable. Last year most of the orchards were bought before this time, and many of the best were purchased in April last season and are now unpurchased. The buyers claim that the prices are too high for the amount of the fruit crop, and on the other hand the orchardists hold that the packers have been making the big end of the profit in past seasons and that they will handle their fruits themselves if the buyers do not pay their prices. From persons whose business has led them to examine most of the orchards in this township, we learn that the apple crop will not average over half a crop this year, and that the best yield is in the vicinity of Watsonville. The Newtown Pippins and Bellefleurs are especially light, and the Pearmain is a better crop...Apple orchards in the northern part of the valley are the lightest in setting..."

Paj; 25 Jun 1891; item: "L. G. Sresovich spent several days in this valley during the past week, and he bought up several orchards. The apple crop of the State will be short and packers are now more anxious to get hold of Pajaro orchards."

Paj; 25 Jun 1891; item: "L. G. Sresovich, the apple king, is in the field again this year buying fruit. All parties wishing to sell their fruit on the tree or by the box will please address him at P.O. Box 2279, San Francisco, or call at his packing house at Watsonville, corner of Main and First streets."

Paj; 2 Jul 1891; item: "M. N. Lettunich has returned from the orange land of the south, and is getting ready to handle a big part of the apple crop of this valley. During his southern campaign he shipped 98 cars of oranges, and with the exception of 4 cars, the entire shipment was to Eastern cities."

Humboldt Times; 30 Jul 1891; item: "Matteo Lettunich, a resident of this county for the past 15 years, and who has been engaged in business in both Arcata and Eureka the greater part of that time, will be an outgoing passenger on the steamer North Fork to-day. Mr. Lettunich has disposed of his business in this city, but still retains his other property interests, his future movements being still undecided. He will first visit a brother [cousin] residing in Watsonville, with a view to engaging with him in the fruit business in San Jose, and may ultimately make a trip to his home in Austria."

Paj; 13 Aug 1891; item: "J. L. Ivancovich & Bro. have opened their packing house at Allen's hall, on Fourth street." [this company was based in Santa Clara Co.; see 21 May 1891]

Paj; 10 Dec 1891; item: "M. N. Lettunich has gone to San Jose and has opened a commission and supply house at that point. He retains his packing house and interests here, which are in charge of his brother. By locating in San Jose he is in better position to handle Eastern orders...We trust that he will be successful to his complete satisfaction in his new home."

Paj; 17 Dec 1891; notice of co-partnership: "Notice is hereby given that W. A. Speckens and M. Zadielovich have formed a co-partnership to conduct a general merchandising business in the city of Watsonville...The firm name shall be Speckens & Zadielovich...[dated] Dec 16, 1891."

Paj; 7 Jan 1892; item: "Board of Trustees...The Finance Committee reported favorably on the following claims and they were ordered paid: ...Strasicich & Belbini [Bellin], meals, $9.40..."

Paj; 7 Jan 1892; item: "The tug-of-war fever has reached this part of the earth, and has been 'received with thunders of applause' from those who have viewed it in its full glory. The first pull of the local campaign took place at the Railroad House on the evening of Dec. 30th."

The first pull was between teams of the butcher boys and the boys of the high school. The butchers pulled the schoolboys over the line. Then teams known as the Danes and Pajaros tried their strength and sticktoativeness, and after a contest of over three hours the Danes won the match. The contestants had a hard struggle, and there was more soreness among them next day then they would admit. In the meantime the tug-of-war fever is spreading worse than the measles in Santa Cruz, and the Alert Hose Co. of that place has the champion crew. It is proposed to pit the Dane team of this place against the Alerts. If they meet it will be 'good-bye' Alerts. There are more local matches in prospect. The schoolboys have daily contests with the rope, and at the Pajaro Valley Orphanage the little fellows go into the sport with a rush." [see 3 Jan 1895]

Paj; 12 Jan 1892; item: "There have been winters, and not very long ago, when it was impossible to go to the town railroad depot, via Third street, with a team; but thanks to the efforts of the present Board of City Trustees in their work of improving the thoroughfares of our city, that time is past, and Third street is today the best road within the city limits. It is a matter of greatest importance to every city to have first class streets from its railroad stations to its main thoroughfares. In macadamizing Third street the City Trustees improved the street which is first viewed by every stranger who may come within our city..." [Third St. is Beach St. today]

Paj; 14 Jan 1892; item: "M. N. Lettunich has been over from San Jose this week looking after his interests in this place."

Paj; 3 Mar 1892; item: "Following is the Roll of Honor of Mrs. Kidder's Home school: Advanced Grade—Nick Mortizia, 100...Intermediate Grade—Tony Scurich, 94..." [first Slavs found in Watsonville school listings; Nick was 20 years old and Tony (Antone A.) was 17, so they had to attend this private home school; the teacher also taught public school; see also 1 Jan 1891]

Paj; 10 Mar 1892; item: "M. Rabasa was over from San Jose this week. He is again in good health, and his recovery can be looked upon as something marvelous. When he left here it was supposed he would soon die of the dropsy—but Marco is in the flesh and very much in it. He is going to engage in his old business of apple buying again this season, and expects to do some business in this valley."

Paj; 10 Mar 1892; item: "Martin Zadielovich has rented the office formerly occupied by Judge Gaffey, and will open a fruit and grocery store there."

Paj; 21 Apr 1892; list: "[The Board of Trustees] approved of the following claims and they were ordered paid: ...Strasicich & Bellini, meals: $1.60..."

Paj; 28 Apr 1892; item: "M. N. Lettunich has been having the warehouse removed from the Blackburn lot this week."

Paj; 5 May 1892; item: "M. N. Lettunich has been over from San Jose the past week, and has been buying a few orchards for the season."

Paj; 12 May 1892; item: "Marco Rabasa was over from San Jose last week, and while here purchased a few lots of cherries and expects to be in the swim for the big apple orchards this season..."

Paj; 19 May 1892; item: "Marco Rabasa is over from San Jose this week, and the annual campaign of the orchard buyers has commenced in earnest. Several large orchards have been sold this week.”

Paj; 19 May 1892; item: “L. G. Sresovich, of San Francisco, was here last Saturday, looking after orchards.”

Paj; 2 Jun 1892; item: “M. N. Lettunich is handling the cherry crop of K. F. Redman’s orchard—the largest cherry orchard in Pajaro valley.”

Paj; 2 Jun 1892; item: “Mr. P. M. Shearer, the well known fruit man of the Sacramento valley, is now connected with us and will take charge of the branch of our business located at Watsonville, and we hope you will extend to him the same courtesy in the future as you have to us in the past. M. N. LETTUNICH & CO.”

Paj; 9 Jun 1892; item: “WANTED—Eight or ten experienced cherry packers (girls). Apply to M. N. Lettunich & Co., or P. M. Shearer, Lewis House.”

Paj; 9 Jun 1892; item: “B. N. Trobock, of the commission firm of Trobock & Bergen, San Francisco, was here a few days this week. He is greatly pleased with the prospect for a good fruit crop in this valley. He states that the second crop of strawberries in the Santa Clara valley will be a failure and that San Francisco will have to depend upon this valley for her strawberries.” [Trobock is likely Trobok from Pelješac Peninsula or Lopud; like Sresovich, he lived in San Francisco and never in Watsonville]

Paj; 9 Jun 1892; item: “Mr. M. Lettunich & Co. has a fine lot of cherries suitable for canning purposes from the Redman orchard. We are prepared to supply all families with this kind of fruit the present season.”

Paj; 16 Jun 1892; item: “M. N. Lettunich has been over from San Jose this week...he is shipping quite a lot of cherries to Denver and the southern part of the State. He is packing them in a box of novel form, very similar to a raisin box, and the packages are very neatly put up.”

Paj; 4 Aug 1892; item: “M. Rabasa bought about all of the apricot crop in the Carneros and Sand-cut district [Aromas], and has been shipping the fruit from Vega at the rate of several tons per day...Packers who have been through the San Jose apricot district say that the apricots shipped by Rabasa from the orchards of M. B. Tuttle, J. W. Snyder, H. F. Blohm and M. Nicholson are superior to those of the San Jose district.”

Paj; 18 Aug 1892; item: “It is estimated that the apple crop of this valley will reach 250,000 boxes this year. It will take about 400 cars to take that amount of fruit to market. It is also estimated that the entire fruit output of the valley, including berries, for the season...will be over 1000 cars; and yet the fruit business is but in its infancy in this valley.”

Paj; 18 Aug 1892; born: “Watsonville, August 11th, to the wife of Geo. Strasicich, a son.” [2nd Croatian born in Watsonville: George Strazicich, +1959; see Fig. 1-28]

Paj; 18 Aug 1892; item: “If the road from Lake avenue which passes through the lands of the college and Judge Bockius could be opened through to the Green Valley road it would give the people of the northern part of the valley an outlet to town that would be passable all times of the year. Several efforts have been made to open this road, but without success. The work in that direction is to be continued, and we are informed that the prospects for the opening of the road are considered very encouraging.” [Holohan Rd. or Casserly?]

Paj; 1 Sep 1892; item: “John Legassick, formerly of this place, died about two weeks ago at Lompoc.” [possibly a Slav; perhaps Legasich]

Paj; 22 Sep 1892; item: “The new street banner purchased by the Watsonville Republican League Club has been stretched across Main street from the Mansion House to the Ford block. It is a beauty.” [this is the same place that banners are stretched today; Mansion House was on the corner then, where the Lettunich Building is today]

Paj; 13 Oct 1892; item: “Pajaro Lodge of Odd Fellows has purchased from W. W. and Mary A. Ford the lot on Third street between the Mansion House property and Gunther’s store. It has a frontage of 70 feet, and was sold at the reasonable figure of $30 per front foot. It is the intention of the lodge to build a large two-story business block, with hall on the upper floor. This will be one of the big building improvements of the town.” [this was the I.O.O.F. Building, where the Austrian-American Benevolent Society held its meetings for years; it was damaged in the 1989 earthquake and torn down]

Paj; 13 Oct 1892; item: “The annual Pajaro valley fair will open next Tuesday, and as the season has been one of more than average prosperity in all branches of farming and business, the exhibit should be thoroughly representative of this great valley and its diversified products...Liberal premiums are offered in all departments, and the exhibits should be superior to that of any previous year...”

Paj; 13 Oct 1892; item: “The way the fruit business is growing in this valley it will not be so many years before there will be need of a daily fruit train from Watsonville to San Francisco.”

Paj; 27 Oct 1892; item: "The apple crop of the Blackburn orchard is nearly harvested, and the production is going to overrun the estimate made in the Pajaronian some time since—14,000 boxes. There are parts of the orchard that have borne 1400 boxes to the acre this year, and several trees have turned off more than 50 boxes each, and several of the Newtown Pippin trees have borne 25 boxes..."

Paj; 27 Oct 1892; item: "The apple wagons passing through town on their way from the orchards to the packing houses make an almost constant procession from early morning until late at night. The amount of the apple crop this year will be far in excess of that of any previous year, and will most probably be the largest of any section in the State."

Paj; 17 Nov 1892; item: "A cement sidewalk is to be laid in front of the Ford block."

Paj; 17 Nov 1892; item: "The recruiting officers did not do any business in Watsonville. Wages are too good and work too plentiful about this section to tempt anyone to enlist."

Paj; 17 Nov 1892; item: "Daily shipments of fruit are being made in carload lots from Watsonville to Eastern points. Most of the cars are being sent to points west of the Missouri river, and are mainly loaded with apples... S. J. Roper, of San Jose, is shipping heavily for the Eastern market, buying of local packers, and M. N. Lettunich is shipping on his own account."

Paj; 12 Jan 1893; item: "M. N. Lettunich has purchased a lot from Mrs. S. A. Cox on Maple avenue, the consideration being $650. It is a fine building lot, and will doubtless be improved by a handsome cottage some day."

Paj; 16 Feb 1893; item: "A large packing house is being built for M. Rabasa on the corner of 4th and Walker Sts." [that part of 4th is W. Lake today]

Paj; 9 Mar 1893; item: "Maple avenue is destined to be the center of the residence portion of our city...J. F. Aston is building two fine homes on the block—one for Jas. Sheehy and the other for M. N. Lettunich...These new houses are large and stylish in design, and will be handsome additions to the homes of our city."

Paj; 30 Mar 1893; item: "It is reported that a prominent young shipper of this valley will be married in San Francisco next Sunday."

Paj; 30 Mar 1893; item: "George Strasicich is building a house on the lot on Walker street he recently purchased from Thos. Moffatt."

Paj; 13 Apr 1893; item: "The well known fruit packing firm of Banaz & Scurich has been dissolved by mutual consent, and each of the firm will engage in the business on individual account. N. Banaz has purchased the personal property and real estate of the old firm, and will continue in business at the old place, lower Main street. L. Scurich will have his packing houses on Alexander street, near Fifth [sic betw. 3rd and 4th (now Beach and E. Lake)].”

Paj; 13 Apr 1893; item: “M. N. Lettunich and wife have returned from their wedding trip and will make their home in Watsonville. The Pajaronian extends its congratulations to the worthy young couple. Their handsome residence on Maple avenue will soon be ready for occupancy.”

Paj; 13 Apr 1893; married: “San Francisco, April 2nd, 1893, Miss Anna Gordon of San Francisco to M. Zadielovich of this city.”

Paj; 13 Apr 1893; article: “The fruit season of 1893 has commenced—at least a main factor in it—and some of the packers have been getting in early on cherry contracts. The trees are yet in bloom, with prospects for an unusually heavy crop—providing rains and frosts do no damage. Geo. D. Rodgers made the first sale of the season to M. Rilovich & Bro. and M. B. Tuttle followed with a sale to M. Rabasa of 203 trees for $400. Two dollars per tree for fruit prospects of cherry trees in bloom does not indicate that this is going to be a year of light prices...” [first mention of Rilovich] Paj; 20 Apr 1893; item: “N. Bencovich has disposed of his interest in the Morning Star Restaurant, to his former partner, Steve Strasicich, who will conduct the restaurant in a first class manner. Mr. Bencovich left for Hollister this week where he proposes to start a restaurant. The people of Hollister will find Nick a first class man in his line of business.”

Paj; 27 Apr 1893; item: “L. Scurich is building a large packing house on Alexander street.”

Paj; 4 May 1893; item: “N. Banaz, one of the pioneer fruit packers of the Pajaro, left this week for his old home in Austria.” [this was Nick Banaz, the uncle of Nick Banaz who is cited further in this book, most prominently in 1900 when he went bankrupt (with his uncle’s money)]

Paj; 4 May 1893; item: “Gerkovich & Co., a local packing firm, will operate in the Soquel district a part of the season. They have made cherry purchases in that section.”

Paj; 11 May 1893; married: “San Jose, Miss Nicoletta Pujizevich [Pulisevich], of San Jose, to F. P. Marinovich of Watsonville [no wedding date is given].”

Paj; 25 May 1893; item: “Last week an Austrian was arrested near Soquel for refusing to pay his poll tax. He was tried in Santa Cruz, and the jury found him ‘not guilty.’ It was claimed that the man did not understand the language and had no intention of refusing payment. As the poll tax is the most unpopular tax imposed it would be a difficult matter under any circumstances to get a jury to convict a man for refusing to pay it.”

Paj; 15 Jun 1893; notice: “L. Scurich, the well known fruit buyer, has removed his place of business and packing houses from lower Main street to Alexander street, between Third and Fourth streets.”

Paj; 6 Jul 1893; item: “This morning about 4 o’clock H. P. Iveson, who runs the night sprinkler, discovered M. Zadielovich’s store on upper Main street to be on fire. The firemen quickly responded and did splendid work in confining the fire to the burning building. The building and its contents were a total loss. W. V. Gaffey owned the building and it was insured for $300. Zadielovich’s stock was insured for $500. The fire is [probably] of incendiary origin.”

Paj; 20 Jul 1893; item: “J. Pierovich, late proprietor of the California restaurant, was sent from this county to the Agnew’s asylum, and died there last Friday.”

Paj; 24 Aug 1893; item: “The apricot drying yards of Scurich Bros. and M. N. Lettunich & Co. are busy places at present. These firms have the bulk of the apricot crop of the valley, outside of the Corralitos district, and they are hard at work getting the fruit in dried form. They are giving employment to a number of women and girls in the cutting work.”

Paj; 14 Sep 1893; item: "Ivancovich & Co. are drying fruit at the Peck orchard in Green Valley."

Paj; 14 Sep 1893; item: "...The Pajaronian has long advocated a union of fruit growers of the Pajaro valley, and we believe that with proper organization, with a directory of men who had a knowledge of business methods at the head of the organization, the union could be made as much of a success here as in Santa Clara valley. Under its fostering management the drying of fruit and its processing by a cannery would be encouraged, and our fruit would get more of a distinctive name. This year, for instance, carloads of Pajaro fruit—notably cherries and pears—have been shipped East, but they are classed and sold as Santa Clara fruit because the boxes are re-shipped at San Jose. If this valley had a fruit union Pajaro fruit could find its way to Eastern markets in direct shipment, to the greater profit of our growers and packers."

Paj; 21 Sep 1893; born: "Watsonville, Sept. 18th, to the wife of Geo. Strasicich, a son." [John Strazicich, +1975; see Fig. 1-28]

Paj; 12 Oct 1893; item: "S. Scurich was thrown from a wagon on the beach road one day last week, and was badly bruised. He is able to get around, but is yet quite sore."

Paj; 12 Oct 1893; item: "Watsonville has reached a size where her business houses and residences should be numbered. The matter is referred to the Trustees. Some day Watsonville will have a letter delivery service, and then the numbering will be required."

Paj; 2 Nov 1893; item: "The heavy shipments of apples eastward have created a big demand for pine boxes, as the redwood box is not wanted by Eastern fruit handlers. Every pine box set from this valley should have a distinctive brand on one of the heads: 'Pajaro Valley Fruit,' with an outline scene of the valley. Every box should advertise this section."

Paj; 9 Nov. 1893; item: "The Lucky Competitors of the Pajaro Valley Fair. A Complete List of the Premiums Awarded By the Directors of Each Respective Department...[no Slavs were mentioned]"

Paj; 16 Nov 1893; item: "The largest carload of apples ever shipped from this valley was sent from Pajaro last week. It was shipped by M. N. Lettunich & Co. in a Sante Fe furniture car, consigned to Denver, and consisted of 1006 boxes."

Paj; 16 Nov 1893; article: "Pajaro Valley Apples in the East. Soon after the opening of the apple shipping season W. R. Keller, of Denver, representing several Eastern commission houses, located in Watsonville for the season and engaged in handling Pajaro valley apples for Eastern shipment. From time to time in past years some of the packers have shipped direct to Eastern points on their own account, and thereby the apples of this valley came in to some prominence. Colorado, Montana and Washington have been purchasers of our apples for two or three years. The volume of shipments in past years has been but small compared with what has been done this year since Mr. Keller came here and engaged in direct shipping. Much credit is due this gentleman for his work in introducing Pajaro valley fruit in Eastern markets, and his efforts are sincerely appreciated. It is probable that not less than 100 cars of apples have been shipped from here to Eastern points since the season opened, and as yet none of the winter apples have been forwarded. These apples have gone into Montana, Minnesota, Colorado, Kansas, Illinois, and all of the Western States. The main demand has been for Bellefleurs, which have been a fine crop this year. Of the shipments made Mr. Keller has made one half, and the balance has been from M. N. Lettunich & Co., Scurich Bros., M. Rabasa and other packers. That our apples are making a grand showing in the East is attested by the following clipping from the St. Paul Pioneer Press of a carload which Mr. Keller recently sent from Watsonville to that city:

"The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul fast freight, which arrived from the West yesterday, brought a carload of the finest apples ever shipped to this city. Instead of being put up in barrels, as the common sorts of apples usually are, these are carefully packed in neat boxes which bear the famous 'W.R.K.' brand, so favorably known in every prominent city from Maine to California. Mr. W. Keller, the proprietor of this popular brand, has supplied the wholesale market of St. Paul during the past 12 years with apples from the orchards of Missouri, Illinois, Michigan and Iowa, but in these States, as well as in New York, the apple crop is almost a total failure this year. California beats the world for fruits of nearly all kinds, the various altitudes (and the consequent variety of climates) each seeming exactly suitable for the culture of some particular kind of fruit. Thus, Pajaro valley, Santa Cruz county, Cal., bears the distinction of producing the finest apples in the world. Here, unlike other portions of the fruit growing districts, no irrigation is required, sufficient moisture being supplied by nature to give the fruit a slow but solid development; while the frosty nights and sunny days of autumn impart to it a flavor and color unequaled in richness and beauty..."

Paj; 23 Nov 1893; item: "M. N. Lettunich & Co. are figuring on erecting a drier in this valley next season to handle the stone fruits and apples. If they build a drier they will give especial attention to drying apples."

Paj; 30 Nov 1893; item: "Apple shippers are now after refrigerator cars for Eastern trade. The weather is too cold in the Rockies for apples to be shipped in safety in ventilator cars. Refrigerator cars cost about $150 per trip more than ventilator cars."

[Annie Scurich, daughter of Luke and Maria Scurich, was born 7 Dec 1893 and lived one day; first Slav female born in Watsonville; no mention in the papers]

Paj; 21 Dec 1893; item: "The representatives of Eastern commission houses who have been here this winter inform us that at no place in the Eastern fruit districts do packers purchase orchards as they do here—when the trees are in blossom or soon after. In the East the orchardist doesn't get a chance to sell until his crop is gathered. The Pajaro fruit grower is speedy, and gets his coin about six months ahead of the final sale of the fruit."

Paj; 4 Jan 1894; item: "Scurich Bros. sent a carload of apples to Annapolis, Maryland, last week. 'The world is the parish' of the Pajaro valley apple."

Paj; 11 Jan 1894; item: "Scurich Bros. shipped a carload of red apples to Denver on Saturday. Experts say that a handsomer lot of apples never left the State."

Paj; 18 Jan 1894; item: "Tuesday night M. N. Lettunich & Co. lost a valuable horse in the Pajaro river. One of their large teams was driven into the river to clean off a wagon, and the horses struck a deep pool with fatal result. The driver and other horses had a close call."

Paj; 25 Jan 1894; item: "The case of Mortizia & Novak, fruit packers, against J. H. Cain & Co., commission merchants, was on trial before Judge Smith last Friday. Cain & Co. had contracted to take a carload of apples from Mortizia & Novak, and when the fruit was packed ready for shipment they failed to come to time with the coin. The plaintiffs were given judgement for the full amount with costs..."

Paj; 1 Feb 1894; item: "Cain & Co., the S.F. commission men who were sued by Mortizia & Novak for the price of a carload of apples, and for which the latter got judgement, settled for the same last week and paid the costs of the suit."

The interest in the contest has been at fever heat for some weeks and as a result both teams did lots of practice work and on the night of the contest were in prime condition. The butchers team, with two exceptions, was composed of Danes and were first to make their appearance. They all had the appearance of being able-bodied, well muscled and active men. The Slavonians came forth next and it was very soon seen that as a whole they were a much larger lot of men than the butchers and equally as well muscled and active. Their ancor man, A. Trojanovich, is a large and well made man and has muscles of extraordinary size. Steve Scurich captained the Slavonians and J. Christensen did similar duty for the butchers. Steve Strasicich and Geo. Jessen were the judges. The Slavonians secured the slack of the rope at the commencement and for the next 5 minutes both sides laid back and waited for the other to commence the hard work. The butchers had no sooner commenced to make a hard pull than the Slavonians immediately took advantage of it and in one long and steady pull brought their opponents over the victory mark. The pull lasted 6 minutes...Following are the names of the teams: Slavonians—A. Trojanovich, A. Marinovich, S. Knego, John Scurich, Pete Casovaz, Nick Alaga, Pete Lettunich, A. Luello...The second pull will take place next Saturday night at the Opera House. Paj; 7 Mar 1895; item: "There is no interregnum in the fruit shipping year in Pajaro valley. The calendar year opens when apple shipments to Eastern points are being actively pushed, and before all the apples are out of the packing houses small fruit shipments have commenced; and in a brief season berries are supplemented by stone fruits, and then again comes shipments of the king of Pajaro fruits—the apple.

“The development of the fruit interests in this section has been gradual, is based on the solid foundation of choice soil and unexceptionable climate for the perfect growth of the more popular classes of deciduous fruits, and has been unmarked, very fortunately, by any of the elements of a boom and fictitious valuations of land. For over 10 years this point has been a source of supply for small fruits for the San Francisco market, and has always shipped apples in some quantity; but the growth of the latter interest has been most marked in the last six or seven years. The area of apple orchards has been steadily increased until the acreage now planted will be able—when in full bearing—to supply not less than 2,000,000 boxes annually, or about 4000 carloads. The Pajaro apple has gained and held a market in the East on account of its excellence and quality, its perfection of form and coloring, its freedom from pests, and the superior manner in which it is packed...In the East apples are packed in barrels containing from 3 to 4 boxes, and they are more or less bruised in making up the package. In this section the pine or fir box, containing about 50 pounds of fruit, is used exclusively for Eastern apple shipments. It makes a neat case, and the quantity of fruit is of more desirable size than the barrel for the retail purchaser. Most of the Eastern shipments are of the first grade, and pack four tiers to the box in the larger varieties. Experienced buyers for the Eastern market state that in no section of the United States is the apple as well packed as by the shippers of the Pajaro valley...

“Yellow Bellefleurs, Newton Pippins, White and Red Winter Pearmains, Missouri Pippins, Romanites and Smith’s Cider are the principal varieties handled for Eastern shipment, the three first named varieties being far in the lead.

“It is not many years ago since M. Rabasa came to this valley and bought up apples for the Eastern market. He is yet in the harness and was one of the big shippers to Eastern markets this year. The other firms engaged in the business are: Scurich Bros., M. N. Lettunich & Co. (who are the pioneer Eastern shippers and have made a specialty of developing that market), N. Banaz, F. P. Marinovich, J. L. Ivancovich & Co., M. Rilovich & Bro., Puhiera & Strazicich, Gravosa Fruit Co., P. N. Lettunich, J. P. Miovich, M. Gerkovich, A. W. Condit & Co., Prettyman & Wolf, and M. L. Woody. These firms are located here. In addition to these are representatives during each season of leading Eastern commission houses who ship on their own account.

“Fruit shippers have been in the habit of buying orchards during the spring—‘in the blossom’ as it is called. The immunity from crop failure has protected them to some extent in this daring form of purchase. Such a system of purchasing fruit—figuring on a blossom outlook—is unknown elsewhere, and would break the solidest New York apple buyer if he tried it in the apple districts of his state. Year after year our orchards blossom and the trees bear heavily, and our orchardists do not figure on a crop failure...Comparatively but a small amount of the crop is handled by growers. Nearly all of it is bought in the blossom stage. The picking, handling and packing business is almost entirely in the hands of Austrians who have been trained in the business and thoroughly know every detail thereof. The inspection they make of fruit for Eastern shipment is as critical as that of champagne by experienced cellarmen during the period of processing.” [1st mention of Rilovich, Miovich; Gravosa Fruit Co. was likely owned by Opusich]

[following is a long promotional article in the SF Call]
SFCall; 3 Jun 1895; article: "[6 line drawings] FAIR PAJARO VALLEY. One of the Most Fertile Sections in the World. THREE CROPS A YEAR. The Climate Is Equable and the Water Supply Inexhaustible. WATSONVILLE ITS CENTER. Strawberries Shipped Nine Months of the Year...Home of the Apple.

"WATSONVILLE, Cal., May 27.—Down through the beautiful valley of fruit—Santa Clara—turning at Gilroy into a picturesque pass, along a winding river, the traveler comes into the comparatively small valley of Pajaro, which is one of the wonders of the world, because of its extreme and unequalled fertility. Without fear of successful contradiction, it can be affirmed that the yield per acre is greater in Pajaro Valley than in any other locality of this State or land...

"Twenty acres in Pajaro Valley, well planted and carefully tilled, is enough to make a happy home and independent living for a family...Nine months in the year strawberries are shipped from this point. Many of the best strawberry-fields, notably those of George H. Brewington and the Lake farm of Ira L. Thurber and Daniel Buckley, produce 3 tons per acre during the season...[T]he soil is rich alluvial and very porous, retaining the moisture from heavy winter rainfall...Watsonville, the geographical and commercial center of the valley, a thriving town of about 3000 inhabitants, is located at the junction of the Pajaro and Corralitos rivers, about 5 miles from a good sea beach—Camp Goodall...

"Where mother earth is so bountiful it is hard to particularize, but it is safe to mention apples as the specialty in the fruit line. Aside from the soil being adapted to apple culture, the cool, even climate prevents the apples withering, as the products of warmer localities almost invariably do. The codlin moth does not mar the apples of Pajaro, as this little pest does not thrive in the extremely cool nights which are the rule here, because of the nearness of the ocean.

"The best Eastern markets admit that apples of the finest and best keeping quality in the world are shipped from this little valley adjacent to the bay of Monterey. The choice yellow bellefleurs, Newton pippins, white and red pears, Romanites and Smith's cider, which go perfectly packed in 50-pound boxes to the Eastern markets, have redeemed California's reputation in the East... The wonderful quality of the apple product and the large profit per acre yield has brought about extensive planting of apple trees which, when in full bearing[,] will produce 2 million boxes annually, or 4000 carloads.

"Eastern commission-houses send representatives to this valley during the season to buy the fruit on the trees and ship on their own account. Several large firms are located here and have developed extensive markets in the East and in Europe, and are engaged in shipping. They buy the orchards when in the blossom stage, contracting to take all apples, large or small, grown in the orchard, to prop trees if necessary and to pick them, the owner having absolutely nothing to do but keep the trees healthy and cultivate the soil.

"Scurich Bros., M. Rabasa, M. N. Lettunich & Co., N. Baza [Banaz], A. N. Condit & Co., Prettyman & Wolf, M. L. Woody and the Gravosa Fruit Company are among the heavy shippers from this point...

"San Francisco is the distributing point for the strawberry, raspberry and blackberry output of this valley. During the season, which continues from April to December, about 1000 carloads are shipped...

"The profits derived from the culture of small fruits when the prices are even fair are very large. George H. Brewington, the pioneer strawberry-grower of the valley, says the average yield of strawberries is about 60 chests to the acre, each chest weighing an average 80 pounds... Mr. Brewington bought 25 acres eight years ago, for which he paid $100 per acre. This land was graded and prepared for berries at an average cost of $25 per acre... Mr. Brewington also planted Newton pippin and bellefleur apple trees on the same tract. The returns from the berries in the years paid for the land, as well as all expenses for both the ranch and family. After the trees came into bearing berry culture was discontinued and the strength of the soil given up entirely to the trees. The net proceeds from the trees has so increased that the 25-acre tract, bought for $2500, is now worth $1000 per acre.

"The most important industry of Pajaro Valley is the Western Beet-Sugar Factory, of which Claus Spreckels is the founder and chief stockholder. This large milling plant was built at Watsonville in 1888. It has been enlarged since, and to-day it is the best and most modern-equipped beet-sugar factory in the country. One thousand tons is a small day's run in this plant... During the sugar-making season 300 men are employed... The same company constructed a narrow-gauge road from Watsonville to Moss Landing, 6 miles away, where the coast line of steamers touch, thence to Salinas, a distance of 23 miles...This competing road has brought about low freight rates. The Southern Pacific Company has reduced rates to terminal and Eastern points about one-half...

"The Charles Ford Mercantile Company, which was organized by the late Mr. Ford rather on the co-operative plan, by admitting trusted employees to partnership, is the largest general merchandise firm in the county...

"Madden & Sheehy carry a good stock of fancy and staple dry goods, A. L. Bixby, W. A. Spreckens, P. J. Freiermuth, Martin the jeweler, Burbeck & Co., books and stationery, Baxter, the hardware man, and many other equally enterprising and 'up-to-date' business men, keep things humming in Watsonville.

"The hotels are specially good and well patronized; the Mansion and Lewis lead. Among those who are ever ready for any movement along the line of progress are Charles Polk, J. S. Menasco, Dr. Waters, J. J. Morey, George W. Hurst, A. W. Cox, R. P. Quinn, Robert Eaton, John T. Porter, James Waters, J. A. Linscott, F. A. Kilburn and Dr. Bixby.

"The Pajaronian, under the business management of G. G. Radcliff and edited by W. R. Radcliff, is one of the most progressive and practical papers in the State. The Rustler, edited by Joe Hetherington, is appropriately named. It came into the field at last, but the Rustler has come down the quarterstretch and is under the wire on good time. The little daily Transcript, run by the brothers Peckham, works hard and faithfully for the community and will, no doubt, win reward...

"...The ladies of the W.C.T.U. are trying very hard to build up a good public library and reading-room. They have been given the use of the Odd Fellows' well-selected library and by littles they will see the fruition of their very laudable hopes...

"One of the leading small enterprises is the cider and soda works of S. Martinelli located here. The pure apple juice void of injurious chemicals is put on the market by Mr. Martinelli, who is gaining a wide reputation.

"Many modern houses are seen in this busy town. The new high school building, which has been erected at a cost of about $30,000, is one of the handsomest in the State. And the schools here are well conducted under L. W. Cushman, the principal, who is a graduate of Harvard. Olin N. Marsh, a graduate of Stanford, is making a success of the history and language department. Miss Rose Ryan, a Berkeley graduate, who is at the head of the mathematics, is a valued teacher. G. E. Morrill has charge of the excellent commercial department, which is so large as to require a separate building...

"On this round globe can we find a rarer spot than this valley of Pajaro?"

Paj; 23 Jan 1896; item: "It is estimated that the apple crop of the United States for 1895, if barreled and loaded on cars, would make a train 3000 miles long, and that it would average one barrel for each man, woman and child in the United States. As each barrel contains about four of our boxes it will be seen that lively chewing was required to get away with that crop up on time. The Pajaro valley would have about 3 miles of such a train, or about one thousandth part of the entire crop. This comparison makes our apple crop look light, but we hope to pull those figures up a bit before many moons."

Paj; 30 Jan 1896; item: "Last Friday's Transcript had several pages devoted to semi-biographical notices of citizens. The material was gathered by a traveling combination of writers who make it a business to do that class of work where ever they find a community ripe for the 'write-up.' If the Transcript had turned the work over to members of its force more judgment in the selection of subjects and arrangement of the material would have been shown and the articles would have been as reasonable. These 'boom write-ups' serve no good purpose and are not devoted to a presentation of the productions and worth of the community which they pretend to represent. One Riley broke the ice in this section for that class of work many years ago, and he struck the pocket books of his subjects with a master hand. He did it so well that we thought he would never have a successor." [a comment on the "vanity biographies" that were common then]

Paj; 13 Feb 1896; item: "The system under which fruit has been sold here by growers has protected them from the losses so common in other districts. They sell their orchards in the blossom and get the coin therefor before the fruit is ready for market. The losses from pests and winds after the sale or from dishonest commission houses after the shipment do not fall on them. The packer who purchased and paid for the orchard in the spring and who waits nearly 12 months before all of his fruit is sold is the party who has to stand all of the losses. Such a system is not general in any other fruit district of the State, and it would be welcomed with a brass band in the orange districts of the south..."

Paj; 5 Mar 1896; item: "All apple boxes of this district should have a Pajaro valley scene stamped on the head. Advertise the district where the fruit is produced. Paj; 5 Mar 1896; item: "L. G. Sresovich has leased ground at the depot and expects to have a packing house thereon before the opening of the apple season."

Paj; 26 Mar 1896; item: "The orchardists and apple handlers of this valley should join in the movement for a uniform apple package. All the boxes should be of the same size, or there should be a size for each grade of the fruit. There is no doubt that the sale of much of our fruit is injured by the variety of packages in which it is sent to market. Our apples should be packed in white wood boxes so long as the box package is retained, and the heads should be neatly printed with attractive designs of our mountain or valley scenes. Just look at the orange boxes from the southern part of the State. Every one of them bears a neat head, with a scene from the district where the fruit is grown. In this district it would be well to give each section credit for the fruit it produces and have the place where grown printed on the box head. The Pajaro valley apples are among the best produced on this western slope, and with judicious advertising on each package they will get a reputation second to none in the country, and it is reputation that makes a certain market of good prices for any kind of fruit. Poor packing, cheap packages and imperfect fruit will ruin the reputation of the best district in the world. It might not prove a bad idea to have the weight stamped on each box of apples or the number of apples the box contained. This is the course pursued by the orange packers, and is just to the buyer. He is entitled to know the weight of fruit or the number of apples or oranges he gets in a package. These may seem trifling matters but their adoption will not injure the apple business of this valley in any way, and we are confident they would give wider publication of the excellence of our fruit and increase the demand..."

Paj; 15 Oct 1896; item: "The Fruit Exchange and P. N. Lettunich & Co. have made some shipments of apples in a box of new form. It is about the shape of the Oregon apple box, nearly square, and holds 60 large Bellefeurs. It is an attractive size and promises to be a popular one."

Paj; 12 Nov 1896; item: "The Fruit Exchange has adopted a system by which each packer is responsible for his work. The piece system of payment has been adopted—so much per box—each packer has a number, and when his box is packed his number is stenciled on the head. If there is any complaint from point of shipment about the quality of the pack it is easy to locate a poor workman. First-class packing is absolutely required."

Paj; 12 Nov 1896; item: "Heretofor orchards have been purchased by packers when the trees were in blossom; but that system is not speedy enough for some of our shippers, and so they are buying next year's crop before all of this year's crop is picked. Several sales of the 1897 crop are reported, and at good figures, and we are informed that bids have been made for the 1898 crop of some orchards. Apples have a value here. All purchases are at least half cash down at time of sale. Just think of it—paying several hundreds or thousands of dollars for an orchard, and then wait 12 months for any return, and take all the chances on crop failure and gutted markets. A man is a sport who will buy orchards on such margin."

Paj; 12 Nov 1896; item: "L. Opusich has a lot of Romanites which he is trying to hold until next spring. He has them packed in dry sand, and he expects to market them next May. The Romanite is a good seller, is about the best of our late apples, is attractive in color, and of right size for market purposes."

Paj; 12 Nov 1896; item: "M. N. Lettunich & Co. made a shipment this week of 175 half barrels of Newton Pippin apples. They were for the Japan trade, and were on the order of Frank Moran. The apples were packed in sugar barrels, with layers of cork dust. This is the first shipment of apples in barrels made from Watsonville. In the Eastern States apples are packed in no other way. Several shipments of apples for Japan and China have been made from here this season, but former shipments were wrapped and boxed. The result of this shipment is being awaited with much interest by local packers."

Paj; 19 Nov 1896; item: "The case of F. P. Marinovich vs. M. N. Lettunich was on trial before Judge Logan, Monday and Tuesday. Marinovich sued for $10,000 damages for alleged slander. After the testimony was given the defendant's counsel moved for a non-suit, and the motion was granted and the case came to an end. The costs were charged to the plaintiff." [these were boyhood friends who were apparently good friends as adults except for this one circumstance]

Paj; 19 Nov 1896; item: “A northern fruit handler called a Watsonville fruit packer to the telephone a few days ago and told him that he could not handle the last car received—that the fruit had scale. The packer denied the charge and told him he could have the car without charge if he could show a sign of scale on the fruit. It was an effective retort. There was no scale on the fruit, the car was accepted, and it was paid for too. The cries of ‘scale’ and ‘bad condition’ are often used to induce shippers to shade prices. Fruit handlers at central points have no end of schemes to spring on shippers to get them to rebate on prices. Last season a car of apples was shipped from Soquel to a northern point, and a few days later the shipper was wired that the car was rejected and was at his disposal. He was too old a bird to be caught by such a game, and so he took the train and went north to investigate his car. On arrival at destination he found that most of the car had been unloaded and nearly all of the apples had been sold by the firm to which the car had been shipped. Then he dropped in on the firm. He got his coin for the apples, and without rebate...”

Paj; 3 Jun 1897; item: “Rumors have been flying around...that some of the packers were going to default on their summer payments on orchard contracts, and that others are going to sue orchardists for damage done to fruit by spraying with lye solution. Nothing has occurred to verify the default rumors, though there has been some talk of damage suits. The packers with whom we have talked say that it is going to be a losing season with them; that the blossoms this year did not give true promise of the fruit crop to follow; but that they bought in good faith, and if the crop had been immense and prices high they would not expect to increase the sum which they were to pay, and they feel that the remaining payments are due from them and they will meet them like honest men. That is the right kind of talk, and the only kind of talk for men to indulge in who expect to continue in the business. They made bad bargains this year, but they took the chances on the crop and will have to suffer the loss, if any.

“It is yet too early to tell how much they will lose, but it is doubtful if the amounts will run to the figures which have been given. This determination of the packers to meet their contracts is in keeping with their past dealings with our orchardists, and is in accordance with the principles of honorable dealing. That they paid too much for the orchards, even if the season had been a good average, was not due to the orchardists. The packers were in the market to buy, in competition with each other, and they made the prices. The packers who fail to live up to their contracts will not be in it in the future with their contract-honoring rivals—and all the packing firms know this fact, and we are of the opinion that there will not be a case where the payments to fall due are not met. There has been more scare than reality about this rumor. In case of default in payments orchardists yet have the fruit and they have recourse judicially; but when the season has closed you will find that the packers have taken the fruit and have paid therefor."

The fire broke out in the barn to the rear of Rilovich Bro.'s packing house, near the S.P. depot and between Third and Fourth streets. It spread rapidly to the large two-story barn of A. L. Bixby on the Third street side of the Rilovich apple warehouse on the Fourth street side. When the fire department reached the scene the long line of packing houses and barns, extending over half the distance between Third and Fourth streets was ablaze, and it was impossible to do anything except confine the fire to the burning buildings. Fortunately there was no wind, and the work of keeping the fire confined was not a difficult task with the streams the engine was furnishing. Other packing houses, the three-story Railroad Exchange, the depot buildings and many residences were near, and if there had been a breeze the fire would have swept over a large territory. The home of M. Rilovich on Fourth street, was damaged considerably by fire and water, his packing house and 7000 boxes of apples were destroyed, and he lost his barn, winter's hay, four horses, harness, two large fruit wagons and several thousand boxes. His loss will probably aggregate over $9500. His home carried insurance that will cover the residence damage, and he had $3800 on his apples. His net loss will be not less than $5000...The origin of the fire is unknown, but is supposed to have been of an incendiary origin—the work of a firebug."

Upon investigation he found that the bullet had been fired from the outside through the window and had lodged in the wall on the other side of the room and in its passage had not missed him more than 4 inches. Paj; 12 May 1898; article: "Horace W. Day, of the firm of Sgobel & Day, New York, spent three days in Watsonville last week, and met all the fruit shippers and many of the leading orchardists. Day's house is in the business of auctioning deciduous and citrus fruits, and controls the sales on the Erie wharf, New York city. The firm has been in business 28 years, and is the pioneer in selling California fruits in New York city. It annually handles the bulk of the New York shipments from the deciduous fruit districts of Northern California and Oregon and the citrus districts of Southern California. It sells fruit only one way—by auction.

"Mr. Day's attention was attracted to this district by the showing made last year by Pajaro valley Newtown Pippins in the Liverpool and London markets, and on his annual trip to California he took the time to visit the section from which those apples were shipped. He says that nearly 90,000 boxes of California Newtown Pippins were shipped to Great Britain during the season now closing, and the average at which they sold was high—while some sales were phenomenal. The English market wants the best apple that can be furnished, and will not take any other kind. Inferior or poorly graded fruit cannot be sold there, and such shipments are sure to return a loss. The Pajaro Newtown is the strong rival in the English market of the Albermatle Pippin, and as the latter is not a regular bearer, and its district in Virginia is very limited, the Pajaro Newtown has a certainty of a good English market, provided the quality and excellence of grading is maintained. The box package has slowly and surely made its way with the English trade, and is now a favored form. It easily permits of thorough inspection from top, bottom or sides. Poor center fillings can be palmed off in barrels but not in boxes.

"Mr. Day recommends that the name of the packer and the district be printed or stamped on every box of apples sent to the English market, and that the word 'Yellow' be dropped from before 'Newtown.' The buyer in that market wants to know where the fruit came from and by whom it was packed. Of the many carloads sent from this valley last year but a few small lots appeared at London with the names of the packers. On the others the names had been scraped off.

"The four-tier Newtown is what the English trade wants, and its quality can't be too good; and bear in mind there is no market for poor quality fruit. Sgobel & Day do business with packing firms, and their only charge is their auction fee, if sold in New York, or their transfer charge if shipments are made to England. Shipments to the latter country are auctioned by J. Connelly & Son, of Liverpool, or M. Isaacs & Co. of London, and the sale fee goes to either of those firms. They believe that their system guarantees the surest and best net returns to packers, and the shippers will pay only legitimate expenses. Mr. Day left here with the promise of considerable business."

"[in answer to above] A man has to handle more than 25,000 boxes of apples in a season to be an 'apple king' in Santa Cruz county, the leading apple producing county of the Pacific slope. There are two firms in this city each of which expects to handle 150,000 boxes this season, and there are a half dozen firms which will handle over 25,000 boxes each. Paj; 17 Nov 1898; item: "Beloch & Pasetta have purchased the fruit of the Blodgett orchard, near Ben Lomond, for a period of five years."

Paj; 17 Nov 1898; item: "We again urge apple handlers that extreme care be taken in grading and packing. The fruit may sell through a short crop season if poorly graded and packed, but such a condition is apt to permanently destroy the chances for an Eastern or European market. The apple crop of Pajaro valley has to find an outside market. It is too large for the coast trade. To gain and hold a market at any point[,] first quality fruit, carefully packed, must be offered for sale. In a recent number of the California Fruit Grower, John Zucca, a leading fruit handler of Chicago, writes about the poor condition in which Bellefleurs have reached that market. They sold down to $1.25 per box, a sum not sufficient to cover the local f.o.b. price and freight. A correspondent writes us from Chicago relative to some Pajaro apples he purchased there: 'Pajaro valley apples put up the poorest appearance of any apples in the market here. They are green and dirty, with no labels on the boxes in most cases. If they keep on shipping out such poor stuff in such poor style there will soon be no market here. I bought a box for $1.50, and I never saw such a fake. They were marked "extra," and the top and bottom looked fair—but the center was filled with little, green wormy stuff, hardly fit to eat.'

"That is a serious report, one which should awaken every orchardist and fruit handler of Pajaro valley. The apple crop is the most valuable produced in this valley. It will probably amount to not less than $750,000 this season. It is worth keeping up to high grade and value. This valley is largely given over to apple orchards. Any blow or setback to the product thereof not only affects the value of the crop but cuts the value of the orchard and orchard lands..."

Paj; 1 Dec 1898; item: "We are in receipt of another letter from an Eastern city which sharply scores the quality of the Bellefleurs offered from this market. The writer says the top and bottom layers of boxes he saw were good, but the middle layers were made up of trash. That kind of packing will kill the reputation of any fruit district—and on the reputation of our apples depends the orchard investment of our farmers. Your years of labor and the value of your property are involved in this matter of reputation. You are interested in seeing that only good fruit is produced and marketed."

The packing house, which was located at the corner of Third and Locust streets, was owned by Victor Rondot, and was valued at about $400. The contents were several hundred boxes of apples, a lot of box shooks, and 5 tons of prunes...Tomasevich estimates his loss at over $2,000. The insurance is $1,300. The fire was undoubtedly incendiary, but it is going to be difficult to locate the arsonist. The insurance companies should give this fire a close investigation"

It appears that Chukovich, while attending a session of the Austrian-American Benevolent Society, got into a wordy altercation. He left in high temper, and in passing out of the hall attacked the outer guardian, Puhiera. The latter, after recovering from his surprise, gave chase with his official weapon of defense, and Chukovich had to make lively time to escape him. Chukovich had Puhiera arrested for assault."

Paj; 20 Jul 1899, item: "M. N. Lettunich, L. Scurich and G. W. Sill went to San Francisco, Tuesday, to confer with the freight department of the S.P. Co. relative to freight rates on apples. They advocated a straight rate based on actual weight—a fair proposition for shippers and carriers."

Paj; 27 Jul 1899; article: "Last week Messrs. L. Scurich, M. N. Lettunich and G. W. Sill, the committee representing the fruit growers and shippers of Pajaro valley, conferred with General Freight Agent Shepard, of the S.P. Co., relative to a flat weight rate on Eastern apple shipments. Their showing was strong, and Mr. Shepard agreed with them that their claim was meritorious, and that the facts and figures presented bearing on differences in weight of varieties of apples gave a new phase to the question. He was much impressed with the statements of the committee, and assured them that the matter would be immediately submitted to the connecting transcontinental roads and that a conclusion would be reached before the opening of the Bellefleur shipping season. Paj; 12 Oct 1899, item: "P. N. Lettunich & Co. will make a shipment this week, direct to London, of a carload of their Dewey brand of Newtown Pippins. They will be of extra choice stock, carefully wrapped, packed in the best quality boxes, and each package will bear the firm's handsome Dewey label."

Paj; 12 Oct 1899; item: "The apple brushing machine made by Wright Bros. of Riverside, Cal., and placed in M. N. Lettunich & Co.'s packing house...is a great success. It is especially useful in cleaning apples grown by the roadside, or fruit which has been picked in the early morning before the fog has dried. We think the brushing machine is going to be a necessity in packing houses."

Paj; 26 Oct 1899, item: "Jovo Trikovich was arrested last Saturday on a charge of having threatened the life of Vedo Mianovich. They are apple packers, and were employed at the Rilovich packing house."

Paj; 26 Oct 1899; item: "Choice apples carefully packed in clean boxes which bear labels as attractive as those used by P. N. Lettunich & Co. are trade winners. The label of this firm has made a big hit, and traders in California markets now know it and inquire for it. The Pajaro apple deserves attractive packing and labels. It is a good article, and its surroundings should be up to its merit.”

Paj; 2 Nov 1899; item: “We are informed that a car of apples will leave here in a few days for reshipment to Singapore, Asia. The Pajaro apple will soon be a globe trotter. It now reaches more foreign contries than any other American green fruit production.”

Paj; 9 Nov 1899, item: “Geo. Dabelich and J. H. Leonard, of Santa Cruz, were in town Tuesday. Dabelich wanted to find a central location for a restaurant but could not find a vacant room.”

Paj; 16 Nov 1899, item: “The Dewey brand of apples is an active advertiser of Pajaro valley’s best fruit. Reports of them have been heard from different Alaskan, Puget-Sound and Eastern points, and London and Manila will soon be heard from. Fruit put up in attractive packages, like grocery shelf goods which have tasty labels and are in neat packages, will always prove the best sellers. There will be a variety of apple brands next season, and each one will be an advertisement of a packing firm and of Pajaro valley. Individual brands and labels are apt to beget a healthy competition in grading and packing.”

Paj; 16 Nov 1899, item: “J. Castrapelli has handled quite a lot of San Miguel apples, and is shipping out a lot of Newtowns from that section which are beautifully colored. The San Miguel Newtown is a leader for color.”

Paj; 23 Nov 1899, item: “P. N. Lettunich & Co. will ship today in a New York car several boxes of specially selected Newtown Pippins, with the Dewey labels on the boxes. They are to be presented through Sgobel & Day, of New York, to Admiral Dewey and wife, and they will go to one of our country’s most honored citizens. When the Admiral and those apples greet each other it will be a meeting of leaders.”

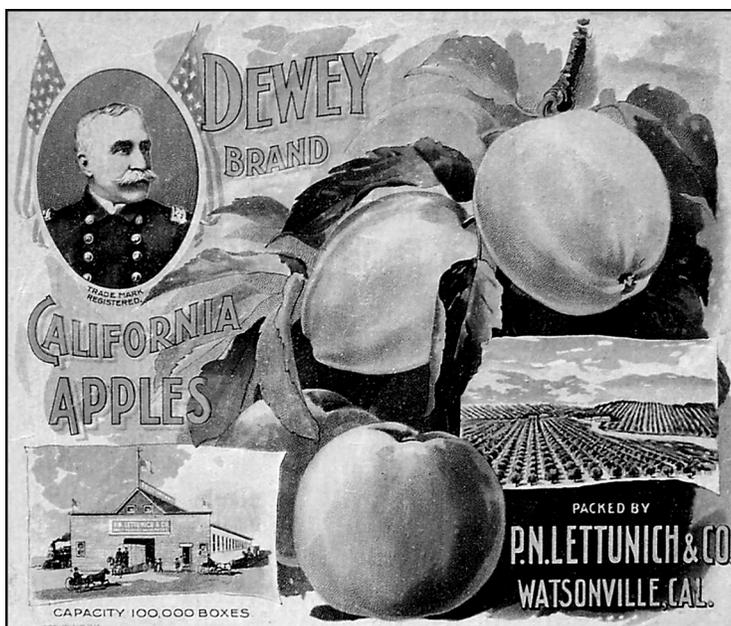

Fig. 1-49. Dewey Brand was the first apple label in the Pajaro Valley. Peter N. Lettunich was a brother of M. N. Lettunich. Peter died in 1904. Also read about this label and packing house under 21 Sept. 1903.

Paj; 28 Dec 1899; obit: “Salinas, Dec. 25th 1899, Johanna Balovich, a native of Syria [sic Austria], aged 10 years, 6 months and 21 days.”

Paj; 28 Dec 1899, item: “Last month P. N. Lettunich & Co. sent a box of Newtown Pippins for Admiral Dewey in a car which was shipped to New York. In due time the box reached the Admiral’s home in Washington, and...he acknowledged its receipt in the following words: ‘Please accept my thanks for...the box of apples which you sent me through your New York agents, and which have just been received. George Dewey.’ There were no ‘strings’ on that offering to the Admiral; they were for himself and family—and having once sampled Pajaro valley apples they will want them again. Like the brave Admiral they are leaders.”

[*Comment on ad on p. 7: “Nothing but White Help Employed.”

At this time in history there was much unrest in Watsonville concerning the “Oriental labor problem.” This had to do with white men complaining that the Orientals were undercutting them in the labor market. Much pressure was put on merchants in town to hire only white help; they would often be boycotted if they didn’t. Many merchants chose to put this phrase in their ads.]

Paj; 4 Jan 1900; item: “The State Board of Health has notified the County Recorders of this State that a complete record of deaths must be kept hereafter. There is a law which requires that nurses and doctors shall report each birth to the Recorder of the county in which such birth occurs. The law is always observed in the case of a birth of a child to Chinese parents, but is very seldom observed in the case of the birth of white children. The observance of this law should be strictly enforced.”

SJ Mercury News; 19 Jan 1900; obit: “Marko Rabasa, a pioneer of California, has passed away...He was born in 1827 in Janjina, Dalmatia, Austria, and left there when he was 16 years of age. Nine years were spent on the sea. In 1851 he came to San Francisco. For a short time he worked in the mines, and then took up his residence in San Jose. For several years he engaged in the fruit business, and was an extensive buyer and shipper. Two years ago he was taken ill and sold his business to L. G. Susovich [Sresovich] & Co. His death occurred at the residence of John Jasprizza. He was a member and organizer of the Slavonian Benevolent Society of San Francisco, and the Austrian Benevolent Society of San Jose, and was also an Odd Fellow. The funeral will take place from the Jasprizza residence 121 Santa Teresa street... Services at St. Josephs Church. Interment Calvary Cemetery.” [Jasprica was Rabasa’s mother’s maiden name; likely John Jasprizza was a cousin] day, was conducted under the auspices of the American [sic Austrian] Benevolent Society, of which he was a member. There were also present 14 members and officers of the Slavonian Benevolent Society of San Francisco of which organization Rabassa was a charter member. His name was the first on the charter roll at the organization of the society in the Bay City in 1857, forty-three years ago. Mr. Rabassa came to California in 1851, and after successfully engaging in the fruit business as a buyer and shipper, he retired a few years ago with a competence. Besides being a prominent member of the Austrian Benevolent Society of San Jose, he was also an Odd Fellow and a number of his fellow members in the latter order also attended the funeral. It was from the residence of John Jasprizza at 221 Santa Teresa street, where he passed away. The procession was led by the Fifth Regiment Band, President N. Varesich and members of the Austrian Benevolent Society, wearing mourning badges...The pallbearers were M. Miocevich, L. Matusich, J. Miglias, P. Svetinich, A. Sorich, F. Barticevich, M. Drobaz and M. Kresaglia."

Paj; 25 Jan 1900; obit: "Marco Rabasa, the pioneer apple packer of Pajaro valley, died at San Jose last Thursday and was buried on Sunday. He came here about 20 years ago, and was the first buyer of Pajaro apple crops. He was located at the Blackburn orchard for several years. His success in handling fruit, together with the prices he paid for orchards, did very much to promote the rapid growth of apple orchard planting in this valley. Up to the time he took hold of the business of apple marketing apple orchards were considered of such small value in this district that some had been abandoned and the planting of new orchards was infrequent. His success attracted other packing firms to this valley, and now the growing and marketing of apples is the foremost branch of the farming interests of this section. Ill health compelled Mr. Rabassa's retirement from active business two years ago, and he moved to San Jose. He was a man whose word did not have to be secured by bonds or contracts. He lived up to his agreements, and he took his losses as gamely as if they had been profits. He was proud of the fact that he was a pioneer Californian, and that he had been an effective worker in aiding the growth of California's fruit interests...Marco Rabasa had many friends in Pajaro valley, and his death is very much regretted by them. He was a native of Dalmatia, Austria, and was 73 years old. He came to California 50 years ago...He leaves a nephew, Chris Rabasa."

Paj; 25 Jan 1900; item: "An interesting case, growing out of apricot sales last season, was partially heard by Judge Hawkins...Last summer Scurich Bros. contracted with the Cutting Co., which was succeeded by the California Canneries Co., to deliver a lot of apricots in San Francisco at an agreed price. The cots were sent but the money did not come in return. Scurich Bros. drew for the amount and got nothing except a notice that the fruit was not up to sample and had been turned over to Gould & Jaudin for sale for the account of Scurich Bros., and that the commission firm would settle. As the contract was with the Cutting Co. or its successors, and the fruit was considered by the shippers as being up to grade, and as nothing had been heard from Gould & Jaudin, suit was commenced by Scurich Bros...The testimony showed that the fruit had been turned down by the cannery and had been given to Gould & Jaudin for sale, and then had been sold back to the cannery. It was not considered good enough when received, but was good enough after it had been placed on the market. This was quite a revelation of methods for purchase of produce at depressed prices. Gould & Jaudin did not show a canceled check in favor of Scurich Bros. to cover the transaction, but did introduce a checkbook stub to set up that a check had been sent. The stub is a curio, and would be a good thing for the examination of Kytka or some expert on writing. The stub is not now in its original condition, and looks as if it had been erased and written over. The case is to be submitted on briefs."

Paj; 22 Mar 1900; item: “250 barrels of Pajaro valley apples—about 800 boxes—have been collected by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture at Eastern cold storage points and have been shipped to Paris as a portion of the apple exhibit of the United States. Each apple was carefully selected for color, size and soundness, and was wrapped in wax paper before packing. Those apples will do valuable missionary service at Paris for California and Pajaro valley. They will speak for themselves, and we all know they can successfully stand any comparison or competition. Much praise is due the Dept. of Agriculture for its service to California in hunting up and procuring these apples. Our State Commissioners paid no heed to our apples and the trade they were winning in Europe, and but for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture Pajaro valley apples would not be shown at the Paris Exposition.”

During the past month over 60 new subscribers were added to the list, making a total of over 200 phones. Two new rural lines will also be put in—one to Green Valley and another to Vega. A line to Chittendens is also contemplated, and with the addition of a few more subscribers, which are promised, the new line will soon be an accomplished fact. The local central office force is kept busy, and two linemen are engaged in transforming the present system of five-phone circuits into what is known as the ‘magneto express’ system, or 10 phones to the circuit, instead of five. Under the new form there will be a red and black side to the circuit, and the subscribers, while being directly connected with nine other phones on the same line, can ring up any number on either of the two sides without disturbing or causing the phones of the opposite color to ring.”

The defendant contracted for the purchase of apricots from the plaintiff for $45 a ton, but turned 54 boxes over to a San Francisco commission firm, which sold them for $20. Defendant claimed they were not of the quality contracted for. Judge Smith in giving judgment to the plaintiff for the entire amount sued for says the defendant had no right to transfer the fruit without giving notice to the plaintiff of rejection of the fruit or its contemplated sale.”

Paj; 17 May 1900; item: “There are a number of orchards in this district which have not been sold to packers, and the outlook now is that these owners will have to pick, pack and sell their apples. Each orchardist should be prepared to handle his apple crop. The item of labor is going to prove a vexatious one to solve. It offers a good opening for the labor of women and children and the hop field laborers might be diverted to the orchards after the hop season is over. The time is coming, and it is not far off, when the ownership of an orchard in this valley will demand from each owner personal management of the work of picking, packing and marketing. The southern orange growers had to come to it, and the apple growers of Pajaro valley will have a like experience. The apple business here is reaching such a magnitude that it can not be entirely handled in all its phases by packing firms.”

Paj; 24 May 1900; item: “A gentleman was in this city last week who at times during the past winter attended the sales of Pajaro valley apples at Covent Garden, London. He witnessed the thorough examination of boxes by the buyers before a sale—the sides of the boxes being taken off, the apples unwrapped, and the fruit closely examined. If the apples show poor grading or decay—in fact if they are not up to a high standard—all of the boxes bearing a brand of the examined boxes are sold at shaded prices. One box of bad apples spoils the sale of an entire shipment. Then there is a guarantee of quality with each sale, and if the dealers who buy at auction or from jobbers find that the apples are not up to the sample boxes shown they return their purchases to the auction firm and the latter has to refund the money paid. Apples are sold in Great Britain for what they are, and they have to be the best to bring good prices. If we are to retain the English market for our apples the greatest care possible must be taken in grading and packing. It is of utmost interest to orchardists and packers to see that it is done.”

Paj; 31 May 1900; item: “Box labels will be used this fall by all of the big apple packing firms. The labels are in colors, and as attractive as the most fetching orange labels. Paj; 31 May 1900; article: “Horticultural Commissioners Dakin and Rodgers visited the local packing houses... and made an examination of packing boxes and the premises for codlin moth and other fruit pests. They did not find enough pests at any house to warrant a condemnation of boxes. Hereafter they will make the inspection visits earlier in the spring, and in the case of the discovery of pests they will insist upon the most effective methods being used for the destruction of the pests and the disinfection of the packing houses. They did not find the packing houses open, but they found ways to examine all they visited except one place where they were refused admission. The Commissioners are in consultation with the District Attorney in this matter, and it is probable that a test case will be brought against the resisting packer. The penalty for refusal to permit inspection of packing houses...is heavy, and the packer who refused entrance to his place of business committed a serious offense. The Horticultural Commissioners of Santa Cruz county are doing the most praiseworthy work for the improvement of orchard interests and for the maintenance of the highest reputation for our apples, and their efforts should have the earnest co-operation of each packer and fruit grower of this county. Their work is not of a pleasing character, it is a service which demands sound judgment and an inflexible backbone—and the Commissioners have shown that they have these requirements. Encourage and help them; and by so doing you help yourself.”

Paj; 25 Oct 1900; item: “Ed Martin, of Santa Cruz, was in this city last Saturday as a referee in bankruptcy to hear one of the many phases of the Banaz insolvency case. This one involved the claim of Doris to an orchard which Banaz had purchased. The day before[,] Mr. Martin was in San Francisco to hear the testimony of commission merchants who had been handling Banaz’s apples. The purpose of this examination was to learn the amount of business which they had done with Banaz within three months before his application in insolvency was filed, and to ascertain if they had not been treated as preferred creditors. These firms had made advances to him in his business, but they did not file claims as creditors, preferring to lose what might be owing them rather than take a chance on paying back what they had received and then come in for their share of the dividends of the assets. The Banaz insolvency case is one of the most important which has come before the U. S. District Court of California, and it has so many complications of interests that it is apt to be taken to the U. S. Supreme Court on some of the many points which have arisen. The amount involved is large enough to permit an appeal to the highest court of the country, and it is the first one in this jurisdiction, so we are informed, that is of sufficient value to permit an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court on the vexed point whether a creditor can make a choice of accepting payments made within three months prior to insolvency as full payment of all claims he may have against the insolvent, or whether those payments must be returned and his full claim treated as a debt due from the insolvent's estate. The District and Circuit courts have decided that a creditor can take his option; that if he withdraws his claims against the insolvent's estate he will not have to pay back the sums which he was paid on account within three months prior to the insolvency; but if he files a claim for the balance due he must return the moneys paid him within the period of three months before the date of filing the petition in insolvency. It is claimed that if all the money which Banaz paid out within three months before going into insolvency was paid back[,] the dividend to all the creditors would be much larger than now appears in sight. The Banaz insolvency case promises to become a 'celebrated case' and may be before the courts for many years."

Paj; 1 Nov 1900; item: "What the orchardists and fruit shippers of California most need is an expedited freight service; a schedule service if it is possible. Thirteen and 14 days to Chicago, 15 and 16 days to New York and 18 and 20 days to Boston are absurdly long periods for the transportation to market of fruit. In no other section of the country is fruit grown that could 'stand up' after such a journey. That point, however, is not the question. One of the big sources of revenue for the railroad is found in the movement of fruit and shippers have a right to expect a prompt and reasonably quick service. They are getting anything but that now. They are receiving almost any old freight time that happens along. Cars have arrived in the East this summer and fall, the contents of which have been overripe because of the unnecessary time on the road and in consequence have sold at ridiculously low prices. Scores of thousands of dollars have been lost to California people this season because of the miserably slow service.—California Fruit Grower."

This list does not include small additions and houses, barns and packing houses costing less than $800. Paj; 10 Jan 1901; item: "There is little or no inquiry at present among packers for orchards for 1901. The past two years have not been profitable to packers, and they have a very conservative feeling about the coming crop. European sales have not been very favorable this winter, owing to two causes—the heavy shipments from Canadian and Eastern districts of choice apples, and the condition of our apples on arrival at English markets. The buyer in Great Britain who pays from three to five cents apiece for apples wants first class stock. He can buy trash at home for nearly nothing. It takes select stock, free from all blemishes, and perfectly clean, to meet with ready sale in European markets, and the sooner growers and packers of Pajaro valley recognize these facts the better it will be for them and this section.

"The results of the past two seasons' shipments to Europe have been damaging to the apple growing interests of Pajaro valley. Orchardists should recognize the seriousness of this situation. If Pajaro apples lose a profitable standing in foreign markets the Newtown Pippin orchards of this section will be of poor value. The only profitable market for this variety of apple is in Europe. Our growers will have to take more of a personal interest in every detail of the apple business from the time the tree is planted until the matured fruit is marketed...Pests will have to be fought persistently and continuously if markets are to be retained. The Eastern orchardist has awakened to this fact, and he is fighting for the preservation of his orchard investments and is battling for supremacy in foreign markets. The Oregon apple grower is doing the same things.

"Mr. Olwell, one of the prosperous orchardists of that State, who was here last week, informed us that he sprayed the trees of his 160-acre orchard six times each year, and saved 98% of his fruit. He also uses fruit brushes when packing, and ships only clean fruit. Because of this care his Newtowns brought him 48 cents per box more than Pajaro Newtowns in England—and yet Pajaro Newtowns have been the market leaders in England up to this season. Apple growing and marketing is a business which, to be successful, must be conducted on legitimate lines marked by fair and square dealing from start to finish. The apples must be right—they must be clean of dirt and dust and free from pests; the boxes must be bright and new, and not soiled and weather-beaten. Anything less than high standard care of orchards and rules in packing will certainly, within a very short time, ‘kill the goose which has laid golden eggs’ for Pajaro valley orchardists. We do not want to seem to be an alarmist, but the situation demands that the truth be told.”

“The man is insane and his muderous assault was unprovoked. The screams of woman attracted several men to the scene and murder was prevented...She was seriously injured.

While apple crops have been sold that way in the past there are not a half score of orchards in this valley contracted for this season; they have not been sold to commission merchants—the buying has been by local firms of fruit packers, some of whom owned orchards; and there has been but one Chinaman in the apple handling business in this valley, and instead of being an extensive buyer he was one of the smallest—and he found his experience so unprofitable last year that he has no intention of expanding his fruit business, and may go out of it this year."

Paj; 11 Apr 1901; item: "Apple shippers, as well as shippers of stone and citrus fruits, are debating about selling on a f.o.b. basis when collections are not made until the point of destination is reached. When a car of fruit reaches a point one or more thousand miles from here, and payment has to be made after inspection of fruit, the condition of the market at the point of arrival at that time quite often governs the action of the buyer, and not the price on which he agreed. If the market has dropped and the supply of fruit on hand is large it is very easy for the consignee to find some flimsy excuse on which to base a rejection. Then the shipper is at his mercy, unless he can find a good market elsewhere—something not easy for a distant shipper to find. The man who bought the car of fruit will then work for a reduction in price, and quite often he gets it. The fruit is perishable, is expensive to move, the shipper is too far away to personally manage the sale, and the sharp purchaser gets it at a price below the f.o.b. contract. The Eastern and Californian fruit firms which have been represented here by agents have paid genuine f.o.b. prices—cash when the car was loaded and accepted; and that is the Simon-pure and satisfactory way of f.o.b. selling, and with rigid and guaranteed inspection of fruit here straight f.o.b. sales can be assured."

Paj; 13 Jun 1901; article: “A Day in a California Fruit Orchard. Apples are sold in the San Francisco market from Pajaro valley. I recently made a trip to that section and got off the train at Gilroy...I next visited Watsonville and the home of Charles Rodgers who grows apples and hops. This is an apple country without any question. I saw more apples to the acre than I ever dreamed of seeing. The growers of this vicinity usually sell their apples on the trees, getting a lump sum for the crop. Mr. Rodgers said he sold his crop one year before the blossoms appeared on the trees and got something more than $100 per acre, half cash down and the remainder before the purchaser commenced to gather the fruit.

“The apples grown here are confined to a very few varieties. The Yellow Newtown Pippin is leader; the Yellow Bellefleur comes next, with a few others trailing behind. I visited this valley Oct. 22d, and the orchardists were in the midst of gathering their crop of winter apples. The fruit is picked by means of ladders, sorted and put into baskets or buckets with great care. It is then put into apple boxes, which are hauled to the fruit house in spring wagons. When it is to be sold the fruit is sorted and packed, each apple being fitted into its particular place. There is no weather here cold enough to freeze the fruit, so that this trouble does not have to be guarded against.

“California fruits as a rule keep wonderfully well, and our apples are no exception. It was a surprise to me to know that California apples are sent to the eastern part of the United States and even to Europe. The reason that this valley is such a wonderful apple country results from the fact that the soil has more or less adobe in it and that this in common with the alluvial deposit gives a large amount of plant food and yet permits good drainage. The climate is also very favorable and the trees are very thrifty.—A. L. Bancroft in Orange-Judd Farmer.”

'The codlin moth (Carpocapsa pomonella) has been a pest probably ever since apples were created, and although Adam registered no "kick," records mention complaint against this insect as far back as 200 years B.C. It was introduced into the United States from Europe soon after the first settlements were founded. In 1874 it appeared in California and was first observed in Pajaro valley about the year 1877. Doubtless it was brought into our valley from San Jose in old fruit boxes by the pioneer fruit packers, Rabasa & Sresovich. This insect is here to stay, and while we cannot hope to exterminate it, there are means by which we may be able to hold it in check. To successfully combat this pest it will require the united action and co-operation of all connected with the fruit industry—the packer as well as the grower. Before we can intelligently proceed to apply the remedy it is necessary that we should know something of the habits of the insect, and it is well to explain these characteristics briefly here...[omitted]"

Paj; 18 Jul 1901; item: "The resident packers are falling into line in the new departure in the buying of apples by weight and not by blossom showing. The weight system is fair to both parties and to the apple growing business. The shipper pays for what he gets, and he does not have to invest a small fortune in his business four or six months before there is a chance for returns; and the grower gets a good return for what his orchard produces. The element of chance or 'gamble' is stricken from the business by the weight system of buying."

Paj; 18 Jul 1901; item: "The Pajaro valley is the only apple growing district in the United States which shows up, year after year, with a good crop. This district has never had an apple crop failure. It always has apples for shipment to State, Eastern and foreign markets; and its annual average production of apples per acre is probably the greatest of any section on the globe. Certainty of an apple crop and the choice quality of the fruit make the apple orchards of Pajaro valley as stable income producers as the best orange groves in the choicest citrus districts of Southern California.

"The Pajaro valley export apple business has been conducted almost entirely on a cash basis. The amount of consigned fruit has been very light each year, and the packers know by experience that f.o.b. sales for cash is the only reliable way to do business. They pay cash for the fruit, and they want and should have cash for the fruit when it is delivered in good condition to the railroad company. The buyers who will pay legitimate cash prizes for apples will do the bulk of the local apple buying this year. Apples are good value this year and they will be quick sellers."

Paj; 25 Jul 1901; article: “Fumigation Law Upheld. The recent decision by the Supreme Court sustaining the constitutionality of the fruit inspection law of 1897 in a case brought from Riverside county is one of great importance to the fruit interests of the State. Under this law, which provides that when an orchardist whose trees are infested with scale refuses to fumigate them the Horticultural Commission may do the work and make him pay the costs. The Commissioners fumigated the orchard of Alfred Butcher and rendered him a bill for $157, which he refused to pay. Suit was brought in the Superior Court to enforce payment and it resulted in a decision by the Judge in favor of the defendant. The case was taken to the Supreme Court on appeal, and now that court has reversed the decision of the lower court and sustained the validity of the law. If the bill and costs of the suit are not paid by the defendant his orchard may be sold to satisfy the judgment.

“This is a very important decision, since it establishes the power of the State to compel orchardists to keep their trees free of pests and sustains the practical confiscation of the orchards if necessary to accomplish this end. Much of the failure to eradicate insect pests from an orchard district is the result of the failure of a few growers to give their trees the necessary attention. This neglect not only causes loss to the neglectful grower himself, but to all his neighbors and to the State as a whole, because of the effect upon fruit both as to quality and quantity. In such cases drastic measures are the only effective ones, and these have always been opposed on the ground that the State has no right to invade the private property of individuals nor to confiscate it. Even the condemnation of infected fruit in the markets or in transit is opposed on the same ground, that a person cannot be deprived of his property without due process of law. The decision of the Supreme Court will do much to promote the strict enforcement of the laws we have and to create a public sentiment in favor of still more effective ones.—San Jose Mercury.”

The boxes are usually made of one-half inch stuff for the top, bottom and sides, and thicker stuff for the ends. The size is the proper one for American shippers to adopt for the English market, as it will hold 56 lbs. net of apples, or one bushel as near as possible. All the best apples in England are sold by the standard hundredweight, which would mean two of these boxes, or 112 lbs. Of course apples are still sold in barrels, but they are always classed as cheaper apples and sold to a poorer class of trade. The past season was a very good one in England, and satisfactory prices were realized by shippers.—A. S. Baker, Managing Director Southampton Cold Storage and Lairage Co., Ltd., England.”

It is going to take a large number of laborers to pick, haul and pack the apple crop. "President Rodgers read a report of his work as Horticultural Commissioner from the date of his appointment up to the present time. It was listened to with rapt attention, and judging from the comments heard after the meeting Mr. Rodgers' able report will result in vast benefit to the orchard industry of this valley..."

"We append Mr. Rodgers' report and would advise that it should be carefully read by everyone who is interested in any way in the orchard industry of this valley:

"In 1899 a number of our orchardists, becoming alarmed at the rapid increase of insect pests which threatened the destruction of our leading industry, petitioned our Supervisors to appoint a Board of Horticultural Commissioners. Pursuant to this petition, and in accordance with law, the Supervisors appointed three Commissioners. The Commission effected an organization in the summer of that year.

"At this meeting after discussing existing conditions, it was decided to proceed in a conservative way; to institute an educational campaign; to use argument and persuasion; to place in the hands of the orchardists available literature bearing on the eradication of pests. It was decided not to use coercion or enforcement of the law, except as a last resort—when all other means had failed.

"One of the first acts of the Board was to publish and mail to every fruit grower in this county a list of formulas for mixing the different sprays and washes recommended by the State Board of Horticulture and the Agricultural Department of the University of California. Accompanying this was an address to orchardists warning them against the encroachment of pests and the danger of neglect on the part of the grower. This address also stated that the Commissioners had but one object in view—that of the advancement of the interests of the fruit industry. Later bulletins, bearing on the eradication of pests, and issued by the State Board of Horticulture, were distributed. In the meantime our local papers, the Pajaronian and Register, were printing everything that they thought to be of value to the orchardist. Their columns were free to anyone who could give anything that would be of interest to the industry. Great credit is due these papers for the interest they have manifested in the welfare of the industry. I hope their good work has been fully appreciated.

"Next came an inspection of the orchards. Pajaro Supervisory district was found to contain 438 commercial orchards with an aggregate of 626,500 fruit trees, on an area of upward of 9000 acres. Of this amount over 7200 acres are planted to apples, one half of which are in bearing. This estimate does not include that portion of Pajaro Valley which is in Monterey county..."

"While many of the orchardists were found to be well informed and alive to the necessity of clean trees, good pruning and cultivation, a great number were found to be very indifferent as to the care of their orchards and were doing nothing toward pest fighting—depending upon Providence and climate to do it for them. Others were found who were destroying every insect possible—the most beneficial as well as the injurious.

"Your Commissioner received the most courteous treatment from the great majority of growers. A very few felt that it was nobody's business how their orchards were taken care of. Many days were spent in argument, exhortation, explanation and persuasion—pointing out the necessity of keeping our orchards free of pests, aiming to impress upon each grower that he was vitally interested in the welfare of each orchard in the district—that the life of the fruit industry in our valley depended upon sending out clean fruit, honestly packed. Much time was spent in pointing out the injurious and the beneficial insects, explaining how to eradicate the first and how to encourage and protect the latter..."

"The first open hostility of importance shown to the work of the Horticultural Commissioner was on the part of the Slavonian apple buyers. Early in May 1900, the Board sent a polite notice to each packing firm stating that an inspection of its packing house would be made on May 8th, and requesting that a member of the firm be present during the inspection. When the day arrived and the Commissioners started on their tour of inspection they found each enclosed packing house locked, and each one which was not enclosed had a lock placed in a conspicuous place on the front of the building; and most of the places were deserted. The Commissioners learned that day that a conspiracy had been formed by these people to prevent the inspection and defy the laws of the State. In some instances doors had to be forced. In every instance except one, where anyone was found around these packing houses, we were either met with a challenge or with gruff protests against the inspection.

“Our position has been impressed upon these people, and some of them are beginning to realize that a crusade against pests in their packing houses, as well as in the orchards, is to their advantage. But some of the packing firms continue to show hostility to the Commissioners in their official work, and the instructions of the Commission and the plain provisions of the law are not acquiesced in readily by these protesting packers. The Commissioners are empowered to inspect orchards, nurseries, packing houses, storerooms, or any other place where fruit is grown, and also the fruit grown, stored or on sale, and if found infested with scale insects or codlin moth, or other injurious pests, to have the owner of the property or fruit destroy the pests. All places so infested can be declared a public nuisance and be condemned. If the owner does not destroy the pests and abate the nuisance the Commissioners can do it and the cost thereof will be a lien on the property, and the property can be sold to satisfy it. The Supreme Court has affirmed this law repeatedly. This law is for the protection of the interests of fruit growers, and it must be observed by those who buy and handle our fruits...The Commissioners have no wish to harass the fruit packers. They want to see them prosper and continue to do well. But they do not intend to permit the destruction of the reputation of our orchards and the value of the fruit industry through noncompliance with law. The packers will not be called down by the Commissioners except for good cause...

“Realizing that public sentiment is above and beyond law, also that for any movement toward the public good there must be first of all organization, a few who realized the predicament of our industry met and organized the Orchardists’ Association. This society now numbers about 125 of the leading and most progressive orchardists of this community. Its membership should be 700. The object of this Association is for the discussion of all subjects pertaining to the fruit industry—for the education and enlightenment of the orchardist. It is for the purpose of unionizing and banding together the individual orchardists for the mutual good and protection of all...

“As to packing, every buyer from abroad bitterly complains that it is next to impossible to secure an honest pack of apples in Watsonville. And we have been repeatedly warned that if there is not a reform on the part of our packers our business will suffer. Numerous instances are cited in which our apples have been turned down and we have lost our prestige in some of the leading markets. Since there is such a great demand for apples this year I look for a poorer pack than usual. The law authorizes a Commissioner to appoint Fruit Inspectors. If the character of the packing is not up to grade, and the Orchardists’ Association makes a request therefor, Inspectors selected by the association will be appointed to carefully watch the grading and packing in the apple houses, and they will be instructed to rigidly enforce the laws against all infested fruits. The orchardists of Pajaro valley have years of labor and enormous investments of capital at stake each year in the character of the apple pack of this valley—and it must not be depreciated through dishonest methods in packing.

“Gentlemen, these conditions are wrong and are doing the greatest injury not only to us but to the packers themselves. Are we still going to dream on in the face of repeated warnings from every market in the world and from every outside buyer who does business in our town and allow these conditions to continue? Do the people, the intelligence of this community, you who have paid large prices for your land and struggled hard to pay for it—toiled and waited many long years to bring your orchards into a condition whereby you may receive a remuneration—I say do you propose to still sleep on and allow stupidity, ignorance, short-sightedness to take the cream, and when that is all skimmed off see him pack up his grip and move on leaving you the sour milk—an encumbrance on your hands?

“Fellow orchardists what are we going to do about it? Some will say we can do nothing. By following one course we can do anything. Here is the solution. Organize. Bring every orchardist in the valley into our association. Public sentiment alone will do much toward correcting this evil. Start a campaign and clamor for honest packing and never cease clamoring until we get it. By unionizing we could refuse to sell to the dishonest packer.

“Again, as a body let us petition those outside firms who are handling hundreds of carloads of our fruit to come to Watsonville and establish packing houses. They have plenty of capital and plenty of brains. Through intimations from some of them I am confident that they will come if we give them the proper encouragement. As they are the distributors we would then get an honest pack and our industry would flourish in consequence. In the event that those firms should establish packing houses here we might expect higher prices also. Do you know that we received only from 10 cents to 25 cents per box for apples on the tree? These men are satisfied to pay for those apples from 75 cents to $1.00 per packed box...

“Remember that but one half our trees are in bearing and a large acreage is being added yearly. With our present output our packers have reached their limit in the amount which they can handle. They have neither the business capacity nor can they get the necessary credit with which to handle our fruit five years hence.

“The rapid increase of the production of our orchards will soon cause the apple handling business to be of such a great volume in this valley that orchardists, for their own protection, may have to pick, pack and dispose of their own crops as do the apple growers of all other states than California. We should be prepared for such a change. The local packing firms cannot handle the increasing business. They are now so cramped for men and facilities for handling the crop there is a large loss of apples each year in the orchards—and that loss falls on the grower as the buyer estimates the value of an orchard on the number of packed boxes it has produced.

“Apples grown in other districts are brought here and packed and sold as Pajaro valley apples. This should cease...

“The codlin moth is the cause of the greatest loss to our packers and orchardists. Last year 25% of our apples were unmarketable. At present we have no remedy for the complete extermination of this insect. I am satisfied that most of the worms pass the winter in the packing and apple drying houses, and in houses where cider and vinegar are made...Each house where apples are kept in quantity should be made moth-tight and kept closed during the months of April, May and June...By energy, agitation, unionization, and co-operation these needed reforms can be brought about.

“At one of our first meetings last year your Commissioner laid before the members the enormity of the problem which confronts the Commissioner and the orchardist. You remember that it was explained that your Commissioner could not and would not attempt to bring about much needed reform without the active, energetic, outspoken support and co-operation of a majority of the leading growers of this valley, explaining also that no law is effectual without popular support, and at the same time promising to use my best efforts along with you in every way possible toward the betterment of our industry.

“You remember the resolution passed and the pledge signed by every member of the association to do all in his power toward the advancement of our industry, to support your Commissioner in the fulfillment of his duties. Acting upon assurances given me by you I have conscientiously at all times put forth my best efforts to fulfill my promise to you...Petty prejudices and jealousies have not and shall not swerve me in the performance of my official duties...

“How many orchardists have shown the least enthusiasm in the movement to protect the industry? How many of them have taken the trouble to raise their voices in warning...? I don't doubt your loyalty, but the support which I have received for some months has seemed to be negative. There are a few who have proven themselves “true as steel” and to those I wish to say that their interest has been fully appreciated. I am willing to work with you and willing also to do more than my share, but don't expect me to carry the whole burden...Although it has not been advertised to the world the work of your Commissioner has on many occasion's been very trying. Dealing with prejudice, ignorance, stupidity, selfishness and mulishness is hard work and has required in numerous instances notices to be served threatening prosecution before such characters would submit to reason. At such times the lack of vigorous outspoken public sentiment is felt by your Commissioner.

“I have no desire to hold office but it is imperative that somebody shall lead in this work. If you will select someone that you can support more heartily than me I will cheerfully resign in favor of the one selected. On the other hand if you feel that my efforts are advancing our interests I am willing to continue, provided that the majority of the leading orchardists put themselves on record in a declaration of determination to stand firm, and never cease clamoring until public sentiment shall whip into line the short-sighted and moss-back. The work of the Commissioner would then be a pleasant duty and the requirements of the law easily executed.

“If I, as Horticultural Commissioner and President of this Association cannot impress upon our orchardists the necessity of standing together for the advancement of their own interests, cannot enthruse them, cannot stimulate them into action, then I shall feel that my efforts are futile and that I am a failure, and shall consider it my duty to step down and out.’

“A. N. Judd moved that a committee of three be appointed to draw up resolutions endorsing the report of the Horticultural Commissioner, that the resolution and report be printed and circulated, and that the orchardists of the valley be requested to endorse the same over their signatures. The motion prevailed, and A. N. Judd, Peter Lauritzen and H. C. Peckham were appointed as such committee.”

Either the apples did not arrive in good condition or the London market will not take those varieties. The apples sold for an average of about $1.30 a box—which means a loss of the cost of the apples to the shipper...this trial is discouraging, and we regret that Mr. Marinovich’s nery trial of the London market was not more successful. The suit of Yoris to recover on a chattel mortgage given by Banaz is before the U. S. District Court, and has been for a year past. With it out of the way the Banaz estate will be in shape for settlement. This case is to be brought up speedily, and after it is decided a settlement of the Banaz estate (there is over $3,000 on hand) will follow. Owing to the decision in this case (and which ruling in other cases has been confirmed by the U.S. Supreme Court) that persons having received payments on account within 90 days before the debtor was declared insolvent have the choice of returning the payments made or withdrawing their claims, the list of the Banaz creditors is apt to be cut about 75 per cent. The estate is too small to justify the large creditors in paying back.”

If the packing firms could get that frontage including the Roudot corner, it would comfortably locate about all the firms in the business here, and give a chance for switches which would save time and lessen the cost of handling fruit, and at the same time settle the important question of depot facilities. The movement of the fruit packers along Walker street opens a way for the settlement of the question of freight yard enlargement."

Paj; 24 Apr 1902; article: "The Cannery Question... The need of a cannery in Pajaro valley has long been felt and has been thoroughly discussed from time to time, but not until recently did the movement assume tangible form. That the people of this community need and will have a cannery in the near future is a foregone conclusion. The meeting of business men, orchardists and berry growers at the Board of Trade rooms last Saturday afternoon definitely settled that question. Jas. Hopkns, chairman of the cannery committee, called the meeting to order and reviewed its subject...M. N. Lettunich spoke in favor of a cannery by local capital and believed the proposition would prove a financial success. G. W. Rowe and A. N. Judd expressed themselves in similar terms...As canned goods cannot be inspected until the cans are opened, M. N. Lettunich believed in canning only the best quality of fruits, as they must sell according to brand, and a standard brand article would soon merit and establish a standing in the markets. In the matter of selecting a suitable name for the proposed corporation a number of names were suggested, but the one finally decided upon was 'Watsonville Canning Company,' proposed by M. N. Lettunich, and endorsed by A. N. Judd...The name was adopted unanimously...Two styles of forms were drawn up for the purpose of soliciting funds. One was for straight donations. The other was for subscribing for shares of stock. The following committee, which is in itself a guarantee of the success of the undertaking, was appointed to canvass the valley with the documents...: C. O. Silliman, G. W. Rowe, M. N. Lettunich, A. N. Judd, Chas. Smith, Wm. McGowan, Chris Mann, Jas. Waters, J. S. Menasco, S. Scurich, M. B. Tuttle and Jas. Griffin..."

It is [conservatively] estimated that at least 300 carloads of fruit, corn, live stock and other farm products will be shipped from that point this season. With a reasonable season next year the shipments are expected to reach 500 carloads."

Paj; 22 May 1902; article: “...There will be pests to cope with and vigilance is the price that must be paid for good fruit. A successful winter spray, consisting of lime, sulphur and salt, has cleared Pajaro valley orchards of San Jose scale and other pests, but the codlin moth, woolly aphis and canker worm have not as yet been mastered. The main excuse to be offered for their presence is the lack of summer spraying, which is apt to be neglected just so long as orchards are sold under the present system. When fruit growers sell their products on the trees for a term of years they are apt to lessen their care of the trees, as they feel sure of receiving good prices for their apples for that period at any rate. Another drawback to proper summer spraying is the opposition given the movement by the men who purchased the orchards. They are afraid that the trees will be burned and their fruit output and reduced.

“The best means of properly meeting the issue that confronts them is for orchardists to pick, grade, pack and market their own apples. By doing so they will be enabled to keep in close touch with their fruit from the time the tree is planted until the matured fruit is in the hands of the consumer. They have everything at stake, consequently all to lose or gain as the case may be. The orchard acreage is rapidly increasing in Pajaro valley and preparations must be made to successfully handle the immense crop of apples that will be produced here within the next five years...”

[the following is a long article on the workings of an apple packing house; no Slavs are mentioned]

Paj; 18 Sep 1902; article: "These are busy days at the Earl Fruit Co.'s packing house in this city. There are about 25 people employed there at present, 18 of whom are young ladies. The force will be doubled by the middle of next week. Messrs. W. H. White and C. H. Baker have everything about the packing house so conveniently and neatly arranged that the business is conducted in a manner that saves steps and accomplishes satisfactory results. Five or six large doors about the packing house make it possible to unload as many wagons at the same time. The unloading is done with dispatch and in an uninterrupted manner, so thoroughly is the work systematized. The boxes are placed upon the chutes that extend from the wagon to the floor of the grading room and glide gently and smoothly down the incline to the desired spot. It requires but a few minutes to transfer a wagon load of apples to the packing house. After the apples are delivered at the grading room the grower is given a card containing his name and number, the number of boxes of loose apples he brought, etc. The apples are carefully sorted, graded and packed, and accurate record being kept on the original card of the total number of packed apples according to grade. The apples are packed as 4 and 5-tier high-grade stock and also as 4-tier culls. The card method of keeping apple records makes it possible to tell at a glance just what each patron's shipment consisted of. The original card is pigeon-holed under the name or number of the grower and is a ready reference. No unnecessary talking is permitted among the graders, and each is watched very closely in order to prevent the packing of inferior stock under the head of first class fruit. An abundance of light is provided so that the graders and packers can readily detect bad fruit. Each apple is carefully wiped with a cloth and enters the box as bright as if it had been polished. The boxes are all packed with a swell center so that the swell will take up the shrinkage that will naturally occur while the apples are in transit.

"The packing house is provided with a system for moving boxes of apples about the rooms that is a revelation to those who have never before seen such a system in operation. A small car track with iron rails extends through the center of the assorting and grading room, the entire length of the building to the center of the packing and shipping room. There is a turntable at the center of the packing room and the apple car can be turned in either an easterly or westerly direction to convey the boxes of apples to any part of the house. A number of movable car platforms are placed about the building to facilitate the moving of boxes. The platforms are placed over the car track, loaded with as many as 60 boxes of apples at a time, the patent car is shoved under the platform, and by means of an ingenious mechanical device the operator can press the tongue of the car downward and raise with ease the car platform containing the 60 boxes of apples clear of the floor and pull it into the packing room. The platform load of apples is placed at any desired point along the track in the packing room with the same ease that it was moved from the sorting room—simply by raising the tongue of the car. While the boxes are being unloaded the car is taken back for another load. Such a system saves time and labor. The boxes of apples in the packing room are stacked in separate piles, according to grade. The shook room and box making quarters are conveniently located..."

What say you, my critics? I know you do not belong to those classes, hence there is no apology necessary from me. If you do, I have none to make. And yet my friends, by your own acts, and it is said they speak louder than words, one would be justified in saying you preferred Chinamen or Japs to even the better classes of your own race, as I notice those of you who employ labor in your packing houses take kindly to a large quantity of the Celestials. Shall I say the reasons are obvious? Respectfully, A. N. Judd, Fruit Grower and Farmer, 263 Fourth St."

Paj; 1 Jan 1903; article: "In the Pacific Fruit World of Dec. 13th appeared a report of the proceedings of the State Fruit Growers' convention, held in San Francisco during the first week of this month, and as a part of that report was a purported synopsis of remarks of C. H.

Rodgers, of this valley, on the labor question. The Pacific Fruit World is a paper of extensive circulation among fruit growers of this coast and in the fruit trade throughout the United States. It has given more space and has paid more attention to the apple interests of Pajaro valley than has any other publication in its line, and hence any statement appearing in its columns which relates to the apple business of this section is given much credence by the trade. Its report of Mr. Rodgers' remarks had an allusion to Slavonians which was not in terms creditable to that race, and its reading in this city caused much indignation among the apple handlers who are of the Slavonian race—comprising nearly all of the people in that line of business.

“The report as published in the Pacific Fruit World was incorrect and placed Mr. Rodgers in a false position. When he read it he stated that the report was not a correct statement of his talk. Last Saturday the reporter of the Pacific Fruit World, over his signature, stated that his report of Mr. Rodgers' utterance was not a fair index of his talk; that he did not make a denouncement of the Slavonians as a race.

“In the meantime the Slavonian apple packers of this valley, feeling that the publication made by the Pacific Fruit World...was apt to hurt their business standing with the trade throughout the United States, prepared and circulated a document which certified ‘that during a business of social intercourse with the Slavonians, extending over a period of many years, we have found them to be honest, industrious and courteous gentlemen, imbued with an exalted sense of moral obligation and a high regard for the integrity of character.’ This paper was freely signed by businessmen and orchardists. The report of the Pacific Fruit World was not a part of the document signed. There was no criticism or reflection upon Mr. Rodgers intended by anyone who signed the paper. Mr. Rodgers had told his friends that he had been misquoted, and to them that was sufficient. The paper presented by the apple packers was signed to show that they (the apple packers) had a good business standing at home, and that they had the business confidence of the people who knew them in their daily life. There was no intention or thought among the signers of belittling or reflecting upon Mr. Rodgers. As the apple packers felt that their business integrity might be questioned because of the wide publication given by the Fruit World's article it was right that they should have deserved endorsement as businessmen. The Slavonian apple handlers have done business in this valley during the past 15 years. They have bought and sold about all the large apple crop of this valley each year. Their business transactions have aggregated millions of dollars. They do more business each year than is done in any other line in this valley. They annually make contracts for fruit crops calling for the payment in the aggregate of hundreds of thousands of dollars, and they live up to their obligations of payment to our fruit growers whether crops be good or bad. Usually the contracts are of a form of doubtful enforcement, but cases of change or rejection are infrequent. The writer knows that the apple business in Pajaro valley has not been one of positive profit to the handlers, as a class, for several seasons; yet contracts of payment have been lived up to with positive loss to the buyers. We have seen as high as $2000 paid for a cherry orchard and the crop ruined by frost—and half of the payment made after crop failure. We have seen a similar record for other cherry orchards. There are orchards in this valley, and not a few of them either, sold for a term of years, which did not return this year the outlay for the fruit; but the contracts of payment were observed faithfully. We doubt if there is a fruit district in California which can show a record of 15 years' business with as little loss to growers on contracts as can the Pajaro valley. If there is one, we have never heard of it. And this is the only fruit district in California where the grower has not had to assume the chances of marketing. Because of this business record, and in no spirit of criticism of Mr. Rodgers or any other individual, the businessmen and orchardists of this place signed the document circulated by the apple handlers.

“The document was intended for publication in the Pacific Fruit World, and it was so stated when being circulated. There is where it should have been published. It appeared in the Register last Saturday, and preceding it was the extract from the Fruit World giving the garbled report of Mr. Rodgers' remarks, and appearing as if it was a part of the document signed by our businessmen and orchardists. It was not a part of the document as signed, and its publication in such a form created considerable feeling. The men who signed the endorsement were not attacking Mr. Rodgers, but the publication gave that phase to their endorsement because of its connection with the Fruit World article.

“On Monday a paper of endorsement of Mr. Rodgers' official acts, and embodying a request for his retention as Horticultural Commissioner was prepared and it is being circulated here and it is being freely signed. It bears the names of the business firms of this city, the orchardists of this valley and the apple handling firms of this place. The Slavonian apple handlers are on the petition in numbers, and they unqualifiedly endorsed the great work Mr. Rodgers has done for the horticultural interests of this valley.

“There is no more capable, zealous and unselfish Horticultural Commissioner in this State. The value of his work in this valley cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. His labor is not all for the present—its influence will reach far beyond present time and its effect and value will be with the fruit growers of Pajaro valley after ‘the span of years’ has run for him.

“We have had ‘a bit of a storm’ here, but through it all there has been no weakening of endorsement of the official acts of Mr. Rodgers, no lessening of the desire to have him remain as guardian of the fruit interests of this valley; and the denial by him that he ever made the remarks attributed to him by the Fruit World did not need the apology of the reporter to make them convincing to his many friends in Pajaro valley.

“The storm is over, and now let all unite to work together for the advancement of the valuable fruit interests of Pajaro valley.”

The highest bid at the sale in this city was $41,750, by the G. M. Bockius Co. This bid was raised to $45,925 by Luke Scurich on Monday, and Mateo Lettunich raised that bid to $45,950. There were no other bids, and the property was sold to Mr. Lettunich. It is understood ‘on the street’ that there are several persons interested with him in the bid, and that the property will be owned by an association or a corporation. Several improvements in the property are contemplated. There is a probability that the wooden block may give place to a large theater with store fronts. The property was sold at a good price, one which should be satisfactory to all the heirs.”

The orchard, which contains about 20 acres, was planted nearly 40 years ago by Isaac Williams, a pioneer settler, and has never failed to bring forth its share of the apples of the valley. With the exception of the Blackburn orchard it is the oldest apple orchard in the valley. The trees that are being dug up give evidence of age and it can be seen that their day of usefulness was rapidly drawing to a close. The center of the wood had decayed, leaving but a narrow strip of green around the outside to give life and stimulate fruitage. About 35 years ago K. F. Redman, who still owns the orchard, hauled apples from it to Salinas, where they were readily marketed. The reason for removing the old orchard is the fact that it might prove a detriment to the young trees adjoining it by a possible spread of fruit pests. At the time this old orchard was planted it was not expected that Pajaro valley was destined to be one of the greatest apple growing districts, area considered, in the world, but such has proved the case and the industry is still expanding.”

EP; 12 May 1903; article: "HEAVY LOSS BY FIRE. Watsonville is Visited by One of the Worst Conflagrations in Its History. About 4:50 o'clock this morning one of the worst fires in the history of Watsonville occurred in the packing house section, near the Watsonville depot, causing the total destruction of the Earl Fruit Co.'s packing house and the Pajaro Valley Fruit Exchange building occupied by Geo. W. Rowe as packing and shipping quarters. The fire swept these buildings and their contents out in short order, as the blaze, which started in the Earl Fruit Co.'s packing house, got about 30 minutes' start before the alarm was turned in. A stiff breeze fanned the furious conflagration from building to building and for a time the Loma Prieta Co.'s planing mill and the J. P. Miovich Co.'s packing house were threatened with destruction. The firemen battled faithfully against great odds. The small four-inch water mains in that section of the city were insufficient to furnish the required flow of water and the frame structures burned like tinder.

"The fire was no doubt of incendiary origin, as the Earl Fruit Co.'s building was blazing in three or four different places at the same time, and in connection with this the Stoesser warehouse, at the corner of Main and Ford streets, was set on fire. Wood and shavings saturated with oil, were burning under one corner of the building and some of the firemen were called to the scene and extinguished the blaze before it gained much headway.

"A third attempt was made on a packing house located in Kearney street, but the fire fiends were scared out by approaching daylight, and no loss resulted from their effort...

"Seeing that there was no hope of saving the three packing houses the firemen and others used their best endeavors to save adjoining buildings. The perforated pipe along the ridge pole of the planing mill was started at once showering water down over the roof, and prevented that building from catching fire. The planing mill engine was also used to good advantage in pumping water. Every line of hose in possession of the Watsonville Fire Department was brought to play upon the blaze and the bucket brigade did good service.

"Nearby electric light and telephone poles took fire and wires fell in all directions. The shutting off of the electric current saved serious accidents. In about two hours after the blaze was discovered on the west side of the Earl Fruit Co.'s packing house the three buildings above mentioned, together with their contents were totally destroyed. The fire was a disastrous one and it is fortunate that it was not worse. That it was the work of a 'fire bug' there can be no question. The simultaneous occurrence of the different fires shows conclusively that an attempt was made to destroy the city.

"The discovery of the fire...was made by Station Agent E. E. Harvey...at 4:45 a.m...Box cars which were standing on the sidetrack, near the burning buildings, were rolled away and thus saved from destruction. The heat from the burning structures was so intense that the freight warehouse at the S. P. depot smoked at times, and the paint on the Miovich Co.'s packing house was badly scorched. Had the fire reached the planing mill every building to the narrow gauge depot would have been wiped out, and it was only through the most heroic efforts that the mail was saved.

"The fire this morning shows the great need of larger water mains in the residence portion of Watsonville. With the present small pressure it is impossible to check a serious conflagration...

"M. N. Lettunich & Co. sustained a heavy loss. Their packing house was well filled with fruit boxes, about 60,000 in number, box shooks, wrapping paper, and tools, and with the building their loss will aggregate nearly $15,000. Their insurance is nominal...

"In all over 100,000 fruit boxes and sufficient box shooks to manufacture another 100,000 boxes were destroyed.

"The most serious menace to this city at present is the presence of a 'firebug' who is bent upon destruction. Every effort to apprehend him should be made and if found he should be put away for 'safe keeping.' The property of the community is not safe so long as such characters are permitted to run at large."

EP; 8 Jun 1903; article: “11,000 Workers Required to Harvest Fruit Crop. The fruit growers of California are beginning to cast about for a sufficient supply of help to harvest the immense fruit crop which is fast coming on in the various sections of the State. Every fruit district will need a bigger supply of help than at present seems possible to obtain. The fruit industry affords employment not only for men and boys, but also for women and girls. In fact, the canners, dried fruit packers and growers are very much in need of female help.

“The scarcity of labor noticeable during the past few years has so impressed itself upon the canners and packers that the best accommodations are now supplied for the workers in the industry. In the hot valleys canners are particular to have their work rooms well ventilated, often supplying them with fans for changing the air. A supply of cool, fresh water is always available, and comfortable quarters are secured for the help when the day’s work is over. In order to attract people who are not in the habit of working in the industry, half holidays are frequently granted, and in many instances music is furnished for the entertainment of the work people in the evenings.

“In many of the interior cities of the State a large number of young people are often busily engaged in the fruit season earning spending money in the canneries, dried fruit packing houses and orchards. It is not unusual to see high school students, school teachers and the sons and daughters of well-to-do people earning from $1.50 to $3.00 a day in this pleasant employment of preparing fruit for the Eastern markets. Many families in our cities take advantage of this opportunity, and in addition to enjoying a pleasant vacation, add materially to their bank account at the close of the season.

“The canners and dried fruit packers have expressed themselves to the California Promotion Committee as being sadly in need of help, and in checking up the applications, it has been found that 8000 people are needed by the canneries and 3500 in the orchards and vineyards.—San Francisco Chronicle.”

“EP; 8 Jun 1903; article: “A NEW SPUR TRACK. A new spur track is to be added to the local yard, which will increase the railroad company’s present loading capacity by 500 to 600 cars annually. It is designed to reach the business now handled by teams from the packing house district between Fourth and Kearney streets. To do this a spur will be run from what is known as the pole track, situated between the S.P. depot building and the yard of the Watsonville Beet Sugar Co., across Walker street to the center of the block, continuing, in a straight line if possible, through the Hihn company’s new lumber yard and piercing the packing houses of Scurich Bros., P. N. Lettunich & Co., and the P. W. Morse Company. An obstacle may be met in securing a right-of-way through one piece of residence property but it is believed that the proposition will receive its due consideration as an advantageous business move. However, the promoters are prepared with two alternative routes either of which will provide the necessary track, so it is a foregone conclusion that the work will be done as soon as the preliminaries are arranged.

“This move will be a great relief to the congestion of business at the local yard during the fruit shipping season, but the further improvements outlined by the railroad company will, with the opening of business for the new electric road, furnish this valley with first-class facilities for forwarding its immense array of products...”

EP; 27 Jun 1903; article: “PACKERS MUST LABEL FRUIT BOXES. Ever since fruit growing became of commercial importance in Pajaro valley the greater portion of the orchard product has been forwarded to market without giving any evidence of where the fruit was grown. Thousands of unlabeled boxes, which should have borne the fame of local orchards abroad, have been shipped to European cities.

“This important matter has been overlooked in the past and the recently enacted law touching upon the subject will no doubt serve as a reminder that radical changes along that line are necessary to properly advance the fruit growing interests of Pajaro valley. A locality should be willing to stand on its own merits and that is what box labeling means. The outside of the box should bear in conspicuous letters the name of the county and town where the fruit was grown and one section cannot then take credit for the product of another. Pajaro valley fruit will stand comparison with that of any other section on earth and its fame should be spread around the world, not alone by reason of superior quality and excellent pack, but by means of attractive box labeling which will tell the passer-by that it came from Watsonville, Santa Cruz county. A fruit box packed or empty with the name of the locality in which the fruit grew is a standing advertisement of such section and is sure to attract attention. Some of the local fruit firms are already making arrangements to label their fruit boxes and those who have not yet taken up the matter should attend to it without delay. Every box of fruit that goes out of Pajaro valley this season should be made to advertise this locality.

“It would be well for fruit handlers who are not acquainted with the law governing the labeling of boxes to read the following Act, which was approved on March 20, 1903, being entitled an act to provide for the marking, branding, or labeling of boxes, barrels, or packages containing fruits, fresh or dried, and fixing a penalty for the violation thereof, and for the appointment of inspectors under its provisions:

“Section 1. All fruit, green or dried, contained in boxes, barrels, or packages, which shall hereafter be shipped or offered for shipment in this State by any person, firm, or corporation, shall have stamped, branded, stenciled, or labeled, in a conspicuous place on the outside of every such box, barrel, or package, in clearly legible letters at least one-quarter of an inch in height, a statement truly and correctly designating the county and immediate locality in which such fruit was grown.

“Sec. 2. Any person, firm or corporation, violating any of the provisions or requirements of section one of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not less than $200 nor more than $500.

“Sec. 3. The Governor of the State of California, after the passage of this act, shall appoint such inspectors as may be necessary to accomplish the purpose of this act, to serve without compensation, who are hereby vested with full authority to enter any car or depot containing fruit for shipment; or any warehouse, packing house, storeroom, or other place or places where any fruit is kept, packed, or prepared for shipment, to inspect the same, or any part thereof. Such inspectors are also vested with full authority to examine such books of any person, firm or corporation engaged in packing or shipping fruit as may be necessary to accomplish the purposes of this act.

“Sec. 4. This act shall take effect immediately on and after its passage.”

Salinas Daily Index; 15 Sep 1903; item: "Santa Cruz county is the leading apple-producing county of California, with 688,000 trees. Monterey county is second in acreage, with 380,000 [sic comparing trees with acres?]. While in both these counties only about one-third of the trees have reached full bearing, their combined yield last season amounted to 1,700,000 boxes.

"California apples are marketed in boxes measuring 10x11x22 inches, and, when filled, weigh about 50 pounds. For export each apple is neatly wrapped in paper.

"The grade is determined according to the number of rows or tiers required to fill the end of a box. The grades are known as 3, 3½, 4, 4½ and 5-tier. The 4-tier is in greatest demand for export trade, and prices are generally quoted on a 4-tier basis. The size of this grade ranges from 2½ to 2¾ inches in diameter. There is but limited demand for extra large sizes, and price of the 4½ and 5-tier rule low.

"Markets for export apples are found in other States of our Union, in Mexico, several of the European countries, Australia, and, to a slight degree, the countries of eastern Asia.

"The best grades of Santa Cruz and Monterey county apples, after being packed, are mainly bought by outside dealers for Eastern and European markets at prices ranging from 75 cents to $1.10 per 4-tier box f.o.b. cars at points of shipment. Large quantities of the inferior grades were converted into the dried product and into cider, vinegar, jellies, jams, etc..."

Paj; 17 Sep 1903; article: "FRUIT BOX LABELING. A bill was passed by the last session of the Assembly of California which is now being called up for interpretation. The object of the bill was to prevent fraud in the branding of fruit, that is to say all packed fruit should bear a label showing when it was grown and packed.

“It seems that quite a lot of trouble may arise over the law before the matter is finally settled. For instance, Hollister has no packing establishment and has always sent its fruit to San Jose to be packed. The law says that fruit that is grown in Hollister must be branded ‘Hollister.’ The packers say that they are liable for a heavy fine if they accept fruit from Hollister, and do not put it out under a Hollister brand, yet they say they cannot do this because one grower may send one ton and another ten. All goes into a general lot in the packing house and the house cannot specify which is which.

“It is claimed that under the law fruit grown at Evergreen must be branded Evergreen. Under these conditions it is said that the packers are refusing to accept fruit and pack it. There is notably a ‘kick’ from Hollister, where, it seems the first question arose over the shipment of some fruit (or proposed shipment) to San Jose. The Cured Fruit Association classed Hollister with Santa Clara county district. Practically Hollister is a part of Santa Clara valley. The indications are that some nice questions will arise under this law for interpretation.

“The act referred to was passed by the last Legislature, as already stated, and, receiving the approval of the Governor, became a law.—San Jose Mercury.”

EP; 21 Sep 1903; article [3 photos]: “Dewey Brand of Apples. So much has been written of the apple packing industry in this valley that it would seem almost impossible to find anything further to say about it which might prove of interest to local as well as general readers. We all know that apples are packed here in immense quantities and we are given to taking it for granted that they must be well packed or there would be no market for them, yet few of us take the trouble to see how the work is done, or what pains are taken to send out a pack which will meet with the approval of buyers and at the same time create a demand for more fruit of the same reliable quality. Perhaps a degree of carelessness in the general packing of apples when the industry first began to assume importance is responsible for the local lack of interest. However this may be[,] the time has arrived when each resident of this locality should familiarize himself with the methods in use at the packing houses so that any request for information made by strangers in the valley could be met with a lucid explanation of the system.

“System it is, in the fullest sense of the word, and for its inauguration, and the consistent following of the plans laid down, probably P. N. Lettunich & Co. deserve more credit than any other firm in the city. That firm was the first to adopt a standard grade pack under a label and to use an individual printed wrapper for each apple. It found in time that the care was justified by the reputation established. Nowadays buyers in ordering the Dewey brand of apples never think of specifying ‘3-tier’ or ‘4-tier’—they know that 5-tier apples or smaller are never packed under the famous Dewey brand.

“This pack is mainly of Bellefleurs. In fact nearly 50% of the Dewey brand consists of that prized variety, but Newtowns, Alexanders, Missouri Pippins and Smith Cider also are packed under that label when sufficient apples of the right grade can be secured to warrant its use.

“So it will be understood that while the Dewey brand does not signify any special kind of apple it means that the sort, size and quality are first-class in every respect. Although the firm of P. N. Lettunich & Co. on demand will pack an inferior grade of apples, an offer of $5000 would not secure the Dewey label on a box of apples packed by that firm unless it were gilt-edge stock of 3-tier or 4-tier grade.

“As to the details of the work of packing[,] the ‘Pajaronian’ is able to furnish a complete account through the courtesy of A. B. Lettunich whose portrait is presented with this article.

“From 30 to 40 men are employed in the outside work of picking and hauling the fruit in open boxes to the packing house where it is passed over to the sorters—some dozen or more young ladies whose quick eyes promptly detect the presence of bruises, blight, moth, or other objectionable features, and who select the sound apples and discard the culls.

“The selected fruit is then carried to the wrappers. Chinamen are employed in this work and are paid by the day. Each apple is wrapped in clean white paper and placed in the box to be used in shipping. A tier across the end of the box contains four wrapped apples fitting snugly, without jamming. The packer sits on a low stool with the box placed at an elevated angle before him. On one side is the fruit, on the other the squares of paper, and the use of both hands necessarily is continuous. Each man packs about 60 boxes a day, although if allowed to pack hurriedly, as one would do on piece work, 100 boxes a day would be the output for each man. Each wrapper is printed with the Dewey label, and on extra fancy stock for export a cartoon is placed between the layers and when the box is packed the top layer is sprinkled with gold and silver gilt to add to the attractive appearance of the box when exposed for sale at its destination. Before the cover is put on a circular, setting forth the merits of the brand and giving information concerning the firm and the Pajaro valley, is laid over the apples. The cover is then nailed on and cleated.

"New shooks exclusively are used in making the boxes and on those having the Dewey brand a request to the consumer to destroy the box when empty, accompanies each box. A number of boys find employment in making the new boxes. When the packing is completed and the filled boxes are placed in long piles, ten boxes in height, the lithographed label, covering the end of each box, makes an attractive showing. It contains a picture of an orchard, one of the packing houses, a splendid likeness of Admiral Dewey, and a cluster of ripe apples, some bright yellow and some a pretty and natural shade of red. The words 'Dewey Brand,' 'California Apple' and 'Packed by P. N. Lettunich & Co., Watsonville, Cal.' all appear prominently on the label.

"Four large fruit wagons, with heavy springs under the bed, and each capable of carrying 260 boxes, take the fruit to the nearby railroad yards where it is shipped in carload lots to all parts of the world.

"During nine years in which Mr. A. B. Lettunich has had almost sole charge of the marketing of the apple pack for his firm he has had invariable success in satisfying buyers. To quote him: 'I have had only one carload 'turned down' (refused) on us in that time, and at forced sale I got $65 more than the contract price for that car.'

"He keeps the packing house thoroughly clean and cool. Large windows furnish plenty of light and ventilation and there are no offensive odors arising from decayed fruit—the refuse apples are carted away from the premises as soon as culled.

"Thus far in the season P. N. Lettunich & Co. have shipped eight cars of apples and as their season's pack of sound stock is about 80 cars it will be seen that no more than a beginning has been made.

"No special effort has been made to increase the output beyond the 80 cars as Mr. A. B. Lettunich has found that under present conditions an attempt to handle a greater quantity of fruit must result in a sacrifice of quality in the pack. He prefers to maintain the standard of reputation acquired by his firm rather than to make a great showing of business on a basis of smaller profits.

"Every year he places about 10 carloads of choice stock in cold storage at New York and in the spring, when there is an advance in prices on export trade, he reaps the benefit.

"Today P. N. Lettunich & Co. send a car load of Newtowns to London, and another car consisting of an assortment of Alexanders, Fall Pippins, and other varieties to the San Francisco market, while a third car of early Bellefleurs under the famous Dewey brand goes south for cold storage.

"Many visitors to the city find amusement and at the same time secure a fund of information on the apple industry by a sightseeing trip to the packing house of the above firm. All strangers who are in search of novel sights as well as those of our citizens who take interest in such matters find a cordial welcome and the most courteous treatment when they call at the company's packing house on West Fourth street, near the S. P. yards."

EP; 2 Oct 1903; article: "A Nine-and-One-Half-Hour Day Agreed Upon. Arbitration Committee Makes... Settlement...The disagreement between members of the Ladies' Union and the firm of M. N. Lettunich & Co., which was referred to a committee composed of three members of the Central Labor Council and three of the Citizens' Alliance, was adjusted last night.

"The agreement reached was that 'nine-and-one-half hours shall constitute a day's work, and one dollar shall be the minimum wage, for women working at sorting apples in packing houses of the Packers' Association of Pajaro Valley, and that no discrimination shall be made against Union Labor. This agreement is to be in force for the season of 1905 and '04.'

"The matter was one requiring the exercise of great judgment on the part of the committees as the questions involved had bearing upon the interests of the whole community. At this season of the year a general disagreement between packers and employees meant immeasurable damage to one of our most important industries, and to avoid that consequence concessions were necessary from both sides.

“The ladies engaged in the sorting of fruit asked for a 9-hour day and wage of $1; the packers wanted them to work 10 hours for one dollar, as has been the custom until this season. Some of the packers had already conceded the nine-hour day, but as others insisted on getting 10 hours work for the dollar wage there was dissatisfaction on all sides and recently some members of the Ladies’ Union walked out of the M. N. Lettunich & Co. packing house in order to secure a settlement of the differences...With the good start now made this season’s work will go ahead without interruption...”

Only gilt-edge stock was selected and the pack is the very best to be obtained of 3-tier and 4-tier apples in boxes...Banners covering the whole of either side of the car will be lettered ‘Exhibition Apples From Watsonville, California, to the St. Louis Exposition.’

Standing. A decision has been rendered in the Supreme Court of New York in the case of Peter W. and James A. Duncan, plaintiffs, against Luke and Stephen Scurich, defendants, giving Scurich Bros. $627 and costs, and denying plaintiff all relief.

“The case was one in which, in November, 1898, the plaintiff, Peter Duncan, purchased of Scurich Bros. in this city, F.O.B., a carload of apples called winesaps. When the apples arrived in New York they were rejected by plaintiffs on the ground that they were not winesaps.

“The Duncans sued Scurich Bros. for the return of $100 paid by them as advances, and $150 damages. Scurich Bros. entered a cross suit for $627, the value of the carload less the $100 advance received by them.

“In effect the decision is as follows: ‘It is proved by abundant testimony that the apples in question were not the winesap apple that is known in the New York market. But it is also proved by even more abundant testimony that they were the apple raised and known as winesaps in California, where they were sold and delivered to the plaintiffs.

“Witnesses for the plaintiffs testified that winesaps come to the New York market from various States, including California, although in limited quantities from that State, and that all are of the same quality and appearance. On the other hand there is testimony that seems to me to be convincing that what is known as the winesap in California is an apple of inferior quality and different in appearance from the winesap produced in Eastern States, corresponding in appearance with those which are the subject of this action.

“My conclusions are that the defendants shipped the apples which Mr. Duncan saw and purchased, and that the defendants are entitled to judgment for the amount due on the contract price.’...”

Beginning today I shall make a thorough examination of orchards and will then be in a position to go into details concerning the outlook.

"F. P. Marinovich of F. P. Marinovich & Co.—I have not examined very many orchards yet but judging from those I have seen I believe there will not be a quarter of the crop of apples...this season. All varieties are light. I look for apples to drop from the trees badly later.

"Nick Alaga of Alaga Bros.—I have not investigated the apple crop very extensively, but from what I have seen would say that there will be about one-quarter of the crop. Bellefleurs and Newtowns will be light. There will be a fair crop of red apples. Young trees are doing better than old ones.

"M. N. Lettunich of M. N. Lettunich & Co.—Taking into consideration all varieties of apples in the valley I should say that there will be from 22 to 23% of the crop...Some trees have a good crop while others have scarcely any apples on them. EP; 30 May 1904; article: “The Apple Prospects. Luke Scurich has completed a tour of inspection of the orchards of the valley and reports that the outlook for apples is anything but flattering. He estimates Newtowns at one-quarter of a crop; Bellefleurs, very light; White Winter Pearmains, about 20 per cent of a crop; Red Pearmains, average crop; Missouri Pippins, below the average. All varieties considered Mr. Scurich doubts if there will be a quarter of a crop of apples in Pajaro valley this season. In some orchards the crop is virtually a failure.”

rator at the corner of Main and Sudden Sts. is being converted into a fruit dryer by Ming Lee, an enterprising Chinese resident of this place. The building was erected by the Penniman Fruit Company and was in use for one or two seasons. Subsequently it was operated by M. N. Lettunich & Co., as lessees from Jas. Brodis. When seen this morning the face of Ming Lee, the new lessee, was glowing with enthusiasm. Asked if he would not consider a year of short apple crop a bad one in which to launch his dryer, he replied in effect, that when there is a good crop growers will not bother with windfalls, etc., but if the yield is short they will save all they can, and their enforced economy will provide him with fruit. It is Chinese reasoning, but it sounds all right.”

The firemen responded promptly to the call and did good service in holding the blaze in check. The fire is believed to have been caused by the dropping of a skyrocket between the buildings owned by Mrs. P. J. Thompson and occupied by N. Stojanovich as a store and that of Luke Scurich occupied by R. P. Quinn and J. P. Knudsen as a real estate office and saloon respectively. The buildings, both frame structures, are about a foot apart and the fire, starting near the ground between them, got under good headway before it was discovered... When the firemen reached the scene the buildings were both in a sheet of flame and everyone expected a serious conflagration. The absence of wind and excellent work on the part of the fire companies prevented the fire from spreading to adjoining frame structures..."

“The fire started in a small shed in the yard of G. W. Dempsey. It was attached to the barn and for a time the fire was in danger of communicating to several packing sheds. Its origin is unknown, but is believed to have been the result of carelessness on the part of smokers. Prompt assistance of many hands removed some 3000 apple boxes to a place of safety and made room for the firemen to work, but when they turned a stream on the fire its force was not more than enough to sprinkle a flower garden. Arrangements were made to couple at Main street hydrant when on uncoupling the engine a whiskey bottle was found in the lead pipe. Without stopping to inquire how it got there the bottle was removed, the pipe was recoupled and a stream went through it that soon put the fire under control.

“The burned building belonged to Steve Strazichich of the Morning Star hotel and was not insured. The adjoining packing sheds were being used by M. Kukocich & Co. [prob. M. Kukuliza] The entire loss was nominal.”

“He was born in Austria 31 years ago and came to Pajaro valley about 14 years ago. Since his arrival here he had been engaged in the fruit business and to him much credit was due for bringing Pajaro valley apples into fame in Europe. His firm was the one that originated the celebrated ‘Dewey Brand’ and caused it to become famous all over the country by reason of superior quality and excellent pack. On the date of the marriage of Admiral Dewey in Washington P. N. Lettunich & Company forwarded to him a box of the valley’s choicest apples. In a courteous letter, published in the ‘Pajaronian’ at the time, the great admiral expressed his high appreciation of the fruit and commented upon its excellent quality. Salatich, the Austrian youth of short residence in this country and who forged a check and presented it at the Bank of Watsonville, but was refused payment and afterwards destroyed the check, had placed before him yesterday a strong example of the paternal leniency of the American courts. After having been kept in jail for a few weeks, in order to give him time to realize the gravity of his offense, he was taken before Justice Blas in Santa Cruz and by him was given one day in which to get out of this section of the country. The technical charge against him was vagrancy, it having been found impossible to convict him of forgery without the evidence he had destroyed. EP; 12 Apr 1905; item: "Messrs. Peckham & Peckham of the Watsonville Realty Company today announce the platting and opening to sale of 162 residence lots in the Watsonville Heights Tract. As an example of the eagerness with which building sites will be taken up, it may be interesting to know that 11 lots were sold this forenoon, and in each instance the purchaser was a home builder. This is rather sudden, but not surprising when it is noted that the location of the subdivision makes it the most desirable building site in the valley, while the prospects for immediate and permanent improvement in that direction act as an encouragement to the small investor. Land clearing and work preparatory to street grading are in progress. Guaranteed deeds are given to each purchaser."

EP; 12 Apr 1905; item: "Stephen Scurich has cleared the Watsonville Heights Tract of all buildings and fences and the same is now ready for the extensive building operations that are sure to be in progress there in the very near future, judging from the rapid sale of lots. EP; 13 Apr 1905; article: "Road Will Shorten the Way to San Jose. The F. A. Hihn Company of Santa Cruz and Watsonville have started on an undertaking which promises to result in great benefit to this end of the county.

"They are to build a road from Meyer's ranch at Wright's station, where the broad and narrow gauge lines of the S.P. meet, to the Soquel creek and thence up the creek to connect with the Rider grade, formerly used for lumbering. From the Rider grade the road will extend through Grizzly Flat down to the Corralitos creek road, at or near the former site of the Eureka shingle mill...

“The entire road will be constructed on a trotting grade, affording easy and perfectly safe travel. It will place Watsonville within 20 miles of Wright’s station, on the S.P., and will bring San Jose within 38 miles of Watsonville instead of 50 miles as the distance is traveled over the present roads...”

EP; 17 Apr 1905; item: “Wood, Curtis & Co., plaintiffs, vs. Luke Scurich, defendant—Judgement for defendant.”

EP; 17 Apr 1905; article: “The case of Wood, Curtis & Company vs. Luke Scurich was...decided...in favor of defendant Scurich. The case has attracted considerable attention among the fruit growers of the county on account of the importance of the principles involved. During the season of 1903 the defendant entered into an agreement to sell to the plaintiff (a large commission house of Sacramento) ten carloads of Bellefleur apples, to be delivered f.o.b. at Watsonville during the season one week apart, delivery to be completed by November 15th. The defendant delivered eight carloads during the months of September and October. Plaintiff did not make payment for the apples upon delivery as provided in the contract and rejected one carload of the apples altogether, although defendant’s testimony showed that they were fully up to contract. The dispute as to nonpayment of the purchase price by plaintiff and the rejection of good apples culminated in the defendant’s refusal to ship the last two carloads under contract. For this refusal plaintiff sued defendant for about $800 damages, which it claimed to have suffered by reason of its failure to obtain the last two carloads. The defense set up by Scurich was that plaintiff had first broken the contract in the particulars above mentioned. The defense was fully sustained by Judge Smith and judgement ordered in favor of the defendant for his costs. The plaintiff was represented by L. T. Hatfield of Sacramento and Messrs. Wm. T. Jeter and Chas. M. Cassin of Santa Cruz; the defendant by Messrs. Wyckoff & Gardner of this city.”

EP; 20 Apr 1905; item: “The prediction that the first ten days of the sale of lots in the Watsonville Heights Tract would result in the sale of one-quarter of the 162 lots has been verified. Not alone that, but expectations have been exceeded. Yesterday’s sales of 20 lots in the new tract broke the record for real estate transactions in Santa Cruz county. Many of the purchasers, but not all, are home builders. F. B. Kerrick, he of the ‘Nimble Nickle,’ yesterday disposed of a lot he had purchased, and by the transaction is $100 better off than he was before buying. He did not buy as a speculator, but the chance to sell came and he improved the opportunity. The map published in this issue shows every detail of the plat and is a convincing argument in its own favor.”

Kilburn to enforce the provisions of a contract entered into and signed by Mr. Kilburn on July 21, 1903, wherein he agreed that if the Watsonville Transportation Company did not pay an annual dividend of three and one-half per cent upon three thousand dollars' worth of stock in said company, purchased by Mr. Marinovich, he (Kilburn) would pay said 3½ per cent interest himself, and in case of any default in the payment of an annual dividend of not less than three and one-half per cent, upon said stock, Kilburn contracted to purchase the stock at any time Marinovich might request him so to do after such default, and pay therefor the sum of $60 per share. Marinovich demanded that Kilburn purchase the stock as provided for in the contract, and although negotiations were entered into no amicable arrangement could be arrived at, hence the suit."

We understand that Master Strazicich did himself and his associates proud by the neat little speech accompanying the gift, and Father Hassett, in his response showed that he appreciated the token more than words could express. EP; 2 May, 1905; article: "Judge Smith...rendered his decision in the suit of Joseph M. Dorsey of San Jose against Ellen Brodis and the Watsonville Realty Company for the possession of the new Watsonville Heights addition in favor of Mrs. Brodis. This will be welcome news to the Watsonville people, who will thereby be enabled to go ahead with their plans for selling off the property which they had just bought from Mrs. Brodis.

"After reviewing the history of the case Judge Smith rendered his decision in accordance with the following points.

"As a general rule an after acquired title inures to the benefit of a former grantee, and cures all defects that may have existed in the grantor's title. But to have such an effect the conveyance must have been legal and valid, which is not the case with the deed from Mr. Brodis to Peter Dorsey. The law is well settled in this State that neither husband nor the wife can transfer, abandon or encumber the homestead premises without the joint act of the other, and that an effort to do so, however ingeniously made, is an absolute nullity, and will not be validated by a subsequent dissolution of the marriage or termination of the homestead.

"The deed executed by Mrs. Brodis to Peter Dorsey being a nullity, it followed that said Dorsey acquired no right, title or interest in the premises here in the controversy by virtue of said deed, and that the plaintiff acquired no title to said premises by virtue of his deed from Peter Dorsey, and therefore is not entitled to recover in this action. I think the other legal points raised by the defendants against the plaintiff's right to recover are also well taken, but it is not necessary to discuss them in detail. It is therefore ordered that findings be prepared and judgment entered in favor of the defendants.”

“The volumes referred to are old files of the Santa Cruz Sentinel, the Pajaro Valley Times and the ‘Pajaronian.’ In them may be found a week to week history of the early days of Santa Cruz county, and Ed Martin is entitled to a great deal of credit for having invested himself in bringing forth these valuable references. True they have been kept in the county courthouse, but there they were becoming musty and in time would have been useless. By having them placed in the public libraries of the two cities Mr. Martin is giving the people a chance to familiarize themselves with the growth of their home county almost from the time of its settlement. It is a good work, well done.” [this is the beginning step which eventually led to the microfilming of these newspapers, which led to the creation of this book]

Man must supplement this condition by properly cultivating his orchard, spraying it and rigidly thinning the fruit if he hopes to produce a marketable product. The day of lump sales of orchards in Pajaro valley has almost passed. At one time a man could sell the fruit on his trees for four or five years ahead, regardless of whether he took proper care of his orchard or not. Conditions have changed, and rightly, too, making it impossible for the negligent orchardist to dispose of his crop at a remunerative figure.

"Packers and growers should co-operate this fall in a strong effort to regain for our apples the prestige they lost in several markets in 1904 because of the unfortunate hot wave that visited this section. Mr. Scurich has secured a very valuable piece of land, lying between the extensions of Rodriquez and Main streets. It embraces about 8 acres of rich bottomland and 2 acres of higher soil, and includes that portion of the estate once used by Mr. Gampper as a headquarters for stock. For the present Mr. Scurich will use the land to produce such crops as may be marketable, but ultimately it will be subdivided, in part, at least, and offered for sale."

"The point at issue was whether or no Luke Scurich, a member of the Lettunich company, had promised Mrs. Conrad a year's lease of the premises from last June, at a monthly rental of $47.50. The evidence of the point was very conflicting. Mr. Scurich stoutly denied making any such agreement, while Mrs. Conrad and daughter were equally positive that he did. The case was argued at length by the attorneys, and the jury, after due consideration, decided in favor of Mrs. Conrad. We understand that the jury stood eleven to one. EP; 11 Aug 1905; article: “TRANSPORTATION COMPANY IS ATTACHED FOR $19,900...Sheriff Howard Trafton...came over from Santa Cruz and levied an attachment upon the Watsonville Transportation Company and also upon the property of Mr. Steve Scurich. The attachment levied upon the Transportation Company embraces everything connected with the company—real estate, rolling stock, franchises, etc., and was placed there on by the Pajaro Valley Bank, which has commenced suit against the transportation company and Messrs. F. A. Kilburn, R. W. Eaton, W. J. Rogers and Steve Scurich, to recover the sum of $19,900 on a promissory note.

“In the early part of 1904 the Transportation Company borrowed from the Pajaro Valley Bank the sum of $25,000, giving therefor a note with Messrs. Rogers, Kilburn, Eaton and Scurich (directors of the company) as surety. When the recent assessment of $10 a share was paid in, the bank received therefrom enough to pay up the back interest and reduce the principle to the sum of $19,900.

“When the recent mix-up in the affairs of the company occurred a demand was made upon the endorsers for the payment of the note.

“In view of the fact that Mr. Scurich had announced his intention of leaving for Austria in a short time, to be gone for several months, and that he had conveyed all his property to a corporation known as the ‘Manzanita Company,’ the bank determined to act in the matter—hence the suit.

“In an interview with Mr. Scurich...he declined to say anything in regard to the situation until he had consulted his attorney and added that at the proper time he would place his position in the matter before the public; furthermore, he would refer all doubters to the prominent men of this community as to whether or no he had ever tried to evade any of his just liabilities. He said that the notification from the bank about the note, a short time ago, had been a great surprise to him, as he had been told by

Mr. Kilburn that the note had been paid.

“Notices in the attachment proceedings have been served upon all the tenants of the ‘Manzanita Company,’ in which Mr. Scurich is largely interested; also upon the Hihn Company, who recently bought certain holdings on Fourth street from Mr. Scurich.

“It is likely that the present suit and attachment will precipitate a crisis in the affairs of the Transportation Company, and that the next few days will witness an avalanche of attachments upon the corporation. Outside of the bonded indebtedness the company owes, here and there, between 60 and 70 thousand dollars, and attachments have been threatened every now and then. Only a few weeks ago, at the earnest request of several prominent stockholders of the company, we ‘killed’ two or three columns of a report of the proceedings of one of the stockholder’s meetings, it being represented to us that the publication of the proceedings would surely precipitate an attachment by one of the creditors (if we remember aright, the Fulton Iron Works) the following Monday. It looks now as though the company would go into the hands of a receiver appointed by the Superior Court, and that its affairs would be wound up.

“If forced into bankruptcy proceedings there will be a debt (including the bonds) of something like $250,000 to be met; $150,000 of which comprised the bonds. The assets of the company, including the steamer, would not bring $150,000—in fact that is a high estimate, as Manager Burnham, when he first took hold of the company, could not get a higher valuation placed upon the steamer than $75,000 to $80,000—so the stockholders will have to pungle up the difference, that is those stockholders who could be made to pay, for it is notorious that a large proportion of the stockholders in the company are ‘execution proof!’

“It is impossible to get a full and correct list of the liabilities of the corporation. Bills that were contracted at the inception of the enterprise are continually cropping up. It but recently developed that the bill of the Granite Rock Co.—some seven or eight hundred dollars—for work done on the powerhouse, foundations, etc., has not yet been paid. The Rock Co. was given a song-and-dance story that it would be paid when the corporation sold its bonds. The bonds were sold, W. J. Rogers got all that was coming to him, but the Granite Rock Co. is still whistling for its money. When Manager Burnham made his first trip to the city to take charge of the steamer, he was confronted up with a bill of a thousand dollars or so that was contracted shortly after the company was incorporated, and which was supposed to have been paid a year or so before. Accompanying the bill was a notification that unless the bill was settled forthwith the steamer would be attached. Manager Burnham had to do some tall hustling to square the matter, so the steamer could start on its voyage north.

“And yet, only a short time before, the deluded stockholders in this neck o' the woods were continually being filled with hot-air stories of the great earnings of the steamer; how it was paying its own expenses, etc., when the truth in the matter was that the steamer lost $169 on each trip to Port Rogers.

"Sheriff Trafton placed Charley Sanborn as keeper in the powerhouse on Third street and Stephen Hatch in charge of the company's office. Under-Sheriff Horton has been engaged nearly all day in making an inventory of the company's belongings.

"We are informed that, by an arrangement made with Sheriff Trafton, the electric cars will run tomorrow (Sunday) for the accommodation of the patrons of the baseball game."

county seat...to subpoena the members of the Grand Jury from this section to appear, in conjunction with the rest of their fellow-members...in the Superior Court when Messrs. Rogers and Main are to be arraigned on charges of felony.

"It can only be conjectured, at present, what this move means. Possibly the validity of the present Grand Jury is to be questioned, in connection with the recent amendment of the code; probably the grand jurors are to be questioned as to their qualifications to sit as grand jurors—anyway they are to be questioned and every possible effort will be made by the defendants to quash the indictments. This move comes as a surprise to many, as Mr. Rogers was generally conceded to be a man who would fight from the word 'go'; and it was wagered that, scorning to take advantage of any petty quibbles and technicalities of the law, he would demand a speedy trial, and make good his published statement that he felt 'amply capable of taking care of all of it, [blame and responsibility] including my friends who are being misrepresented!'

"Probably Messrs. Rogers and Main are not so sure now of their ground, and are casting a few anchors to windward to be used in case it is necessary to appeal.

"The case of Marinovich vs. F. A. Kilburn to recover the sum of $3000 will go to trial on next Monday, August 21st, and another phase of the Transportation Company's affairs will be opened up to the public view. This case, it will be remembered, deals with the purchase by Marinovich of $3000 worth of stock in the company on an alleged written guarantee from Kilburn that in case the stock did not draw 3½ per cent interest, he (Kilburn) would personally pay Marinovich the 3½ per cent, and in case of any default of said payment of interest Kilburn would buy the stock from Marinovich. The case promises to be hotly contested, and an interesting trial may be looked for.

"It was rumored today that an effort was being made to get certain creditors to pool together and throw the Transportation Company into bankruptcy. It is held that such a proceeding would be more just and equitable to all concerned, and would put the burden where it belongs, upon all the stockholders.

"It is also held that on a legal showdown the bonds would be declared invalid. The resolution authorizing the issuance of the bonds was passed by the company's directors on August 31, 1904; the first money paid in on the bonds was September 5, 1904; yet interest was charged and paid on these bonds, as set forth in the minutes of the corporation, from June 1, 1904, (three months before the bonds were issued) to December 1, 1904. The mooted question is: Was this legal?; how could interest be charged on bonds that were not issued? In fact a horse and cart could be driven through many of the acts of the Directors of the corporation they were so carelessly adopted and loosely carried out."

“After the jury was empaneled, and Mr. Cassim made his opening statement he introduced and placed in evidence an agreement of which the following is a fac simile:

“WHEREAS, F. P. Marinovich is the owner of 50 shares of the capital stock of the Watsonville Transportation Company, for which he has paid the sum of $3000 or $60 per share, in full payment therefor. Now those present witnesseth: That in the event of the non-payment of an annual dividend of not less than three and one half per cent upon the purchase price of said stock, I hereby agree to pay to F. P. Marinovich, that some, viz: three and one half per cent upon his investment of $3000, in said stock, myself. I further agree, that in case of any default in the payment of an annual dividend of not less than three and one half per cent upon each of the 50 shares of said stock owned by said F. P. Marinovich, to purchase the same, at any time he may request me to do so, after such default; and to pay therefor the sum of $60 per share spot cash, upon the delivery to me of the certificate of stock, properly endorsed. In witness whereof I have hereunto subscribed my name this 21st day of July, A.D. 1903. —(signed) [F. A. Kilburn]

“Plaintiff Marinovich was then called to the stand and sworn. Briefly epitomized Mr. Marinovich’s testimony was to the effect that at the inception of the movement to organize the Watsonville Transportation Company L. V. Slavich, a prominent Austrian resident of San Jose, was brought down here to introduce W. J. Rogers to the Slavonians residing in this valley. A meeting was arranged to take place one evening in November, 1902, at the Chas. Ford Co.’s office. This meeting was attended by Marinovich and 15 other Austrians. Messrs. Rogers and Kilburn were present, and Rogers read a flowing prospectus of the proposed Transportation Company, and the great profits that would ensue from its organization. Both Rogers and Kilburn at this meeting made an explicit statement that no promotion stock would be issued—in fact guaranteed no promotion stock whatever would be put out. At this meeting Marinovich subscribed for 25 shares and then, afterwards, carried away by the representations made to him by Mr. Horgan subscribed for 25 shares more, and made a payment thereon of $750. A short time after making this payment he learned that some promotion stock would be given out. He was approached by Mr. Horgan for the balance of the money on his stock, and he flatly told Horgan that he would not pay another cent upon the stock; that he had been deceived inasmuch as Rogers and Kilburn had told him that there would be no promotion stock issued. Horgan represented to him that the stock would pay 25% dividends, to which Marinovich retorted that such a statement was unreasonable; that no company could pay such a dividend; that he would not expect such a return on his money, and would be satisfied if he could get 3½ per cent. Horgan, thereupon, told him that he could get a man who would guarantee him 3½ per cent, and on Marinovich inquiring who the man was Horgan mentioned Kilburn. Marinovich said Kilburn was all right, and the following day Horgan came to Marinovich and told him to go up to the Transportation Company’s headquarters at Sill’s office, and get the contract, which was ready for him. Marinovich went up to the office and found there Messrs. Main and Kilburn, Mr. Eaton coming in a short time after. The contract was handed to him and he read it very carefully, and Mr. Kilburn signed it in his presence. Marinovich then handed in his check for $2250, the balance of the $3000 on his stock. Mr. Kilburn then told Marinovich to go and inform Luke Scurich of the transaction, show Scurich his contract and tell Scurich to come up and get his contract, that there was a contract exactly like Marinovich’s awaiting him up at the Transportation Company’s office. Marinovich went and saw Scurich, showed him the contract Kilburn had signed, and informed him that Mr. Kilburn wanted him to come in, pay up, and take his contract. Scurich said he would not take such a contract, and Marinovich went back and told Kilburn what Scurich had said, whereupon Kilburn told Marinovich to go back and tell Luke Scurich that if he didn’t want to take a contract for God’s sake to say nothing about it to anyone; that if he did there would be war in Watsonville if it leaked out that some stockholders were guaranteed interest on their purchases. Before starting on his trip to Europe in 1904, Marinovich instructed Wm. Pulisevich to make out a bill on July 21, 1904, against Kilburn for $105 interest, on the contract, and collect it. Pulisevich made out the bill, but when he presented it to Mr. Kilburn the latter stated that he did not think he should pay the whole amount inasmuch as the steamer Kilburn did not start running at the time the agreement was made, and that he would like to have the matter lay over until Marinovich’s return from Europe. Pulisevich assented to this, and when Marinovich returned he met Kilburn who advanced the same reasons he did to Pulisevich. Marinovich called his attention to the terms of the contract which Kilburn admitted, but added that if full payment was insisted upon he would pay it, although he thought it was pretty hard upon him. Marinovich finally offered to split the amount and take $52.50, and Kilburn gave him a check for the amount on the Chas. Ford Company, which Marinovich presented at the Ford Company's office and had cashed. On March 30, 1905, Marinovich went to Kilburn and demanded the return of his $3000, tendering Kilburn, at the same time, the certificates of stock. Kilburn said that he would see Marinovich about it in a few days, and made several other promises of settlement, but never carried out his promises.

"Steve Scurich was sworn and testified that he had been a director in the Transportation Company at the time of the transfer of the 6000 shares of stock to W. J. Rogers, but that he had no knowledge of the transfer as it was not consummated at any meeting he had attended; that he never had anything to do with giving Rogers the stock. He acknowledged seconding Mr. Kilburn's motion that W. J. Rogers be paid $21,500 in consideration of turning over to the corporation certain properties, rights of way, franchises and also for certain expenses incurred and paid by Rogers, viz: hotel bills, car fare to and from San Francisco, etc. There was a lot of Transportation stock given away; he knew it because he was told of it. Kilburn, Eaton and Horgan got stock; he also got stock himself, 50 shares, but it was not given to him as promotion stock, but was given to him on different grounds several months after Rogers was given stock. There was, according to the minute book of the corporation, 6000 shares of stock given to W. J. Rogers, but he never had any conversation with any of the directors about Rogers' stock; didn't know it was issued to Rogers until some time after the transfer of the stock was made to Rogers. When he learned about Rogers getting the 6000 shares he asked Directors Eaton and Kilburn about it, and they said they knew nothing about Rogers getting any stock.

"[During all the foregoing testimony of Marinovich and Scurich, and through the entire proceedings, Attorney Wyckoff interposed vigorous objections to the questions and answers, and took exceptions where he was overruled. At this point he interposed an objection on the ground of irrelevancy and Mr. Cassin argued the matter at length; objection overruled and witness resumed.]

"Scurich testified that he spoke to Mr. Eaton twice about Rogers getting the stock, and on the second time, he asked Mr. Eaton if he didn't know anything about it how could Rogers get the stock which he was giving away unless he (Eaton) as President of the company signed it. Eaton then told him that previous to a trip to Los Angeles he (Eaton) at Rogers' solicitation, signed, as President of the company, a lot of stock in blank, that is, signed the stock, and it was blank (the number of shares, and to whom issued) to be used as required. Kilburn told Scurich 'more than once' that he (Kilburn) had never voted any stock to Rogers. Scurich said he knew Marshall Franks, of San Francisco, and many persons in Watsonville and vicinity got stock.

"[At this point Judge Smith asked the witness what directors, to his knowledge, had gotten a promotion stock, and Scurich answered 'Kilburn and Eaton.']

"On cross-examination Scurich stated that he was told by Mr. John Clements, bookkeeper for the company, that 6000 shares of the stock was issued, but that he (Scurich) was not present at any meeting at which such stock was voted to Rogers.

"On re-direct examination Scurich told Mr. Cassin that he was present at the meeting when Rogers was voted the $21,500 in cash, but no stock was voted to Rogers at that meeting, nor was it mentioned.

"F. A. Burnham was sworn and asked to go over the stock book and point out the stock issued to Rogers. He did so, but could not satisfactorily explain who the stock was given to by Rogers after he obtained it. Mr. Burnham explained that all these transactions occurred long before he took hold of the company as General Manager and Secretary, and he was not familiar with what had been done.

"It developed at this point that several necessary books of the corporation were not in court, notably the minute book, and Mr. Cassin, through the court, instructed Mr. Burnham to have them in court today; a subpoena was also ordered issued for John Clements.

"H. S. Fletcher, who experted the books of the corporation for the stockholders and the directors, was sworn, and his testimony immediately made clear many doubtful points. He read from his report the disposition made of the 6000 shares given to Rogers. He showed that L. D. McLean got 10 shares; Geo. W. Sill, 10 shares; Mary Horgan, 10 shares; R. W. Eaton, 235; H. H. Main, 50; L. Slavich, 10; J. J. Morey, 10; R. P. Quinn, 5; Lucia Scurich, 50; J. S. Lopes and M. S. Lopes, 4 shares each; F. A. Kilburn, 126; and F. A. Russell, 126 shares, and there were also two certificates of 2505 shares each, one of which was endorsed 'Transfer to F. A. Kilburn,' but a line was drawn through the same; the other block of 2505 shares was returned and canceled July 5, 1904, and afterwards reissued to H. H. Main. Mr. Fletcher testified that there was nothing whatever entered on the books of the company to show that Rogers had paid anything for this block of 6000 shares, which, at the selling price of the stock ($60 per share) was worth $360,000; that its par value was $100 per share; that an attempt was made, before the minute book was erased, to show thereon a quid pro quo for the stock bestowed on Rogers. Rogers paid nothing for the 6000 shares—there was nothing on the books to show that he did.

"On cross-examination Mr. Fletcher testified it was a fact that Mr. Rogers had returned to the company 4510 shares of the 6000 but it was returned conditionally, that is, he was to get a lump sum and payment for it.

“The proceedings throughout the trial were marked by the utmost urbanity, and the only episode that rippled the calm current of events occurred just as Mr. Fletcher finished his testimony.

“He was about to step down from the witness stand, after being cross-examined by Mr. Wyckoff, when Mr. Wyckoff said: ‘One moment, Mr. Fletcher; one question more. Is it not a fact that unfriendly feelings exist between yourself and Mr. Kilburn?’ to which, quick as a flash, Mr. Fletcher retorted: ‘Yes, sir, it is a fact, and I am proud to admit it.’

“The stillness which ensued throughout the courtroom for a few seconds thereafter was finally broken by Judge Smith remarking: ‘Gentlemen, the case is adjourned until 10 o’clock tomorrow morning.’...

“Today’s Proceedings. On court convening...plaintiff took up the minute book of the corporation and H. H. Main was called for. No response being made, a subpoena was issued for him. Whilst waiting for Mr. Main, Mr. Cassin offered in evidence a number of the books of the company. Mr. Burnham identified the various books put in evidence. Mr. Wyckoff objected to books being placed in evidence. Objections overruled. Mr. Cassin explained that the books were offered in connection with Mr. Fletcher’s evidence yesterday.

“H. H. Main, ex-Secretary of the Watsonville Transportation Company, was sworn and testified that he came over from San Jose to testify in this case at the request of Mr. Wyckoff. As secretary of the corporation on August 19, 1903, he wrote the minutes on pages 30, 31, 32, of the minute book. Mr. Cassin called Main’s attention to the erasures on these pages. (Wyckoff objected to question—overruled). ‘The erasures were made by me with an acid that can be procured at any stationery store. The erasures were made before the minutes were approved. The writing that I erased did not state clearly what occurred at the meeting of August 19, 1903.

“‘The figures erased were figures I did not put down right. Values of properties, etc., had been placed on cards. I copied from one of the cards, but when I got the figures down in minute book I found they wouldn’t foot OK without putting arbitrary values, so I erased figures as I found I put down arbitrary values.’

“Main denied having erased a whole page in book with acid and though examined at length by Cassin could not satisfactorily explain why he made the erasures.

“He stated that the legal advisers of the company were Jackson Hatch and Wyckoff & Gardner. Plaintiff rested. Defendant moves and argues for non-suit which is denied.

“Kilburn testified that he never saw or heard of Certificate No. 310—2505 shares endorsed to him by Rogers, until a short time ago; he had never had it in his possession; that he met Rogers often but never asked him about it, why it was endorsed to him; that he never bothered about the company; Eaton was president and he depended upon him; also had confidence in Main and Rogers.

“Horgan testified same as Marinovich about stock; told Main that he would get Kilburn to guarantee per cent; never spoke to Kilburn about matter but spoke to Marinovich about it; never saw above agreement until today. Defendant rested. Plaintiff offers to submit case without argument. Matter continued to 2 p.m.”

EP; 23 Aug 1905; item in large text font: “THE TRANSPORTATION CO. INSOLVENCY PROCEEDINGS. Another Move Looking to the Legal Readjustment of the Affairs of the Watsonville Transportation Company. [Special to the ‘Pajaronian.’] Santa Cruz, Aug. 23...Upon the convening of the Superior Court this morning, Walter D. Mansfield, of the law firm of Frank & Mansfield, San Francisco, presented a petition to the court, signed by a number of creditors, asking that the Watsonville Transportation Company be declared an insolvent corporation. The petition was ordered filed and the court made an order directing that next Wednesday afternoon, August 30th...be set as the time for hearing why the said corporation should not be declared insolvent.

“The petition presented embraces claims amounting in aggregate to about $800, and the names of the creditors signing the petition are the John Finn Metal Works, and Howard C. Holmes of San Francisco; C. R. White, J. H. Jepsen, J. B. Holohan, and F. W. Johnson, of Watsonville.

“It is understood that this new move in the affairs of the Transportation Company meets with the approval of the bondholders, and is based upon the fact that the corporation has confessed its insolvency by allowing itself to be attached by the Pajaro Valley Bank for three days without raising the attachment.

“If the corporation is declared to be insolvent at the hearing in the Superior Court, next Wednesday, the next proceeding will be to have a receiver or assignee appointed, in which case steps will be immediately taken to find out where the immense sums of money used in the construction of the road have gone.”

This is perhaps the first time in the history of the valley that such an excellent showing has been made.

“The yield of apples is by far the heaviest in the history of the valley and prices are holding up well. In fact, it is impossible for some of the packers to fill their orders as fast as they come in. It is stated that some packers have already contracted for the sale of all the fruit they have...

“Should the present prices of apples prevail throughout the season an enormous sum of money will find its way into the channels of trade in this community. Conditions never seemed more favorable for both grower and packer than they do today.

"President C. H. Rodgers of the Pajaro Valley Orchardists' Association presided over the meeting. In stating its object he said in part: '...we have met today to discuss the best means of advertising our fruits. This industry is paramount, and every man is directly interested. Owing to inadequate methods of advertising comparatively little is known of Pajaro valley apples. As evidence of this fact I cite the case of Prof. Lloyd S. Tenny, the well-known pathologist and pomologist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. He is one of the best posted men in this country on fruits and fruit districts, yet it was merely by chance that he heard of this valley a few weeks ago. Since his arrival here he has expressed himself as amazed at the magnitude of the fruit industry. If such well-informed men as Prof. Tenny don't know anything about our fruits it is high time we took steps to see that they are properly advertised. We must establish a name for our apples. The apple boxes should be branded with the name of Watsonville or Pajaro valley in large letters. The small letters required by the now defunct label law were entirely too small and could be scratched off with one stroke of a small hand scraper. Our Supreme Court has seen fit to declare the fruit label law unconstitutional, so we cannot get at packers in a legal way. The only thing left is to arouse public sentiment on the subject, so that every packer who refuses to label his boxes will be condemned. Competition is becoming keener every year; millions of fruit trees are being planted in the Central West and Northwest and we must establish a name for our product. The habit of shipping our apples to market branded Salt Lake or San Diego gives those sections credit for our fruit and intending buyers write to those places instead of to this locality where the fruit was grown. This is a subject that every man who lives here should be interested in. It means more money for everybody if our fruits are properly advertised. I believe in making an exhibit of our fruit products at fairs and other places where people congregate. We cannot do too much legitimate advertising.'

"President Rodgers said that he would like to get the views of those present on the subject under discussion.

"John P. Cooper of Green Valley thought it would be a good plan to appoint a committee to see all packers and get their common consent to label the boxes. He believed that if the packers could be shown the advantage to their own interests of labeling boxes with the name of the district where the fruit was grown there would be no trouble in obtaining their consent. Mr. Cooper said there would be no value in thus labeling boxes unless first-class fruit was packed. The advertisement on inferior fruit would do the valley more harm than good. The label should be put on high-grade stock only if it is to prove of any value to this community. A good pack should be one of the main things to be insisted upon.

"C. O. Silliman said that the orchardist himself was to blame for the careless manner in which fruit grown in this valley had been marketed. For years here it was the custom for the grower to sell his fruit on the trees for a lump sum and little, if any, attention was paid to how it was marketed. As a result the better brands stood the test and brought money to the honest, conscientious packer, while the indifferent packer lost heavily and was forced to stop buying orchards on the above plan. The growers...would not spray their trees and keep down the worms, and as a result both they and the man that bought the fruit lost money. In the first place the packers who bought orchards on this plan lost money, and in the second place the orchardist could no longer sell his fruit in lump lot. The result has been beneficial to the valley, because it has placed growers in a position where they must take care of their orchards if they expect remunerative prices. It is up to the orchardist to see that the packer gets no wormy fruit. There must be a crusade against inferior fruit. When the packer markets on his own hook he will send out a first-class pack, for upon that depends his financial returns. If fruit boxes are labeled with the name of the district where the product is grown they bring back inquiries concerning the same. Let the growers get together and take definite action.

"A. N. Judd said that the story was a long one and went much further than the packer. He contended that what we want is a patriotic buyer, one that will demand that each box of fruit is conspicuously labeled with the name of the district that produced the fruit. The packer in many instances simply carries out the wishes of the buyer with regard to labeling the boxes, and many of the buyers insist that they not be labeled. Mr. Judd stated that he and Mr. Rodgers went through all the markets and stores in a certain large city of this State in an effort to find a box of apples with the name Watsonville or Pajaro valley on it. They knew that such fruit boxes had been sent there, but their search revealed the fact that in every instance the insignificant one-quarter inch letter had been scraped off the box. The fact of the matter is that the purchaser had a good thing in disposing of this fruit and he did not want other people to know where they could get it, hence the erasure of the name of this locality. He believed in having the name of the locality burned into the box in large letters so that they could not be destroyed without tearing the box to pieces. Mr. Judd thought the orchardists should stand together and send out at least 20 canvassers next year to the various markets to advance the interests of this community as a fruit section. The expense, if borne mutually by all orchardists, would not amount to more than one cent a box...Don't kick the packer; don't kick anybody. Take hold of the business yourself and handle it.

“Joseph Albright thought that the orchardists...should refuse to sell their fruit to packers who would not brand the boxes with the name of this locality.

“John P. Cooper suggested that it would be a good plan to wrap each apple in paper bearing the name of the locality in which the fruit was grown. In this manner the buyer would be unable to get rid of the name of the locality without repacking the product.

“A. W. Tate, of the firm of Tate Bros., said that he had planned to send out his apples in such a manner. He would have each apple wrapped in a neatly printed wrapper containing the name of this locality.

“F. L. MacDonald thought that it would be an excellent plan for the Board of Trade to adopt a suitable label, to be attached to each box of apples sent out, guaranteeing a first-class pack. He did not believe that packers would object to placing such a label on the box in connection with their own advertisement. It would be to the advantage of the grower, the packer, and the community at large.

“J. P. Cooper agreed with Mr. MacDonald and suggested that an inspector be stationed at the packing houses to see that first-class fruit was put up for shipment.

“A. N. Judd also thought the plan a good one, but said that the inspector should be paid something for his shoe leather. Public sentiment should be back of the movement and it would then amount to something. Fruit growers, were disinclined to part with their money for their own best interests, thus they lose heavily in the long run. Big packers spent thousands of dollars to defeat the fruit label law, while growers sat idly by and did not spend one dollar to have some competent person represent them in the courts. When growers once wake up and stand together laws framed in their interest will then be construed differently by the courts. Now is the time, said Mr. Judd, for the people to get together and force the labeling of fruit boxes...”

Younger, attorneys for Stephen Scurich, in the suit brought by the Pajaro Valley Bank against the Watsonville Transportation Company, and Messrs. Stephen Scurich, W. J. Rodgers, F. A. Kilburn and R. W. Eaton, to recover on a $25,000 note given by the Transportation Company, on Oct. 22, 1903, and endorsed by the above named persons who were directors in the company at the time the note was made. Suit was brought to recover the balance of the note ($19,900) and an attachment was levied upon the Transportation Company and the property of the Manzanita Company, a corporation in which Mr. Scurich is largely interested.

“According to the original complaint, filed by the Bank on the 10th of last August, on Oct. 22, 1903, in Santa Cruz, the Watsonville Transportation Company, pursuant to a resolution duly adopted by its directors and entered upon its minutes issued the following promissory note:

“Watsonville, Cal., Oct. 22, 1903. One day after date, for value received, The Watsonville Transportation Co. promises to pay to Pajaro Valley Bank, or order, the sum of Twenty-five Thousand Dollars, United States Gold Coin, with interest thereon at the rate of 5½ per cent annum from date until paid. Interest payable monthly, and if not so paid to be added to the principal, to become a part thereof, and bear the same rate of interest, therewith.

“WATSONVILLE TRANSPORTATION CO.

By R. W. Eaton, Pres.

By H. H. Main, Secty.

Endorsed on the back: Stephen Scurich,
W. J. Rodgers, F. A. Kilburn, R. W. Eaton.’

“And that said note was delivered to the Pajaro Valley Bank, and that said endorsers endorsed said note before its delivery to the Bank...

“The complaint recites that...the said endorsers were notified that said note had not been paid; that payment was demanded from the Transportation Co., and that the plaintiff looked to said endorsers for the payment of said note.

“The foregoing is the gist of the original complaint. Attorneys Younger, on behalf of defendant Scurich, filed a demurrer alleging that the complaint did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, and when the demurrer was called up for argument advanced the claim that inasmuch as the note was made one day after date, and no demand was made upon the corporation defendant within that time, and no waiver of protest had been signed by the endorsers, necessarily no cause of action would lie against the endorsers of the note, and the Bank would have to look to the Transportation Company for its money. The demurrer was argued at length and the point taken under consideration by Judge Smith.

“Now comes the plaintiff Bank with an amended complaint which it filed yesterday week (Sept. 21st). The amended complaint is substantially the same as the original complaint, with the following exceptions:

“That on Oct. 22, 1903, and after the execution of said note by the Transportation Company, and before its delivery to the bank it was endorsed by Messrs. Scurich, Rodgers and Kilburn, but was not endorsed by Mr. Eaton until Oct. 26, 1903, and after it had been delivered to the bank.

“That when the bank loaned the money to the Transportation Company, it did so upon the express consideration that the defendants Scurich, Rodgers, Kilburn and Eaton endorsed the note, and it would not have loaned the money to the Transportation Co. had those parties not endorsed the note; that each of the endorsers well knew, when they endorsed the note that it was to run for more than one day, that it was to run for some time; and that it was in fact to be payable on demand and that the loan was to be in fact a time loan.

“That at various times after the said promissory note became due and before the commencement of this action, the said defendants, Stephen Scurich, W. J. Rogers, F. A. Kilburn and R. W. Eaton, each and all of them well knowing that no presentment of said promissory note had been made to the maker thereof and demand of payment made, on the day said note became due, and each and all of them well knowing that no notice of presentment and demand of nonpayment had been given to them on the day after said note became due, acknowledged their liability to the plaintiff as endorsers on said promissory note and promised said plaintiff to pay the same.’

“And so the case stands at present. Scurich’s attorneys will file another demurrer next week and allege their former contention that their client is relieved of all responsibility, as the demand for payment was not made within the time specified on the note.”

EP; 19 Jan 1906; article: "PERJURY CASE WAS WITHOUT STANDING. Dismissed Because of Complaint in Rogers and Main Case on Which It Was Based. When we went to press yesterday...Mr. Robert W. Eaton, president of the Watsonville Transportation Company, was still on the witness stand testifying in the case of the People vs. Stephen Scurich, charged with perjury, and was being cross-examined by Attorney Hudner. Mr. Eaton in answer to questions propounded, stated it was his understanding that the 6000 shares given to Rogers were issued for the purpose of building the road; that he did not think, for a moment, that there was anything in the proposition that wasn't 'straight.' He said that the voting of the resolution was done so quick that he failed to grasp what was going on.

"This admission evoked laughter from the crowd present, and the levity was stopped by the Court.

"Continuing he said that there was no discussion by the Directors previous to the meeting, of what was going to be acted on at the meeting.

"Mr. Hudner laid great stress upon this point, and he had to fight, inch by inch, to overcome the objections made. Mr. Herrington strenuously objected to what he termed the 'fishing expedition' of the defense; and finally, after lengthy argument, the question was allowed.

"Mr. Hudner desired to know if the meeting was called solely for the purpose of getting this property, etc., from Rogers, but Mr. Eaton said 'No'; the resolution giving Mr. Rogers the $21,500 and 6000 shares of stock was taken up at the end of the meeting; that other corporation business had been transacted before the resolution was taken up; that Secretary Main read the resolution, which was pretty long.

"Witness could not remember the items recited in the resolution. It was all done so quickly that he did not understand the resolution to give Mr. Rogers 6000 shares for his own private use. He thought that it was all straight, that there was nothing crooked about it. He asserted, again and again, to Mr. Hudner's questions that he did not vote, nor did he understand that Mr. Rogers was to own the shares.

"Mr. Hudner—Is it not a fact, Mr. Eaton, that you have stated to acquaintances in this city that no stock—neither 6000 shares nor any other amount of stock—was ever voted to Mr. Rogers at that meeting or at any other meeting?

"Witness—"I don't remember saying anything like that—"

"Here another interruption occurred. Mr. Knight objected to the trend of the question unless it was for the purpose of impeaching the witness—

"Mr. Hudner—"That's precisely what may happen. I may put on a witness that will flatly contradict this witness if he denies having—"

"The Court overruled the objection, and Mr. Hudner pressed the question, but Mr. Eaton couldn't remember ever having made that statement.

“Mr. Eaton further stated that he was completely off his guard at that meeting on August 19, 1903, and didn’t really know what was going on. The resolution was read off a piece of legal paper by Secretary Main, but couldn’t state whether Main read the resolution correctly or not. Mr. Main never read very plain—

“Mr. Hudner—‘And at this meeting Mr. Main read “unplainer” than usual—’ (laughter.)

“To Mr. Knight—I did not vote the stock to Rogers for his own private use. I don’t mean to say that what is recited in the minutes of August 19, 1903, is correct. I always regarded the greater part of the property turned over by Rogers as already the property of the corporation.

“To Mr. Hudner—I voted that stock unwittingly to Mr. Rogers.

“At this point the witness was dismissed with the understanding that he would be re-called, and an adjournment was taken until 10 o’clock this morning.”

“At 10 o’clock this morning the further hearing of the charge against Stephen Scurich was taken up, all parties thereto being present.

“County Clerk Harvey H. Miller was called and sworn. He produced a complaint against Rogers and Main for felony on file in his office, and identified the same which was put in evidence.

“B. F. Brooks, being anxious to return to San Francisco, was excused from further attendance, upon leaving the books of the corporation with the Court.

“Mr. Hudner having objected to the admission of the complaint upon which Rogers and Main were held over, upon the ground that it did not state facts to constitute a public offense, Mr. Herrington asked for a ruling on the point. Mr. Hudner moved that the complaint previously admitted be stricken out.

“Justice Hawkins stated that he had heard (by way of rumor) that the complaint had been held by the Appellate Court to be insufficient, and asked for enlightenment upon the point from counsel.

“Mr. Knight stated that when the matter came before the Appellate Court the complaint was held to be insufficient on the grounds advanced in the case of Mahoney, 123 California, which stated that not only must the defendants be charged with the intent to commit a fraud but did actually commit said fraud. Mr. Knight held, however, that even if the complaint upon which the charge of perjury was based was demurrable the fact that a person takes an oath to testify truthfully and commits perjury in his testimony, then the present proceeding should go on; that the crime of perjury had been committed and the matter should be sifted.

“Mr. Younger quoted the Penal Code, and argued that if the complaint was insufficient[,] certainly no material matter was before the Court in the Rodgers and Main hearing.

“Mr. Knight asked for a recess of half an hour to consult authorities, which was granted and at 11:15 when the Court convened Attorney Herrington arose and stated that the prosecution found itself in a peculiar position. If the Court held with the defendant’s objection that the Rogers and Main complaint was inadmissible, of course that ended the case, but he wished to state his position in the matter. The complaint was drawn up by District Attorney Knight upon the procedure pointed out by the Superior Court in the case of Leonard, and carefully followed the rulings made in that case. Personally, he, (Mr. Herrington) had not the slightest doubt but what the complaint was sufficient, and as former District Attorney of Santa Clara county, he had followed the rules of the Leonard case, in similar proceedings, coming within his jurisdiction as such District Attorney. Holding this view he had stipulated with Mr. Knight at the time of applying for the writ of habeas corpus that the writ would be asked for on the grounds of insufficiency of evidence to hold Rogers and Main. But whilst he was making this stipulation with Mr. Knight at Santa Cruz, his associate, Mr. Linforth, unknown to him (Mr. Herrington) was applying to the Appellate Court in San Francisco for a writ on different grounds, viz: that the complaint on the rules laid down in a subsequent case did not state facts sufficient to constitute an action. Mr. Linforth having stated the grounds upon which he asked for a writ, to the Appellate Court, he had to go ahead and endeavor to make good on these grounds. They were held good and the appellants were released. Mr. Herrington desired to make this statement, he said, because, from the accounts in the press, and current rumor, he was charged with acting unfairly toward the District Attorney of this county in the matter. He denied the charge, and reiterated that he was unaware of his associate’s action. That as far as he was concerned he deemed the complaint sound and impregnable.

“At the conclusion of Mr. Herrington’s remarks, which were quite extended, Justice Hawkins sustained the objection of the defense, and nothing further being offered, dismissed the defendant and ordered his bondsmen exonerated.

“Mr. Scurich received an ovation from his many friends at the conclusion of the proceeding, and was congratulated on all sides.”

EP; 20 Jan 1906; article: “THEY HAD A NARROW ESCAPE. It certainly must have been a great relief to Messrs. Rogers and Main when their attorney, Bert Herrington, yesterday, insisted that the sufficiency of the complaint upon which the charge of perjury against Scurich was based, be ruled upon by Justice Hawkins.

“Both these men were up against these propositions: Either they had to go on the stand and testify, and afterwards allow their bowels to be pawed over and critically examined by those past masters in the art of cross-examination, Messrs. Younger and Hudner, or else take the other horn of the dilemma: Refuse to testify on the ground that they expected to be arrested and prosecuted by the People on another complaint of felony, and they desired to preserve their rights.

“They were in an embarrassing position, but Herrington’s tactics extricated them from the nasty pitfall which they excavated when they had Steve Scurich arrested for perjury. They also neatly side-stepped a big suit for damages which would have been brought against them by Scurich as soon as he was acquitted. For he would have been triumphantly acquitted had the examination gone the required length, and all witnesses subpoenaed then examined.

“That examination was a very interesting game of chess. Both sides were fully aware of the fact that the case would be stopped the moment the complaint would be offered in evidence, but the aim of District Attorney Knight (as it appears to us) seemed to be to get Rogers and Main on the witness stand and place them on record. In this endeavor it also looks to us as though Younger and Hudner stood in. Accordingly, the complaint, somehow or other, did not arrive in time, and Knight endeavored to start the ball rolling by the introduction in evidence of the Justice’s docket. This succeeded for the time being, the defense merely making an objection thereto in order to preserve their client’s rights.

“Then R. W. Eaton was put on the stand. Mr. Eaton’s testimony was a boomerang to Rogers and Main. He virtually upheld what Scurich swore to. Scurich testified that no stock was voted to Rogers at the meeting of August 19, 1903. Eaton testified that whilst he knew now that stock was voted Rogers at that meeting he did not know it at that time; that the matter was rushed through so quick; that Secretary Main read the resolution so poorly, that he (Eaton) failed to grasp what was going on; that he did not suspect but what the proceedings were perfectly straight, and that he would not have stood for anything crooked had he known it.

“This sustains Scurich’s testimony fully. Two witnesses testify that, to their knowledge, no stock was voted to Rogers, and Eaton was the President of the company and presided at the meeting.

“Rogers and Main new what Kilburn would testify to. They had heard it before. He could not remember whether it was 600 or 6000 shares that was voted to Rogers. Before the Grand Jury Kilburn said 600 shares— at the examination of Main and Rogers he said ‘between 600 and 6000 shares.’

“So the buck was up to Messrs. Main and Rogers, and to their great relief and also the relief of their friends and advisors the complaint was offered in evidence.

“Mr. Hudner, preserving his client’s interests, merely objected to its introduction, thereupon. Mr. Knight made a brief (very brief) contention that it was admissible, and Judge Hawkins admitted it in evidence.

“But this proceeding sat illy upon Mr. Herrington. He had hitherto taken no part in the matter, though apparently deeply interested. Now he arose, and calling [h]is Honor’s attention to the fact that this complaint had been thrown out by the Appellate Court on a writ of habeas corpus, he respectfully asked for a ruling from his Honor upon its sufficiency, for, if the complaint was invalid, necessarily the present proceeding would have to be dismissed, and Mr. Herrington, in his suave manner, pointed out how necessary it would be to have this matter settled at once instead of taking up the time of the court in a proceeding having no legal standing.

“His Honor asked for enlightenment upon the point involved from the learned gentlemen present, and all hands looked to the defense.

“But the defense had no desire to help out matters. Silence reigned, until Mr. Hudner moved that the complaint be stricken out, and after a short argument from Mr. Knight that the examination should go along, and a citation of the Penal Code by Mr. Younger that the proceedings would be null and void, an adjournment was taken to look up authorities, and on the court reconvening the case was dismissed, and Messrs. Rogers and Main escaped going on the witness stand and contributing to the gaiety that has marked every occasional probing into the affairs of the Watsonville Transportation Company. It was a narrow escape!

“The arrest of Stephen Scurich on that charge of perjury was an ill-advised proceeding, and we venture to say that no one realized its absurdity more than the parties who instigated it, when they commenced to reflect upon its far-reaching consequences.

“There was nothing to be gained by it, except to break down Scurich’s convincing testimony before a jury by asking him if it was not a fact that he had been arrested for perjury in testifying in this case.

“They certainly could not reasonably hope to convict him, for no two members of the Board of Directors agree—that is, so far as the Directors have been placed on record. They all differ in material points.

“Was Scurich’s arrest instigated by the hope that he would become scared and ‘stand in?’ It is a long lane that has no turn, and no matter how much squirming and wriggling is done by those who were connected with the meeting of August 19, 1903, sooner or later the deluded stockholders of the Watsonville Transportation Company will get to the bottom of that infamous transaction, and a justice will be meted out to all who had a hand in wrecking the Transportation Company.”

A large number of friends and relatives were in attendance, and after the usual good wishes and congratulations were extended[,] all hands sat down to a wedding dinner where jollity and mirth reigned supreme until a late hour.

“The residence of Mr. Scurich was appropriately decorated with smilax and festoons for the happy occasion. The marriage was attended by the groom’s brother, Martin Franich, as groomsman, whilst Mrs. Luke Scurich attended the bride as bridesmaid.

“At the conclusion of the dinner the happy couple took the evening train for San Francisco. Upon their return from their honeymoon they will make their future home in this city.

“Mr. and Mrs. Franich start out on their married life with the best wishes of their large circle of friends—in which the ‘Pajaronian’ heartily joins.”

EP; 27 Jan 1906; article: “GREATLY IMPROVED. The California Restaurant, so long and extensively known as the Cosmopolitan, has been so completely changed in appearance and so improved in the matter of accommodations that old customers of the place returning after an absence would not recognize it as the same.

“Under the capable management of the present proprietors, Messrs. Strazicich & Sersen, the California is establishing a splendid reputation for neatness and promptness of service. One of the most important changes was one of the first made—the removal of the bar and change of the barroom into private dining rooms. In all now the California is equipped with eight private dining rooms for small parties and one double room capable of accommodating 14 diners at one table. This is for the use of family and theater parties. Access to any and all of the private dining rooms can be had by using the entrance (formerly to the bar) at the right of the main entrance to the restaurant, without having to pass through the public dining room, which, in itself contains accommodations for two score diners. The rooms are neatly finished in white and have a very attractive appearance. Lavatories and toilets have been added. The California continues to cater to the transient demand for lodgings, and upstairs 20 rooms are neatly furnished for that purpose. Regular roomers also are taken.”

EP; 8 Feb 1906; article: “N. NAPOLA MEETS HIS WATERLOO. Last evening, between 8 and 9 o’clock, Paul Alaga and Nick Napola engaged in a fist fight on East Third street, near the Presbyterian church, and Napola was badly worsted. Officer Devine, who was in the vicinity of the Opera House at the time, heard some one yelling for the police and hurried to the scene. He reached the combatants just in time to prevent Napola from getting an awful drubbing. As it was[,] Napola exhibits a blackened and badly swollen optic. Officer Devine stepped between the belligerents and stopped the fight. The men were placed under arrest and put up $10 apiece cash bail for their appearance in the court this morning.”

“The case was called in Police Judge Sans’ court at 10 a.m. today. Judge Sans informed the defendants of their right, under the law, to an attorney, and asked them if they were ready to go to trial. They both replied in the affirmative. At first Alaga was going to plead not guilty, claiming that he was not the aggressor, but subsequently he entered a plea of guilty.

“Napola said that he was not guilty and proceeded to make a plea on his own behalf. He was asked several questions by the Court and stated most emphatically that he was a law-abiding citizen—one that never harmed anybody or made uncalled-for remarks. He stated that he was going along the street, attending to his own business, when Alaga approached him and started a fight; that he (Napola) did not fight, but tried to get away.

“The Judge asked Alaga to give his version of the affair and he said that for two or three years Napola, with whom he was barely acquainted, had been in the habit of following him around town to see where he went. If he called on a young lady Napola was almost at his heels when he entered the house; that when he came out he usually found Napola hanging around ready to make some indecent remark as he and his lady friend passed; that Napola had a habit of scraping his feet on the walk as the witness passed with a lady or ladies and that the fellow would cough in a manner that was very offensive. The witness stated that last evening he started to go to the Opera House, but finding that the performance had not started he decided to take a short walk along East Third street. When he started along the street Napola, who was near the entrance to the Opera House, followed him. When at the point where the trouble occurred Alaga says he turned around and asked: ‘Why do you follow me everywhere I go? I’m getting tired of it.’ Alaga says that Napola then called him a vile name and he could stand it no longer, so he proceeded to give him the thrashing he so richly deserved. The witness stated further that Napola had been making insulting remarks to ladies in this town for the last two years.

“Chief Rasette corroborated the latter statement, explaining that different ladies had made a complaint to him about Napola’s actions toward them. The officer took occasion to give Napola fair warning not to let him catch him in the act of insulting ladies.

“Judge Sans fined the defendants $10 each and admonished them not to get into another fight. If they did and came before him it would cost them $100 each.”

EP; 12 Feb 1906; article: “The Watsonville Fruit Company is the latest addition in the fruit handling business of this city. Stephen Scurich, formerly of Scurich Bros., and Geo. F. Martin, who was with the Simpson & Hack Fruit Company last season, are the promoters. Mr. Scurich has been in the fruit business in Pajaro valley for the 15 years last past and is, therefore, well versed on fruit matters. Mr. Martin is also familiar with the business, having been connected, in various capacities, with the industry for many years. The name chosen by the firm is very appropriate and will serve as a splendid advertisement for this city. The Watsonville Fruit Company proposes to put out nothing but a first-class pack and hopes, through merit, to build up an extensive business. By reason of his business relations with the orchardists in Pajaro valley for these many years Mr. Scurich has made many friends who will be pleased to learn that he has decided to enter the fruit handling business again. Mr. Martin also has many friends, and the new firm should experience no difficulty in getting all the business it can handle.

The officer says that this is the third time that people have made complaint to him that the dog in question had bitten them. He says that upon each occasion he warned the owner of the animal to either keep it chained up or get rid of it. Strazicich promised to dispose of the dog. EP; 17 Feb 1906; article: "...Mansion House Property Will Change Hands. At the present time there are, in the process of incubation, a number of valuable property transfers in this city. The prosperity brought about by the splendid returns on Pajaro Valley's banner fruit crop in 1905 has caused purse strings to loosen and businessmen of sound judgment to seek a profitable investment for their coin. Real estate appeals more strongly to financiers than does any other line of investment.

"Among the contemplated changes a most important realty deal is said to be almost completed through which Dr. Nat Green will sell to Mateo and M. N. Lettunich the Mansion House hotel property at the corner of Main and East Third streets, directly opposite the plaza, with a frontage of 120 feet on Main street and 140 feet on East Third. The lot is occupied by a hotel building of two and one-half stories and is without question the most prominently situated holding in Watsonville. For some time past negotiations have been going on through the real estate offices of R. P. Quinn, and although the latter declines to be interviewed on the subject it is believed that the matter has reached a stage in which the sale is practically made.

"Dr. Green and M. N. Lettunich were interviewed on the subject. Both admitted that negotiations were in progress, but stated that no sale had been made.

"The transfer of the lot and building on Main street opposite Peck street, occupied by the Banc Exchange saloon, from W. E. Peck and the Peck minor heirs to D. Maheu has already been consummated and the transaction recorded.

"The transfers already made, and those that are almost certain of confirmation, mean much for Watsonville. They indicate substantial growth and give assurance that many needed improvements are to be made in this city within the next year. Those who buy do so, in nearly every instance, with the intention of spending considerable money in building improvements. By doing so they put money into the channels of trade. Building material has to be purchased, men have to be employed and money has to be expended in many ways, all of which benefits the community. This unmistakable evidence of commercial prosperity is noted with pleasure. By investing large sums of money in the purchase of real estate and in placing improvements thereon[,] capitalists show their faith in the future of Watsonville as a place of business and a city of homes.

"Activity in real estate is a good indication that the people of such community are wide awake and that the place is on the upgrade. If there be no such signs of industrial activity it is an unfailing indication of retrogression. There is no such thing as standing still—a city is either going forward or backward. Watsonville is marching forward with great strides, and if we do not miss our guess there will be some very important developments in the real estate market within the next few months."

The petitioners pointed out that said space should be used for street purposes, as it would be of little, or any, advantage to pedestrians during the fruit handling season, owing to the fact that the street at that point is very narrow. The passing of the street cars, vehicles and the unloading of fruit at the packing houses from the outer curb of the proposed sidewalk would virtually block such sidewalk to pedestrians, hence the signers held that the construction of a sidewalk along the north side of West Third street would be a useless expense, besides adding materially to the congestion of traffic on that thoroughfare during the busy season. The suit was brought by Wood, Curtis to compel Scurich to ship three cars of apples after the price had depreciated and the Sacramento firm had refused the first car. Scurich declined and Judge Smith upheld him in the first trial of the case. The matter aroused great interest among the fruit growers and packers of the county when it was tried last summer."

Paj; 5 Apr 1906; article: "...Question of Law in Regard to Homesteading is Decided in Superior Court. Judge Smith has just rendered a decision involving an interesting point of law as regards homesteads. The case is that of the estate of the late Charles P. McCarthy, and his widow is, by the decision, granted an order setting apart a homestead which was of less value than $5000 when homesteaded in 1883, but is now over that amount in value, as against adverse creditors who have contested the order.

"Charles Patrick McCarthy died on January 25, 1903, thereafter his wife, Mrs. McCarthy, was appointed administratrix on his estate, which consisted of household furniture, farming implements, some live stock and the homestead of about 42 acres, located on the old San Jose road, about three miles from Watsonville. The court set apart to the widow all of the personal property as exempt from execution. In June, 1903, the widow filed a petition, by her attorney, J. A. Hall, to have set apart to her, also as exempt, the entire homestead property. Mary Burke, a creditor of the estate, filed an answer and opposition to the widow's petition, claiming that the widow was not entitled to have set apart to her more than $5000 worth of real estate, and claiming that the homestead was worth at least $8000. She asked that the court require that the undisputed claims against the estate should be paid before the homestead was set apart. The case was tried and judgment in the Superior Court was rendered in favor of the widow. Mrs. Burke appealed to the Supreme Court, and the decision of the Superior Court was reversed and the case sent back for a new trial. Recently it was retried in the Superior Court. A large number of witnesses were called and testified to the value of the property. On the first trial five witnesses testified that the property was worth from $5800 to $8100; and one witness placed the value at $5000. In the first trial Judge Smith in his opinion therein held that the evidence showed that the property 'was of far greater value than $5000.' On the second trial 10 witnesses testified in favor of Mrs. Burke's contention. Eight of them: Messrs. H. S. Fletcher, J. B. Holohan, R. P. Quinn, Stephen Scurich, Luke Scurich, Godfrey Bockius, Jas. Nugent and A. N. Judd, placed the value at least at $8000; and two of them, Edward White and M. Quirk, praised its value at $5800. Three witnesses, Charles Galletly, Thomas Beck and Edward McCarthy (son of petitioner), called by Mrs. McCarthy, placed a value at $5000. The case, will, in all probability, be again appealed by Messrs. Wyckoff & Gardner, attorneys for Mrs. Burke."

He found the weather in the old country unusually cold, but took full enjoyment of his visit until he received the first news of the earthquake. He said this morning that he believed his anxiety was as great a strain upon his nerves as the actual experience of the people here. The first news was terrible. A report stated that San Francisco and all of the surrounding country had been submerged; that great fissures had opened in the earth and railroad trains had been engulfed in them, etc. Then came other and worse reports. Mr. Scurich had left his family in this country and he was well-nigh distracted when he received a short cablegram from Steve Scurich which reassured him to some extent. A circumstance which added greatly to the color of the first reports was that the country he was visiting had just received a half-inch coating of ashes from the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius. Mr. Scurich managed to get much enjoyment from his visit after being assured of the safety of his family and friends. He left the old country on his return journey on May 25th and it was not until he began to near the Pacific Coast that he heard any truthful reports of actual conditions here. He is truly glad to find all of his friends alive and well and that Watsonville is still as good as new. He will at once take up his apple business in which he finds the prospects excellent."

Upon the discovery that his money had been stolen Radovich notified Constable Corr, and he in turn notified the other officers, including Sheriff H. V. Trafton. Cards were sent out all over the country and some weeks later it was learned that Calinbreno had been sentenced in Los Angeles county to two years in the penitentiary at San Quentin for burglary. Accordingly the local officers kept track of the time when Calinbreno's term would expire so that they could re-arrest him. He was released from the penitentiary yesterday, but as he walked out of the gate Sheriff Trafton was there to take him into custody. The fellow was arrested and the Sheriff brought him to this city last evening. Calinbreno was arraigned before Justice Hawkins and his bond was fixed at $1000 for his appearance in court when wanted. He is charged with grand larceny. Sheriff Trafton took the prisoner to Santa Cruz last evening and lodged him in the county jail.”

During Which Every Member of Court of Appeals Gets New Light and Reverses Judgment. The case of Copriviza vs. Rilovich, after four years wandering through the courts, seems at last to have come to the end of its journey. On Friday last the Supreme Court made an order refusing to grant Rilovich Bros. a re-hearing and the judgment of the District Court of Appeal, in favor of Copriviza, now stands as final.

"This case has had a curious career. It was commenced in May, 1902. In October of the same year it was tried before Judge Smith and a jury. The trial resulted in a verdict and judgment for Copriviza. Rilovich Bros. appealed to the Supreme Court and the case was assigned to the District Court of Appeal where it was orally argued in November last.

"Early in the present year that court filed an opinion reversing the decision of Judge Smith and holding that the greater portion of the judgment was barred by the statute of limitations. Copriviza then asked for a re-hearing which was granted, and in June of this year the Court of Appeal rendered a decision unanimously affirming the judgment of Judge Smith.

"Rilovich Bros. then petitioned the Supreme Court to have the case removed to that court and reargued. This petition is that which has just been denied. The judgment, with interest and costs, now amounts to about $3600."

EP; 19 Sep 1906; item: “Steve Strazicich Was Not Convicted of Selling Liquor Between 1 and 5 a.m... The next matter to come before the board [of aldermen] was the case of Steve Strazicich, proprietor of the Morning Star restaurant, who had been charged by James Watson with violating the liquor ordinance of the city; that is selling or giving away intoxicating liquors between the hours of 1 a.m. and 5 a.m. The complaint charged that such an offense was committed on the morning of Aug. 30th...

“Police Officer L. Sandberg was called as a witness...The witness stated that on the morning of Aug. 30th, between 2 and 3 o’clock, he had occasion, in the course of his official duties, to pass the Morning Star restaurant. He said that he heard loud boisterous talking inside the restaurant, which fact led him to believe that drinking was being indulged in. He listened attentively outside and heard someone say: ‘You can make mine Port wine.’ Just then he was called across the street to look after another matter and did not return to the Morning Star for about 20 minutes. Upon his return he met one of the party in the restaurant coming out of the door and asked him if he had been drinking and the fellow replied in the affirmative.

“Sandberg says that he then went into the restaurant and found James Watson, Frank Garcia, Mercedes Rathu and another woman in one of the boxes. There were several empty liquor glasses on the table, but the officer did not see any of the members of the party drinking.

“Attorney J. E. Gardner, who conducted the examination on behalf of the city, questioned Officer Sandberg concerning the details of the case and was told that the officer asked the man in charge of the place what he meant by selling liquor at that hour in the morning. The man, who gave his name last evening as Tony Radovich, had stated to Officer Sandberg on the morning the offense is alleged to have taken place that he had not sold any liquors. Sandberg stated on the witness stand that Radovich told him upon that occasion that the members of the party were friends of his; that he had not sold any liquor, but had given it away. Radovich was reminded by the officer that giving away liquor between the hours of 1 a.m. and 5 a.m. was as much in violation of the liquor ordinance as if he had sold the drinks.

“James Watson was next sworn and testified that on the morning of Aug. 30th he and Frank Garcia and two women were drinking liquor in the Morning Star restaurant between the hours of 2 and 3 o’clock. The drinks were paid for, according to Watson’s testimony, by Garcia. He (Watson) took rum and gum, one of the party took Port wine and the other two beer. When asked how he was so positive of the time Watson said Garcia, who had a watch, told him the time. It was about 2:45 a.m. when Officer Sandberg came into the restaurant. In reply to a question put to him by Alderman Horgan Watson said that he did not remember about Strazicich throwing him out of the place on the morning of Aug. 30th...

“Mr. Strazicich then took the stand and testified in his own behalf. He said that he had always tried to live strictly up to the laws and ordinances; that he gave his waiter and bartender the strictest instructions not to sell or give away a drop of liquor between the hours of 1 a.m. and 5 a.m., no matter what inducements might be offered.

“Tony Radovich was then sworn and testified that he sold liquor just before 1 o’clock on the morning named, but served no such beverages after that hour. Watson, Garcia and their lady friends had partaken of nothing stronger than chocolate, black coffee, sarsaparilla, etc., after 1 a.m. Radovich admitted having left some liquor glasses on the table where the party sat when Officer Sandberg came in, but no liquor had been served in said glasses after 1 a.m. Radovich did not remember telling Sandberg that he did not sell the liquor after 1 o’clock but merely gave it to his friends.

“Frank Garcia, who had been about given up, entered the chamber of the Board of Aldermen at this time, but he was very groggy, seemingly having put in a great deal of overtime at a counter over which liquid refreshments are passed.

“He was placed upon the stand and asked if he remembered having been in the Morning Star restaurant on the morning of Aug. 30th. The witness was just about as uncertain where he was on the morning of Aug. 30th as he was about his bearings last evening. Upon this showing he was allowed to leave the stand.

“Attorney Gardner stated that he had no further evidence to introduce and Alderman Palmtag moved that the matter be laid on the table. Alderman Horgan supported the motion and stated that he had known Mr. Strazicich for more than 20 years; that he had always been a good, law-abiding citizen and that he was opposed to revoking his license on the testimony of such witnesses (barring Officer Sandberg) as had testified in the case. Personally he would not believe Jim Watson under oath. He said that Mr. Strazicich had been compelled to throw Watson out of the Morning Star on the morning of Aug. 30th, and he believed that the charge was nothing more or less than spite work.

“Alderman Horgan said that there was practically no evidence in possession of the Board, as Officer Sandberg did not see the liquor sold or drank. If he believed Mr. Strazicich guilty as charged he would be the first to vote to take away his liquor license.

“Mr. Strazicich stated that he had been compelled to throw Watson out of his place on the morning in question and that Watson had stated that it would cost him (Strazicich) $500.

“By a unanimous vote the members of the Board decided to table the matter, and Mayor Trafton cautioned Mr. Strazicich to be very careful in the future about selling liquor later than 1 a.m.

“Attorney Gardner explained that Watson had come into his office on the morning of Aug. 30th and wanted to swear to a complaint against Strazicich for selling liquor between the hours of 1 a.m. and 5 a.m. He had questioned the plaintiff very closely, but was unable to ascertain what motive prompted his action. As City Attorney Mr. Gardner said that it was his duty to prepare the necessary complaint and have the matter brought before the Board for investigation.

“In case of a violation of that clause of the liquor ordinance which pertains to the selling or giving away of intoxicating liquors, except in the case of a druggist, filling a prescription given by a physician...the Board of Aldermen shall immediately revoke such license, and another cannot be granted to the same person again before the expiration of two years...”

The visitors were in consultation with the members of the Mateo Lettunich Company regarding the erection of a skating rink on the company’s lot, facing Rodriguez street and running through to the Stoesser alley. They wanted a building 68x288 feet with maple floor. The lot in question would be an ideal location for such a place of amusement, but such a building would cost quite a sum of money. A maple floor of the dimensions mentioned would cost nearly $3000. Even with a maple runway 8 feet wide the floor alone would cost about $2000. No definite arrangements have as yet been made. If the company is willing to erect the building the men from Pacific Grove are prepared to rent it for a term of years.”

In fact the stop was a rather unfortunate one as seen from the small boy’s view. He got his name in the paper as having been one of two boys arrested at the scene, and in consequence, as he expressed it this morning, he got one of the worst ‘lickins’ he ever got. When assured that we would place him in a proper light before a restless public he sauntered out with the remark: ‘No more blind baggage for me! Next time I want to go any place on the train I’ll walk.’ The sight of the Sargent wreck put Paul wise to the danger of beating trains, and he’s going to be good, now.”

EP; 21 Dec 1906; article: “CITY WAS IN DANGER OF CONFLAGRATION. During an extremely high wind an alarm of fire was sounded at 5:15 this morning and a prompt response and efficient work on the part of the firemen, coupled with some redeeming features of early day building, saved the eastern half of the city from almost certain destruction by fire. As it was[,] the damage done was the burning of several redwood buildings at the rear of the Watsonville Laundry and Morning Star Hotel.

“The fire started back of the latter establishment, in a room used as a storeroom...That the fire was purely accidental in origin, goes without question...”

“The damage sustained by the Watsonville Laundry is estimated at $1000, with insurance unadjusted. To the Morning Star hotel building, owned by Charles Kuhlitz, the damage is estimated at about $400, uninsured, and Steve Strazicich, proprietor of the Morning Star, places an estimate of about the same amount on his loss, insured but unadjusted.

“To a ‘Pajaronian’ reporter today Mr. Strazicich said: ‘I have been in business in this house for 18 years. In that time there have been 13 fires within 300 yards of the lucky Morning Star, and it is still doing business. This fire was closer than comfort allows, though, and we were pretty well frightened.’ He made the above statement in the hotel kitchen. The range was going briskly although the burned ceiling and blackened walls looked anything but encouraging.”

EP; 26 Dec 1906; article: "A. B. LETTUNICH HAS SERIOUS FIRE LOSS. Fire of unknown origin did about $50,000 damage at Third street and Central avenue, Los Angeles, at an early hour yesterday morning. Six produce firms, heavily loaded with Christmas stocks, were the victims. Three of these were practically wiped out, though all will reopen at once. The building occupied by these three firms, the property of Secondo Guasti, was totally destroyed, entailing a property loss of more than $50,000.

"Three cars standing on the Southern Pacific's switch in the rear of the burned district caught fire and two were destroyed together with their contents, apples and potatoes. The third was so badly burned as to be practically worthless.

"The heaviest individual loser was A. B. Lettunich, 617 East Third street. His stock of apples, Fard dates, costly cheese and other produce was completely destroyed. The contents of two of the burned cars also belonged to him, bringing his total loss up to $10,000 with but $1200 in insurance. Mr. Lettunich also was a heavy loser in the San Francisco fire, several cars of fruit belonging to him being destroyed..."

By the disaster of April 18th Mark had a fine business wiped out by fire in San Francisco; then he came down to Santa Cruz, rented the Casino restaurant, and was burned out again losing all he had. Now he is up against it again:

"Dr. E. Backentose of the Zeba Humane Society... obtained a warrant...for the arrest of Mark N. Cosulich, a travelling insurance agent, on a charge of cruelty to animals. The specific charge is overdriving a livery horse so greatly that the animal...died soon after being unhitched...Cosulich signed an agreement to pay...$150 for the horse..."

A number of relatives and friends attended the funeral. High mass was celebrated at St. Patrick's church...and the body was interred in the Catholic cemetery on the Santa Cruz road. The following persons acted as pall-bearers: F. Balarin, M. Colendich, J. Jakich, M. Jerkovich, L. Secondo, and N. Sasilo [Sassilo]."

EP; 22 Jan 1907; article: "This morning...a runaway occurred at a point near the New York Bakery and J. P. Miovich, senior member of the firm J. P. Miovich & Company, fruit packers, met with a painful accident. With 4 or 5 of his employees in a one-horse farm truck, he had started to the L. C. Cornell place on the San Juan road to look after pruning operations. They had reached the New York Bakery, and Mr. Miovich sent one of the men in to get some bread. The horse became suddenly frightened and whirled around. The driver was thrown from the seat, but not injured, and Mr. Miovich, who was in the rear of the truck, attempted to jump out in order that he might catch the frightened animal by the bit, but in some manner he fell, striking his head against either one of the wheels or the sidewalk. He was picked up in a semi-conscious condition by Hugh McKay and the Hotel Johnson porter. The left side of Mr. Miovich's face was badly bruised and cut, but his injuries are not dangerous. The runaway came to a standstill on Second street, and the men that still remained in the vehicle drove back to the bakery and took Mr. Miovich to his home at the corner of Third and Walker streets. When seen by a representative of the 'Pajaronian' Mr. Miovich was in bed, suffering more from the nervous shock than from any other cause. He says that he will be all right in a very short time. His friends regret the accident, but are glad that it was no worse."

EP; 23 Jan 1907; item: “The prospects for a good year and increased demand for labor has developed a rise in the price of orchard pruning in this valley. Most of the work has been done by Slavonians and heretofore the price asked by them was $1.75 a day without board. It is announced that the wage to be asked by them for that work is $2.00. This move will make considerable difference to the orchardists because of their inability to obtain men to do the work in a satisfactory manner. The only other class of laborers obtainable, Japanese, are unreliable.”

Berry, charged with selling liquor without a municipal license, was called...

“M. N. Lettunich—Know defendant but slightly; also know Lou Davis; have saloonkeeper as tenant; had formed no opinion on the case; could act fairly and impartially; would take the instructions of the Court in preference to the ideas of the attorneys—that is to a certain extent; might have certain ideas in the matter of his own; would exercise his best ideas and judgment in determining the case; would not be influenced by anything read in the papers nor anything heard in the jury-room; believe in the doctrine that the defendant is entitled to the full protection of the law under the constitution...”

“F. P. Marinovich, upon being questioned, said he knew the defendant by sight. He rented to a saloonkeeper, but would not let that fact have any bearing on his verdict should he be selected as a juror; would be guided by the law and evidence; knew of no reason why he should not be a fair and impartial juror. EP; 9 Feb 1907; article: "HE GOT THE PUP. A few weeks ago J. J. Barry of the Pajaro side lost a very valuable setter dog. It was a setter by habit although by pedigree it was half shepherd and half bulldog. However, 'Jack' didn't care to lose the animal, so he enlisted the services of Constable G. R. Cano to locate the lost pup. Cano never leaves a trail until he gets his clew run to earth, and this case proved to be no exception to the rule. It led him to Prunedale and to the cabin of some Slavonians whom he believed had knowledge of the canine's whereabouts. He returned to Barry and asked to have a complaint sworn to so that he could get out a search warrant, but the owner of the dog didn't have time to go to court with the case, so Cano went back to the cabin and ran a 'blazer' on the Slavonians. 'Do you understand English?' he asked of a likely appearing foreigner. 'A little,' was the answer. 'Then you listen to me! I am the legally authorized representative of his excellency

Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States of North America, and in the regular discharge of my duty I am commissioned to take into custody and imprison (and here he pretended to read from a big document) any person or persons not otherwise specified who have violated section eleven thousand, Article twelve of the Code of Civil Procedure or any paragraph appertaining thereto under any circumstances as aforesaid in regard to the dog.' The listening man had turned slightly pale when the president's title was mentioned but by the time Cano had finished his bluff the fellow was so frightened that he could not speak. He didn't understand anything except that there was trouble about the dog. He led the way to an inner room and opening the door delivered up the half-bull and half-shepherd setter."

He went out Walker street and was industriously distributing his cargo along the county road when warned that it was against the law to do so. Next he began to throw his cans into the Storm field. Mr. Storm saw him, and hitching up a buggy followed the man to town intending to prosecute him. The now frightened Slavonian whipped his horses to a run and swung into a driveway on Sixth street leading to a back lot without an exit. There he abandoned the team and jumped over a fence into Alderman King's yard, and then through to Ford street and out toward Walker. Mrs. King told her husband of the appearance of the fleeing man and J. I. mounted a wheel and followed him, finally giving up the chase at a packing house near the depot. Later Chief Rasette located the man and on his showing that he did not understand the law, and his agreement to pick up the offending rubbish, he was not locked up. [The Watsonville Transportation Company boondoggle was a long and tedious affair, starting back in 1903. Many Watsonville Slavs were original stockholders, and Steve Scurich was on the original board of directors. But though the articles were many, most did not contain Slav surnames. The articles that did contain Slav surnames are included in this book; the others are not. The result is that a complete story of the boondoggle cannot be learned from this book. The article below is as close to a synopsis as this book gets. Other articles on the affair can be found via the index.

(The people who did the microfilm research for this book were instructed to find articles that contained Slav surnames or mention of Slav businesses. The Watsonville Transportation Company was not a Slav business.)]

EP; 12 Apr 1907; article: “Judd Replies. Watsonville, Cal., April 12, 1907. Editor ‘Pajaronian:’—Mr. Luke Scurich and myself called upon Mr. Haack on the morning of April 4th, and called his attention to some glaring falsehoods...in his paper of the previous day, in the item headed ‘Kilburn Case in Court.’ First item: ‘Judd busied himself instructing Juror Scurich.’ Second item: ‘The case is attracting considerable interest by reason of the high standing, in the county, of the defendant, F. A. Kilburn.’ Third item: ‘A mild sensation was created when it developed that A. N. Judd, of this city, had, during the absence of the District Attorney, and at other times, constituted himself the advisor of the jurors.’ Fourth item: ‘He had prepared several typewritten copies of a statement concerning the matter which had been distributed among the jurors in the jury-room during the absence of the District Attorney for the purpose of influencing the jurors against the defendant.’ Fifth item: ‘Mr. Springer, the foreman of the Grand Jury, testified, in effect, that he had seen a typewritten statement but did not know where it came from. It transpired that other jurors had also read this statement and were influenced by it.’ Sixth item: ‘A. N. Judd was examined. He admitted that he had dictated and distributed the statement referred to. That he went to the Grand Jury and on the first occasion District Attorney Knight was not present. He also stated that he had instructed Luke Scurich, one of the jurors, that he should not take part in the proceedings against the defendant, because the juror was at one time a stockholder in the Watsonville Transportation Company.’ Seventh item: ‘Mr. Judd stated that he had known Mr. Kilburn for twenty-three or four years. That he was formerly his friend but was not on friendly terms with him now and that he (Judd) had worked up the case against the defendant. He did not seem to realize that in his zeal to secure the indictment of the defendant he had violated the properties, or had improperly influenced the jurors.’

“Mr. Scurich and myself took up the several specific statements seriatim and showed him the fallacy of each. Mr. Haack claimed he wanted to be fair and would make proper corrections. On the 6th I called on Mr. Haack again and offered to pay for the transcribing of the stenographer’s notes if one line of material fact were true in the Register’s tissue of falsehoods; otherwise, he was to pay for and publish the facts. The proposition is getting mouldy now and evidently the taint of the policy of H. H. Main still sticks to the paper, which was that a criminal will pay more for his immunity than an honest man will pay for his conviction, such a policy leads me to believe that Mr. Haack does not intend to do me justice and is a ‘knocker.’ Wishing to set myself right before the public and the honest stockholders in the Transportation Company, I deny in toto the misstatements contained in the Register’s article, and “Regarding item number four I will say that on the calling of the meeting of the Grand Jury on Tuesday, I went up, as pre-arranged, to meet the District Attorney to take up the Kilburn cases. It appears the District Attorney did not know the jury would meet so soon, and went to Sacramento. On inquiry Mr. Springer told me the jury would adjourn at noon. I then asked permission to present a statement covering the names of witnesses wanted—the two cases of perjury, and one of conspiracy, against F. A. Kilburn et al. The first case of perjury was before the former Grand Jury. The second case of perjury was in the Main and Rogers case, and in these cases I asked for the following witnesses to be subpoenaed: Marshal A. Frank, H. H. Main, W. J. Rogers, Charles M. Cassin, H. S. Fletcher, H. C. Stratton, Attorney Wright of the Kemp Van Ee people, Samuel Leask, and some banking people, if I remember aright. I had three copies of my statement typewritten. One I gave to Foreman Springer, one to Secretary Lucas, and the one intended for the District Attorney was given, I think, to a Mr. Bloom, who claimed to be a partner of Messrs. Rogers and Kilburn in the steamer ‘Aurelia,’ and, I believe, in some lumber companies. Mr. Bloom was very partisan in the interest of his former partner. Here is a sample of his statement to the Grand Jury: ‘There’s nothing in it. A lot of farmers down there are sore because the wharf went out three days after they had bought the property from Rogers, who had paid with his own money, for the construction of the steamer, wharf, road, franchise, real estate and contracts, and Jed is kicking because he did not get a commission on some lands he sold to them.’

“The District Attorney and some of the witnesses arrived Thursday morning. Mr. Knight concluded that he would take up the second case of perjury. I called his attention also to the partisanship of Mr. Bloom and in fact that Mr. Scurich had been considered a stockholder of the Watsonville Transportation Company. He excused Mr. Scurich but not Mr. Bloom and yet in spite of him (Bloom) an indictment was had with but 15 jurors present. So you see, my ‘zeal’ went for naught, as nothing I said in the alleged circulars could be considered by the jurors and as no case could be determined upon (or evidence taken) until the District Attorney arrived.

“That boon to criminals, the statute of limitations, always works against justice and the fact is another proof that criminal law as well as many Court decisions are made in the interests of criminals, because thieves, boodlers and perjurers are willing to pay more for such laws than the honest public will pay for just ones.

“I did want the Grand Jury to take up the conspiracy case. The evidence in all of the transactions of the Watsonville Transportation Company proved beyond a doubt, in my mind, that there was a gigantic scheme to rob the widow and orphan. I believe Rogers, Kilburn and Main were the trio which made the quorum in the Board of Directors. Poor Main, as he said, 'he was clay in the hands of the potter.' 'I done just as I was told.' I believe the first part of the scheme, to rob their friends, neighbors and the old and decrepit who had laid aside enough to live on decently and die honorably was launched when the '26½ per cent profit to investors' was promulgated in the 'prospectus' and 'facts and figures;' and the crime of the 19th of August, 1903, taking unto themselves $21,500.00 in cash and 60 per cent of all the stock of the corporation, which act forever gave them entire control of the company, is another part of the scheme. They could, and did, vote bonds and other debts upon those who got their stock honestly. Think of it! The statute of limitations prevents trial or conviction of the self-confessed thieves, for as Mr. Kilburn said before the committee on options in Mr. Wyckoff's office, that 'they all had the goods on them.' 'Not me,' said Steve Scurich, who was present, 'this is the first time I ever knew that 6000 shares of stock was given to Rogers.' Mr. Kilburn told the committee that he 'always intended to give his stock back to the company.' Yet I am creditably informed that he tried to unload his stock on the Charles Ford Co., but it was refused.

"The crime of the 19th of August, 1903, the erasing of the books, the option on those shares of the boodle stock for cash to the Kemp Van Ee people were some of the links in the conspiracy. It was through Mr. Wright, for the Kemp Van Ee attorney, that we (the committee) found out that the company had been sold out, (that is an option given for the majority of the stock) for cash, while we, who got our stock honestly, were to take stock for stock, and, worst of all, shoulder all the debts of the old company.

"This committee that was selected to get the options from the defrauded stockholders refused to do so until an expert was appointed and a clear expose of the thievery could be shown. It was before this committee that the discovery was made that the President was in the habit of signing stock in blank (12 certificates so signed still remaining in the book). I believe this was brought about by the machinations of the trio, and is another link in the chain, while another was added when Messrs. Rogers, et al., 'placed' over $50,000.00 worth of the boodle stock in this community, evidently for quash purposes, for it was noticeable how hard some worked and are still working, to head off investigation; that later proof was had that prominent citizens got large blocks of this stock. It was painful to note their energy in their futile attempts to prevent H. S. Fletcher being appointed as expert, and again greater energy was used to prevent receiving his report. One of these beneficiaries wanted 'licensed expert.' Later they got one of their own choosing, one of the real 'licensed' article, and, no doubt, he was as favorable to the boodlers as possible. Yet it took an order of the Court, granted to the honest stockholders, to get a chance to see it. In this report, known as the 'Goode Report,' the matter of shortages of the secretary, and manager, were shown and the fact that Treasurer Kilburn's books only accounted for but $3000 of $150,000 of bond money, when the by-laws of the company declared that no money should be paid out by the Treasurer unless by proper vouchers signed by the secretary and president. I believe it was a part of the conspiracy when all the boodle stock was held out and was not sold or assessed at the time the 10 per cent assessment was made.

"What a run to cover there was, my fellow-stockholders! They tried all kinds of schemes to unload, by the escrow route and devious other ways. The energy displayed by the holders of two of the largest blocks of this 'placed' stock was amusing. With their heads under a leaf they thought they could not be seen. I believe that a suit for conspiracy, if it could be had, would uncover the rankest kind of fraud in the bond deal. On good authority some of these bonds were given without any money passing to the company. There is a dark page in the history of the Watsonville Transportation Company, to-wit: in the loaning of money to the company, disposing of the money of the bonds and the bonds themselves. In fact I believe a suit would show where the shortage of $71,000 went and where Certificate No. 401 was 'placed.' But the law, made for boodlers, says we are too late! Too late for a hearing! Even if the entire treachery and thievery was discovered today, for the first time, the boodlers would go free. Yet they made paupers; hastened men to their graves and shattered all confidence in this community in any legitimate enterprise, no matter how safe and sane. The only financial redress the honest stockholder has is to sue for a contribution from the boodlers. This will help some. If all act now something can be done. Linger a little longer and that 'boon to criminals' will give them the laugh on you, and from indications Mr. Haack and his crowd will laugh with them.

"The question is: Do you want some of your money back?

"Shall criminals be punished? Poor old Judge McKean, they got his all. Will they keep his grave green? Do the graves of other victims cry out for justice? Will you rebuke these moral lepers as an example to your children, or will you wink at crime, thereby showing the youth that thieving and boodling is the best policy, and honesty gathereth no moss? — A. N. JUDD."

EP; 23 Apr 1907; article: "NO AGREEMENT WAS REACHED...The committee of 20 appointed sometime ago by the Orchardists' Association to discover and recommend means of reforming conditions in the local apple market met yesterday.

"In order to concentrate discussion and be able to return a concrete report the committee of 20 appointed a sub-committee of nine, consisting of three growers, three packers and three brokers to reduce the matter into concrete form. The sub-committee, after earnest discussion of the matter in all of its bearings, concluded that it would be necessary to form a Packers' Association. The idea being that the members be so bound by by-laws and pledges as to prevent the cutting of prices that has resulted so disastrously for the growers in the past.

"On the Packers' Association proposition the sub-committee appointed Messrs. A. W. Tate, Jr., and Luke Scurich, to interview the packers and see what could be done, also to induce them to attend the meeting of the committee of twenty.

"The following report of the sub-committee was received and read: 'Mr. Chairman: The sub-committee appointed at the last meeting of the Orchardists' Committee met in the rooms of the Board of Trade April 16.

After thoroughly discussing the present conditions of the apple industry from the viewpoint of the interests represented by the committee—growers, brokers and packers—it was unanimously decided to recommend to you that a Packers' Association be formed. This association to include all packers of apples in Watsonville or vicinity, with the object of bettering the conditions of the apple industry in general, and especially to fix a secret minimum price on apples below which no member of the association shall sell any fruit.

“A committee consisting of Mr. L. Scurich, of the “lump sum” packers, and Mr. C. H. Baker, of the commission packers, was appointed to interview the packers to ascertain who were willing to join such an association and to invite them to be present to discuss the matter with you today. Respectfully submitted, A. W. TATE, JR., Chairman.”

“Mr. Scurich stated that he had interviewed many of the packers but could not find anything of a favorable nature to report. Some of the packers asserted that it was too early while others gave the excuse that they might not be engaged in packing this year.

“Mr. Baker’s report was to the effect that the packers doubted the probability of securing a majority of the packers in an agreement. Thirty to forty per cent of the packers could do nothing as an association and unless a good majority could be secured there would be no good obtained by signing.

“Chairman Hall regretted the receipt of such discouraging reports when all had hoped the matter was so nearly settled to the satisfaction of all. He called attention to the fact that something must be done or the apple industry as now conducted would become a thing of the past. Those growers who spray their trees and by other expensive means produce the best fruit must get a better price or quit the business. He then asked if any of the packers, of whom a large number were present, had anything to say.

“Mr. Benteen said that he had offered to stand in on any proposition agreeable to all and that he could only reiterate his oft-repeated offer. He thought, however, that an established grade should be fixed before a minimum price could be made.

“Mr. Tate moved that a committee of the packers be appointed to draft by-laws for the packers’ association and call a meeting of the packers for their discussion or rejection. This, he thought, would get the matter in a tangible form and show where all of the packers stand. Mr. Tate’s motion was unanimously carried and the chair appointed A. W. Tate Jr., C. H. Baker and Luke Scurich a committee of three to draft by-laws for the organization and to call a meeting of the packers for the purpose of organization.”

Mortizia expects to have all the work done by next Thursday. Two cars were shipped last week for Goldfield, Nevada, and the last car will be shipped to San Francisco. Mr. Mortizia says the apples are keeping as good as any apples in cold storage in San Francisco, that they are very clean and sound, but not up to the grade in size for the reason that farmers in this town do not take as good care of the trees as in Pajaro Valley. The trees should be well pruned and better cultivated, then the Newtown Pippins will be as large as the ones in Pajaro. Mr. Mortizia also says that in his opinion the coming season in Templeton will be about 20 cars of good, solid Newtowns. He thinks these apples don’t need any cold storage if they keep as well as they did this year. They have been packed six months wrapped in paper.’”

EP; 27 Apr 1907; obit: “Watsonville, April 27, 1907, L. Bakich, a native of Austria, aged about 30 years.”

EP; 27 Apr 1907; article: “With every indication pointing to the fact that he had been foully murdered[,] the body of young Luke Bakich was found lying by a clump of bushes on the Santa Cruz road this morning at a point just beyond the home of Chris Storm.

“The poor fellow’s head had been crushed into an unrecognizable mass of fleshy pulp by some inhuman foe who had used a large redwood picket which was found near the body covered with blood smears and tangled bits of gory hair.

“P. H. Daley, member of the local butcher firm of Daley & Quinn Bros., but who resides at Freedom, was coming into town at an early hour...when he discovered the body of a man lying at the edge of a clump of bushes at the place mentioned above.

“After a hasty examination of the scene, and noting in particular that the dead man’s pockets had been turned inside out, Daley hastened to town and notified the officers...

“Luke Bakich has resided here for the past six years and was a member of the firm of Bakich & Scurich, apple packers on the upper Rodriguez street, where the dead man had built a home. The new house at 509 Rodriguez street was completed in time for occupancy by Bakich and his bride (nee Secondo) after their marriage last Easter Sunday. The new home was a happy one and the young husband was proud of the fact that he had won his wife from a host of admirers among people of his own nationality.

“It may develop that therein lies the secret of his murder, which undoubtedly was the most vindictive as well as brutal occurrence which has ever taken place in this peaceful valley.

“Whether or not this fact had anything to do with the awful beating given to the body of the young man remains to be seen, but it is very certain that robbery had nothing whatever to do with the attack. Like most of his countrymen Bakich was a strong man, and on a traveled road in early daylight there must have been some stronger motives than robbery to incite anyone to attack him with such an uncertain weapon as a picket.

“Bakich & Scurich had secured the orchards of Mitchell and Arana, in the Amesti district, and it was the late custom of the former to make a daylight start to ride there every morning on a bicycle to superintend spraying operations.

“At the point where the body was found there is a slight depression in the county road and near the fence, on the west, weeds and bushes grow thickly, although they are not high enough to make a good hiding place such as might be chosen by one intending to halt the first passerby and demand his money. But although the two front pockets of Bakich’s trousers were turned inside out, a back pocket contained a purse with two rings and some $14 in coin in it.

“It is more probable that the brush was used as a temporary place of concealment by some powerful man whose object was to halt Bakich and strike him down as he dismounted from his wheel. Whatever the cause bitter hatred marked every blow struck by the murderer. The picket was not used to stun a victim lest he resist robbery, but was aimed to destroy life—to crush it, and make the form that held it suffer in yielding it up.

“The inquest was held...this afternoon at Wyckoff & Aston’s undertaking parlors, under direction of Coroner S. C. Rogers and evidence was heard by the following jury: J. B. Holohan, H. S. Struve, J. M. Herbert, J. A. Linscott, F. P. Marinovich, Luke Scurich and T. J. Gaffey.

“The first witness was D. F. Fulmer. He is a blacksmith with a shop in Freedom and testified that he was on his way there this morning at about 20 minutes past six, when his attention was called to a man lying by the roadside. A Japanese, one of two riding with him, first noticed the body. Mr. Fulmer stopped and went close enough to discover that the man was dead, but he did not touch the body. He went on toward Freedom and meeting P. H. Daley, the butcher, told him of the matter.

“The next witness was L. Ritter, a painter of this city. He left town about 5:55. Saw a man pushing a wheel up the Brodis hill, but did not see him after reaching the top of the hill. Mr. Ritter also testified to the position of the body, saying that it lay face upward, with one knee drawn up, and with one hand on the left breast and the other pushed into the waistband. Between the body and the bicycle found there, there was a fence picket, evidently pulled out of the nearby fence.

“Dr. A. W. Bixby said that he and Dr. G. S. Easterday had performed the autopsy. They found several large wounds on the head, one long one running transversely at the back of the head, and a number of fractures on the top of the skull and the face...

“Sheriff H. V. Trafton, who spent most of the day investigating the murder, stated...that up to three o’clock today there had not been a particle of direct evidence to assist in locating the perpetrators of the deed.”

EP; 27 Apr 1907; item: “Sheriff Trafton, District Attorney Knight and Court Reporter Williamson are over from Santa Cruz this afternoon on the Bakich murder case.”

SF Call; 28 Apr 1907; article: “WATSONVILLE, April 27.—With head crushed and battered beyond human semblance the body of Luke Bakich, a bridegroom of a month, was found this morning lying in the Santa Cruz road between the city and Freedom. A large redwood picket smeared with blood was picked up nearby. Evidently the murderer had stunned his victim and then struck him savagely again and again until life was extinct. Some of the pockets of the dead man were turned inside out, but the authorities believe that the motive of the crime was revenge and not robbery.

“Bakich, who was the junior member of the fruit packing firm of Bakich & Scurich, was a popular member of the Austrian colony of Santa Cruz county. Easter Sunday he married Lucia Secondo, an 18-year-old girl, who had several suitors, not all of whom lived in this vicinity. Recently she received some threatening letters from San Francisco and Oakland. The writer—whose name is not known—seemed actuated by a desire for revenge, and Mrs. Bakich turned that communications over to the postal authorities.

“Other members of the local Austrian colony received similar messages, and a relative of the young wife said today that he saw no merit in the theory that Bakich had been singled out as the victim of a vengeful plot.

“The officials at work on the case report that, although the two front pockets of Bakich’s trousers were turned inside out, a back pocket contained a purse in which were two gold rings and $14 in coin.

“Bakich was a strong man and it is the theory of investigators that the person who attacked him with such an uncertain weapon as a fence picket must have been inspired by a motive stronger than robbery.

“Bakich & Scurich had obtained control of the orchards of Mitchell & Arana in the Amesti district, and recently it has been the custom of Bakich to ride to these orchards on a bicycle every morning to superintend spraying operations. This morning as usual he left his home at daylight. At the point where the body was found weeds and bushes grow thickly beside the road, and it is possible that the brush was used as a place of concealment by some powerful man whose object was to halt Bakich and strike him down as he dismounted from his wheel.

“Coroner Rodgers of this city and District Attorney Knight of Santa Cruz began an inquiry into the death of Bakich this afternoon. Thus far there is no evidence to disprove the theory of murder for revenge.

“L. K. Secondo, keeper of an East street restaurant, is a brother of Mrs. Bakich. When informed of the tragedy...he said: ‘Bakich had no enemies so far as I know. Several men wanted to marry my sister, but when Bakich came along she decided that she liked him better than any of the others and she married him Easter Sunday. He was young, only 31, and everybody seemed to like him. Still I think he was the victim of revenge.’”

EP; 29 Apr 1907; article: “LOCAL AUSTRIANS OFFER BIGGER REWARD. Sheriff Trafton, who has remained here ever since the tragedy of Saturday seeking clues upon which to work out the capture of the murderer of young Luke Bakich, has given due consideration to every theory advanced by the Austrian residents of the valley, some of whom hold to the suggestion of murder for robbery, but most of whom admit that the case has every appearance of murder for revenge. The sheriff inclines much to the latter theory while giving every attention to everything which might indicate that the work was that of a maniac.

“All of the Austrian citizens of Watsonville are most anxious for the apprehension of the murderer, and have authorized the sheriff to offer a reward of $500, to which he has added another $50. With the assistance of the local officers he is doing everything in his power to ferret out the murderer and bring him to justice and while suspicions have been created pointing to someone in this community as the guilty person, up to this hour investigation has failed to show anything conclusive...

“As to the manner of Bakich’s death Sheriff Trafton has no doubt that the picket found near the body was only used as a means of stunning the victim and that the awful beating which resulted in crushing his head and face was administered with a piece of pipe or other similar weapon. He has strong hope that the next 24 hours will develop some tangible theory upon which to work, but at present deems it good policy to keep to himself the line along which developments are expected.”

EP; 29 Apr 1907; obit: “The funeral of the late Luke Bakich, who was so cruelly murdered last Saturday morning by some unknown scoundrel, took place this morning from the pretty home he had so recently built and furnished on Upper Rodriquez street. A requiem high mass was celebrated at St. Patrick’s church, and the large edifice was crowded with friends of the deceased who had come to pay their respects to the memory of one who had never been known to harbor an ill will against any person...The pallbearers were: F. P. Marinovich, Luke Scurich, Mateo Lettunich, Antone Scurich, Peter Stolich and John Scurich.”

days were spent at Tonopah, two at Manhattan, one at Seven Troughs, one at Reno, and the balance of the time was devoted to Goldfield.

“He found the times good and prosperous in all the towns and many new and good camps were constantly springing up in different sections of the State. But Goldfield eclipsed them all in his opinion. Steve was there the afternoon the long continued miners’ strike was settled and saw the army of men returning to their work in the mines...While in Goldfield Steve secured a lot near the business center of town and had erected thereon a building. He also has other investments there, but they are being attended to by a business associate of his. Watsonville suits Mr. Strazicich for a home and the location of his main business enterprise. They are very reticent concerning the same, rightfully claiming that a publication of it might hinder them in the capture of the culprit. No longer do the officers take any stock in the theories advanced that the murder was the act of a highwayman or a maniac.”

Last season most of the packers did not contract for large enough orders ahead of time, as a result of which they had to place mid-season orders at an advanced price and with a prospect of delay in receiving shipments. Through the activity and courtesy of the local railroad office the shipments were rushed along in good order from the mills in the northern part of the State. This year the fruit men who contracted for their box shooks last fall are congratulating themselves. To illustrate: J. P. Miovich & Co. are receiving this week five carloads of shooks from the box trust which they contracted for last year at the rate of 9½ cents per un-made box; today the quotation for the same is from 15 to 17 cents. So it can readily be seen that the fruit packers who contracted early for shooks have a license to congratulate themselves.”

Mr. Scurich’s answer set up as a defense that while the market was low the plaintiff failed to pay for cars delivered and had refused to accept more, but when the market rose and it was too late for Mr. Scurich to procure the apples, demanded the remaining cars. Judgment went for Scurich in the Supreme Court. Wood, Curtis & Co. appealed to the District Court of Appeals, and that court affirmed the decision of the lower court and denied a petition for rehearing. The company then petitioned the Supreme Court for a hearing, which petition has just been denied, and this puts an end to the litigation.”

EP; 29 May 1907; article: “LUMP SUM BUYERS RESENT CRITICISM. Editor ‘Pajaronian.’ Dear Sir: —In behalf of the cash lump buyers, packers and shippers, I desire to reply to the remarks of W. H. White, agent of the Earl Fruit Company, which appeared in Saturday’s issue of your paper. [the article referred to could not be found; perhaps it was in a different paper]

“Mr. White stated that the businessmen of Watsonville will notice a great difference this coming season when the growers have sold their fruit in bulk, since this plan will cause it to be handled by a class of people who do not patronize their stores.

"I refer Mr. White to the merchants of this town, from the smallest to the largest, whom we patronize, along with our families. The lump buyers also employ help who are residents of this city and spend their money here, and do not belong in Los Angeles, as most of the packers employed by Mr. White last season did.

"Furthermore, I would like to ask Mr. White how many boxes, and what quantity of nails, paper and other material he buys from our local merchants. Also I would ask him whether the money made in Watsonville by the Earl Fruit Company is invested here or elsewhere. What amount of taxes does the same company pay in this city, and how much money does Mr. White personally spend with the local businessmen. Some of the cash lump fruit buyers have been here for over 20 years and have done business with every grower in the Pajaro valley. We have always found growers thoroughly posted concerning the value of their crops, and fully capable of transacting their business without the help of a guardian. If any of them need any information there is no objection, of course, to their going to Mr. White, agent of the Earl Fruit Company, to obtain it. But I will say that unless he gives them more correct information than he did on this occasion it would be wiser not to consult him.—LUKE SCURICH, Chairman, Cash Lump Fruit Buyers."

end, they were met by Mr. Balovich’s brothers and many other old friends. As it was necessary to remain overnight in the city of Spltitz the party secured rooms at a local hotel. In the crowd was an older brother of Sam Balovich, the returning prodigal. This brother’s name was Antoin. On his way to his room that night Antoin met with an accident which precipitated him down a stairway. He received such injury that he died about an hour and a half later.

EP; 6 Jul 1907; article: "CRIMINAL OPERATION CAUSE OF DEATH. Mrs. Annie Strazicich, wife of Andrew Strazicich, a native of Austria, aged 33 years, died in this city this morning, under circumstances which promise a sensational expose of methods of performing certain surgical operations forbidden by law.

"Following instructions from District Attorney Knight, as soon as the death of Mrs. Strazicich occurred Mrs. Josefa Dean was taken into custody and held for examination on a charge of having been instrumental in the deplorable result of the case.

"District Attorney Knight, who, previous to the woman's death had secured a statement from her, came down this morning to direct the holding of an autopsy and inquest.

"A summary of the history of the case was given by District Attorney Knight as follows: 'The woman is named Annie Strazicich, 33 years of age. Eleven years ago she was married to Andrew Strazicich in this city. As a result of her marriage she has been the mother of four children, all girls, the eldest nine years of age and the youngest about seven months old.

"In her dying statement made to District Attorney Knight while she was in a perfectly clear state of mind, and witnessed by Nurse Fleming of El Pajaro General Hospital, Court Reporter Williamson and Dr. E. E. Porter, Mrs. Strazicich stated that she knew Mrs. Josefa Dean, and had known her for several years; that she knew Mrs. Dean was in the habit of going about among the families of the city, particularly to those of foreign birth, and telling them that it was unnecessary for them to have large families if they would see her.

"About the latter part of April, the woman said, she went to Mrs. Dean's house, where an operation was performed. Two days later a second operation was undergone, after which Mrs. Strazicich became very ill, growing worse until the middle of May, when Dr. Porter was called. He found her in a very bad physical condition and after treating her for a couple of weeks ordered her taken to a hospital. She was taken to the El Pajaro General Hospital and remained there about three weeks.

"Her case was a very bad one from the first, but she steadfastly refused to divulge who was responsible for her condition, until the first of July, when, as stated by the 'Pajaronian' at the time, she made a statement charging Mrs. Dean.

"An autopsy was performed...by Drs. S. C. Rodgers, Guy Miller and E. E. Porter, and the immediate cause of death was found to be septic peritonitis...

"District Attorney Knight this afternoon swore to a complaint charging Mrs. Josefa Dean with murder and a warrant was issued. The woman was already under arrest pending the charge. She will be taken to Santa Cruz this evening and will be returned here later on for her preliminary examination."

“Mrs. Mary Stoker was called as a witness and testified that she had attended Mrs. Strazicich during a part of her last illness. She told of a visit of the defendant to the deceased and of a conversation that took place between them relating to the alleged criminal operation. Mrs. Strazicich’s dying deposition was admitted as evidence against the protests of Attorney Burke, and the court adjourned for a recess at 4:30 p.m. She was held to answer in $5000 bail.”

"...The catastrophe of April, 1906, practically destroyed the old tunnel, and now, after the new one has been pronounced completed, the great masses of earth and gravel that were shaken from equilibrium over a year ago, are settling with telling effect upon the supports of the newly finished work, and every few days the pressure upon some part of the inside timbers becomes so great that they give way, letting down thousands of tons of loose debris into the right-of-way.

"The 400 Austrian laborers who have been at work on the reconstruction since the first of June of last year were withdrawn but a few days ago to be used in converting the Glenwood tunnel from narrow to broad gauge width, and a gang of track layers and section men were to follow them in the 6000 foot tunnel at Wright's and complete the work by making it ready for the through trains that were soon to have been placed in service. The frequently recurring landslides of the past few days have put an end to that, however, and the whole tunnel must be reconstructed, lined throughout with an impenetrable dome of concrete, before it will be safe to inaugurate a train schedule..."

"Yesterday afternoon District Attorney Knight introduced what purports to be the dying statement of Annie Strazicich, which included testimony that he later proceeded to substantiate by the testimony of the dead woman's husband, and by which he was endeavoring to establish the dying woman's mental competency, but which Mrs. Dean's attorney, W. P. Netherton, took exception to on the ground of irrelevancy. It was the argument of this point that consumed the entire afternoon up to the hour of adjournment.

"Today the lawyers for the defense, Netherton, Martin and Gaffey, again argued to have the statement thrown out, while District Attorney Knight is putting up a forceful plea this afternoon to allow the same to stand. The lawyers will not conclude their talkfest until this evening...

"The jurors sworn to try the case are: James Anderson, G. M. Shippy, L. B. Huddleson, P. P. Perry, E. J. Corbett, P. Conroy, George Wells, J. Black, G. L. Bradford, J. Sickler, A. A. Cox and F. Quistorf.

"Thos. Soberanes, G. B. Huston and Andrew Strazicich are here from Watsonville today waiting to give their testimony."

The jury was chosen and the opening statement made by District Attorney

Knight. Mrs. Strazicich's dying statement, charging the defendant with the crime, was read. The case is one of much interest, Mrs. Dean being well known as the daughter of Jose Bolcoff, a Russian[,] at one time alcalde in Santa Cruz during the Mexican regime. Her mother before her marriage was Candido Castro, of a prominent Spanish family and owners of Refugio rancho. Mrs. Dean's husband was a supervisor of Santa Cruz county. There is a strong array of legal talent for the defense."

EP; 20 Sep 1907; item: "Mercede Grobel, a Mexican, was brought to town by Deputy Sheriff Kennedy Thursday, and is in jail on the charge of assault with a deadly weapon. The Mexican had been at work up the coast, and came yesterday seeking work on the railroad at tunnel No. 4. It is charged that he entered a bunk-house last night intoxicated, where all the lower bunks were occupied. He demanded one of them of a Slavonian in the place, at the same time emphasizing his demand with 'I'll kill you,' and oaths. He then attacked the Slavonian, who was cut on the hand by the knife. The fellow was overpowered and brought to town.—Santa Cruz Surf."

EP; 20 Sep 1907; article: "Evidence All In and the Lawyers Are Now Making Their Arguments. [Special to the 'Pajaronian.'] Santa Cruz, Sept. 20...The fate of Mrs. Josefa Dean of Watsonville charged with having committed an operation which resulted in the death of Mrs. Andrew Strazicich, will rest this evening with the jury which has heard the evidence of the case during the last three days.

"This morning Dr. S. C. Rodgers of Watsonville and Dr. Clarke of Santa Cruz were put on the stand to give expert medical testimony as to the probable condition of Mrs. Strazicich's mind at the time she made the deposition charging Mrs. Dean with the crime.

"Andrew Strazicich, husband of the deceased lady, was also put on the witness stand again by the defense. The defendant, Mrs. Dean, took the stand and denied the commission of any wrongful operation which would cause death.

"District Attorney Knight is near the conclusion of a most eloquent argument for the prosecution. He stated that the case against the defendant had been clearly proven and demanded a conviction.

"Mr. Knight will be followed by Attorney W. P. Netherton for the defense, who is expected to make one of the best oratorical efforts of his legal career in Mrs. Dean's behalf.

"Following Netherton the district attorney will make an argument in rebuttal and then Judge Smith will deliver his charge and the jury will retire to make up its verdict."

"After receiving the court's instructions, which seemed to suggest an insufficiency of evidence, the jury was only out about 20 minutes when it brought in a verdict of not guilty.

"Mrs. Dean's attorneys were Edward Martin (himself a pioneer and who has known his client for upwards of 50 years in this county), W. P. Netherton and Thos. J. Gaffey...

"The outcome of the case has been watched with considerable interest, particularly on the part of old residents who have long known the accused lady. Many of them have not been backward at all in openly criticizing the motives of those who prompted the prosecution, in which they except the district attorney. Anyway, aged Mrs. Dean is clear, and the charge of murder does not rest against her reputation any longer."

"Mr. Matulich swore to a warrant for the arrest of Crawford...and Constable Corr went to work on the case. He found that the fugitive was headed for Oakland, where his mother lives, and after notifying Sheriff Traf-ton, telephoned to Whittier for Crawford's mother's street address. This was promptly supplied and the next step taken was to telephone the sheriff of Alameda county, who duly gathered in Mr. Crawford almost as soon as he arrived home, and also recovered Mr. Matulich's bicycle. The Alameda county sheriff wired Constable Corr to come and take over his prisoner and he will go to Oakland for that purpose by the early train tomorrow."

About seven weeks ago Lauritzen & Perinich shipped a consignment of San Benito county apples to London, England. The returns from this shipment have just been received, the apples bringing 19 shillings a box, a most satisfactory showing. Messrs. Lauritzen & Perinich, who are expert apple men of years experience, state that the apples raised here are the equal of any grown anywhere. With proper care of the orchards, they insist, growers will always be able to command good prices, but that unless more attention is paid to spraying, the orchards will be ruined. EP; 9 Oct 1907; article: “DIVIDING THE YEAR FOR SLOWER PUPILS. At their last regular meeting the school trustees of this district inaugurated a most praiseworthy rule in regard to graduations, making a semi-annual graduation possible for those pupils who failed to pass the examination at the close of the term.

“The plan, which is already in operation in Santa Cruz and elsewhere, is to have two classes, ‘A’ and ‘B,’ in each room, and if, for instance, a pupil should fail to pass out to the seventh year he or she remains in class ‘A’ in the seventh until, at the end of six months there shall be another examination, and it will then be possible for the pupil to advance into class ‘B’ in the eighth, where, by good work and at the discretion of the teacher, class ‘A’ can be attained before the end of the term, and the year’s work saved.

“It happens, frequently, that a pupil, through overconfidence or indolence, fails to secure the required percentage and must remain in his grade for another year. The effect is bad. Besides the loss of a year’s time, which falls as a hardship on the parents as well as the child, there is a loss of ambition which influences the future work of the pupil.

“The change makes it possible for a student who has failed at the examinations to catch up with his former classmates before they leave the next grade. He has but to work hard, and he can be ‘in at the finish.’” avenue against the widening of that thoroughfare between Main and Union streets. A petition signed by the following property owners was read protesting against the aforesaid improvement on the score that it would not increase the value of their property: ...Mateo Lettunich Co., Manzanita Co., Luke Scurich, Mateo Lettunich, M. N. Lettunich...F. P. Marinovich...

"H. S. Fletcher, representing the Bockius Co. and a number of other Maple avenue property owners, quoted the act of the legislature of 1903, governing the widening of streets, according to which the majority of the frontage rules in regard to whether an improvement which involves the taxation of property shall be made. The protestants in the case of Maple avenue held about 800 feet majority in the district affected, Mr. Fletcher said.

"Luke Scurich, on behalf of the Manzanita Co., of himself, and of F. P. Marinovich, followed the same line of argument as Mr. Fletcher, as also did Mateo Lettunich..."

"H. S. Fletcher, in reply, referred to the act of March, 1903, styled 'the street opening act' which amended the act of 1889. The city attorney argued that the city charter worked in conformity of the act of 1889, and advised the board to overrule the objection of the protesting parties.

"Resolution No. 237, overruling said objections to the proposed street improvement was then read and its adoption moved by Horgan, seconded by Peterson, and was passed by a unanimous vote.

"The city clerk read the resolution No. 238, providing for the widening of Maple avenue by the appointment of F. A. Kilburn, O. D. Stoesser and J. E. Steinhauser as commissioners to take charge of the work. Moved by Horgan and seconded by Fowler, this resolution was passed by a unanimous vote.

It is shipped generally to the Sandwich Islands, China, Japan, New Zealand, Australia and the Philippines. “On that date Knego, who was engaged in loading apple cars, had occasion to go to the depot office on business. Two engines were in the yard shunting and switching cars and a number of brakemen were assisting in the work. Knego passed the end of a string of flat cars, on each side of which brakemen were standing and just as he crossed the track a switch engine on the other track butted him and knocked him down, as a result of which he was severely injured. Knego alleges that the brakemen gave him no warning of the near approach of the switch engine. No date will be set for the trial until a return has been made of the summons on the S.P. Co.”

Margaretovich reported the burglary to Constable Corr, who went and examined the premises and is now investigating the matter. EP; 30 Nov 1907; article: "PROPERTY OWNERS PROTEST. Some time since Mayor Linscott and the Board of Aldermen conceived the idea of opening Front street from Main street to a point where the Salsipuedes creek empties into the Pajaro river, from the latter point to a connection with the county road, certain work was to be done by Supervisor Linscott. Shortly afterwards it was decided to open up and continue Front street on the south side from Rodriguez to Walker street. The expense of this street opening was provided for by an irregular shaped district taking in about one-third of the area of assessable property in the city. After the street was opened it has been the plan of the mayor and aldermen to build a levee along the river frontage, said work to be paid for by the whole city.

"There has been considerable difference of opinion as to the feasibility of the proposition in helping to keep the winter floodwaters from the Salsipuedes creek coming into the eastern portion of the city and in accordance therewith the following protest, representing a majority of the property frontage in the proposed assessment district have filed the following protest, on which the aldermen will take action at their meeting on Tuesday evening:

"We, the undersigned property owners, holding and owning a majority of the frontage in the district that will be affected by the opening of Front street, as specified in your resolution of intention, dated Oct. 18, 1907, and numbered 243, hereby protest against such opening for sundry good and sufficient reasons, viz: [reasons named but omitted here]"

Pilich secretary of the Zvonimair [Zvonimir] branch of the society of San Francisco, before a large crowd. The following officers were installed for the ensuing year: Steve Scurich, president; A. Strazicich, vice-president; John Arbulich, recording secretary; N. Stolich, financial secretary; E. Lettunich, treasurer; G. Pujo, chaplain; Luke Melosavich [Miloslavich], marshal; B. Borovinich, sergeant-at-arms; John Hrepich, chairman of the visiting committee.

"Following the installation of officers, speeches in the Croatian tongue were made by Attorney L. Bogicevich of San Francisco and A. Pilich on the great enthusiasm shown by the local lodge and on the good of the order. H. S. Fletcher and Dr. S. C. Rodgers addressed the assemblage in English. Both speakers complimented the society on their growth in the last six months and spoke highly of the Austrians as citizens.

"After the speeches a grand banquet was served in the refectory downstairs. The tables were prettily decorated with roses and smilax and a large cake with the words 'Zivilo Drustov, American and Croatian, Sokol,' donated by V. Lister, was placed on the officers' table. This was cut into many pieces and passed around to the other banqueters. Over 200 partook of the beautiful and well served repast. Speeches in the Croatian language were made by Mrs. Bogicevich, who was present when the local lodge was installed six months ago, and several others. Mrs. Bogicevich spoke of the growth and progress of the lodge and ended with a few words of praise for the committee in charge of the banquet—V. Lister, M. Knego and N. Alaga. The Tamburica Musical Club of San Francisco played for dancing, which was indulged in until midnight.

“The object of the Croatian Society is to help the people of the Croatian race now and hereafter residing in this country, when in distress, sickness or death, to educate and instruct them in the English language and other studies, to fit them for life and citizenship with the English-speaking people, to teach them and impress upon them the importance and duty of being naturalized under the laws of the United States and to educating their children in the public schools of the country.

The defendant was Isaac Gray, a fruit grower, and the court directs that the plaintiff take nothing by the action and defendant have judgment for his costs.

“The action involved the sale and delivery of 4000 pounds of dried apples. The fruit was delivered to plaintiffs f.o.b. Windsor, on August 14, 1906, and the firm paid for the same on delivery there. It arrived in San Francisco 10 days later, and there it was rejected by Guggenheim & Co. on the ground that it was damp and not properly cured. The court holds that it should have been inspected and rejected at the point of delivery, Windsor, instead of 10 days afterward in San Francisco.

“When the fruit was rejected by the San Francisco firm they sent it back to Gray, and he refused to receive it. It was then taken and sold at the best price obtainable, and this small amount deducted from the amount paid previously by the firm.

“The decision of the court has brought joy to the fruit growers, who have frequently been beaten by commission men through claims similar to this one.”

the performance of his duties, was opened in Justice Hawkins' court...The greater part of the morning was consumed in examining and choosing jurors. George Smith of the James A. Hall law offices represented the plaintiff...

"Martin Knego was the first witness called. He testified that on Oct. 9, 1907, while he was crossing the tracks of the Southern Pacific Co. he was struck and injured by a locomotive which came upon him without warning. When cross-examined...he stated that he ran across the track without stopping to see if the train was approaching and that a fellow workmen saw the train and tried to warn him, but that the warning came too late.

"Steve Knego, who was with the defendant at the time of the accident, was called and he told the court that brakemen who were standing beside an inactive train at the scene of the collision told them that it was all right to cross over. He also testified that he did not see the train until it was upon his brother.

"The plaintiff was then recalled by his attorney and questioned on the time he lost because of the accident. He stated that he was unable to work for 10 days and that his time was valued at $7 a day. Attorney Cassin asked the witness what the fruit companies pay him for loading cars and how the money was divided, adding that $7 a day was pretty good wages. Knego said that he was paid $4 a car for loading apples and $3 for berries, and that he loaded on an average of 15 cars a day, $42 of the amount was expended for labor and lumber and remainder was divided among the three partners.

"Mr. Smith asked that court adjourn until 2 p.m. and that the jurors be taken to the scene of the accident that they might gain a clearer idea of how the accident occurred.

"Upon the resumption of proceedings...Steve Knego, a brother of the plaintiff and one of the three partners, was the first witness called. He was asked what the average daily earnings of the three partners were. He testified that they average from $8 to $10 a day each, during the busy season. In the cross-examination...he testified that the partnership that existed at the time of the accident was not broken until the close of the season.

"Dr. S. C. Rodgers, who attended Knego during the latter's confinement from the injuries, was then called. He testified that he was called to attend the injured man and that the injuries were light. He stated that his fee for the two visits he made the injured man would be $5.

"When Dr. Rodgers retired from the witness stand Attorney Cassin made a motion for non-suit, on the grounds that the facts submitted in the evidence showed contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff. He then cited several decisions rendered by the Supreme Court of this and other States where non-suits were granted defendants where the evidence showed contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff.

"Geo. Smith replied at length to Mr. Cassin and put forth an argument, backed up by many legal decisions, that won for him much praise and would put to shame legal arguments made by many lawyers throughout the land that have a 'sheepskin'—something George does not possess as yet.

"Immediately after hearing Mr. Cassin's remarks in reply to Smith, Judge Hawkins refused the motion for a non-suit and ordered the trial to proceed."

EP; 28 Jan 1908; article: "RENTING GOOD ORCHARDS. Austrian Packers Have Adopted New System of Securing Apples. W. A. Sanborn has rented his ranch, containing one of the best apple orchards in the valley, to S. Pecoch [Pekoch] for a term of 5 years. Other orchards in the same locality near the river, it is understood, have been rented by O. S. Tuttle to Luke Scurich, and by Chesley Stow to Stolich Bros.

"For several seasons past Mr. Sanborn, as well as many other orchard owners in the valley, has been doing independent packing and shipping, but owing to the unreliability of the labor supply and the cost of incidentals has found the business unprofitable except in unusual years.

"The plan of renting for a term of years is something comparatively new in orchard circles, it having been the plan heretofore to sell the apples on the trees, in some instances 2 or even 3 years ahead of the season.

"As the renting movement seems to have been instituted by the Austrian packers it may have merits which do not appear on the surface, and it might be well for other packers to look into the plan."

Sresovich, for many years the leading commission merchant and fruit buyer of San Francisco, and who in the '80s was the first and largest buyer of Pajaro valley apples, committed suicide at Brentwood, Contra Costa county, by firing a bullet from a pistol into his head. The deceased only left his home in Soquel a few days ago to visit his two daughters at Brentwood. He had been in his usual jovial spirits and the news of his rash act was a sudden shock to his family and other friends in this county. He was aged about 60 years, was a native of Austria, and leaves 3 sons and 3 daughters to mourn his loss.

"The history of the commission business of San Francisco and California would not be complete unless the biggest individual space in the book be devoted to the connection with the business during the past 40 years of L. G. Sresovich. About 25 years ago he was rightly styled the king of the business in San Francisco and was the largest importer of fruits from Hawaii and the South Sea Isles. About the same time he established a big apple packing house on lower Main street in this city and for several years his firm was the leader locally in that business. During the past 20 years he met with many business reverses. But he was a hard one to keep down and he remained quite a factor in the S.F. commission world up to a couple of years ago, after which he devoted considerable of his time to his Soquel orchard interests.

"Mr. Sresovich was one of the most active and undaunted business men we ever met. He was always on the 'go,' and his method of departure from this world is not a surprise to those who knew the gentleman best. Further particulars of the suicide were not available this afternoon."

EP; 12 May 1908; article: "...This morning's Santa Cruz Sentinel contained the following article which casts a new light upon the sudden death of Luke G. Sresovich, the well known pioneer packer of Pajaro:

"The information that Luke Sresovich had suicided at Brentwood, Contra Costa Co., Sunday, and which caused a pang of regret to his many friends and acquaintances in this city, seems to have been a bit premature, insofar as it having been a case of suicide.

"Mr. Sresovich left Tuesday or Wednesday of last week for Brentwood, stopping on his way at San Francisco with a married daughter, Mrs. Ware. He continued his journey north and Saturday arrived at Brentwood at the home of his brother-in-law, in whose care were his two daughters, aged 12 and 15 years, respectively.

"A letter has been received by relatives in this city, stating that Sunday morning he arose early and was the first to go down stairs. Meeting his brother-in-law he asked for his rifle to shoot a rabbit in the orchard and was given an old-time Winchester and 4 cartridges. That was the last that was seen of him alive. When he did not return to breakfast, they thought he had gone on to Byron, a few miles away, where he once owned a $40,000 orchard.

"When he had not returned at 2 o'clock Mr. Peterson started out in quest of him and came upon his dead body in a fence corner in the orchard, where from every indication he had started to climb the fence, which, being old and insecure, had been insufficient to sustain him and the cross piece upon which he had evidently stepped, gun in hand, had broken beneath his weight. In the uncertain action that followed it is thought the gun was accidentally discharged. The shot entered his right temple and tore away the entire top of the head.

"Although he had met with many reverses of recent years and had lost his wife to whom he was devotedly attached, he was still possessed of considerable property, which puts to route the idea that he was driven to the deed through depleted finances."

SFCall; 13 May 1908; article: "[photo] Luke Sresovich Meets Death from Own Rifle While on Hunting Trip.

Luke G. Sresovich, one of the oldest and best known commission merchants in the city, met with a fatal accident at Brentwood, Contra Costa county, last Sunday morning. He was hunting for rabbits, and, it is supposed, that in climbing over a fence his rifle was accidentally discharged and the bullet killed him. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon...from Godeau's undertaking parlors, 2321 Bush street, under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity.

"Sresovich was born in Ragusa [Dubrovnik], Dalmatia, Austria, on August 18, 1848, and came to this country at the age of 18. He had been in the wholesale green and dried fruits and produce business for the last 35 years in this city. He was one of the largest packers and shippers in the state, and was the originator of the Pioneer brand of desiccated cocoanut. At one time he owned a large cannery interest in Santa Clara valley. He was considered the most enterprising man in his particular line of business and had done a great deal to benefit the state at large. He was a prominent member of the Masonic body, Odd Fellows and Austrian military society."

EP; 1 Jun 1908; article: “SITE AGAIN OPEN. Watsonville Heights is certain to experience another building boom in the near future. That advantageous section was well started on the way to be rapidly filled with beautiful homes when a suit was started by one Dorsey of San Francisco, claiming that he held title by deed from Helen Brodis, ex-wife of James Brodis, a colored man who had owned the property for 40 years.

“The company which had been formed under the name of the Watsonville Realty Co., for the purpose of disposing of the Heights property, found its operations blocked by the contest instituted by Dorsey, and although Dorsey’s deed, to a piece of homestead property, signed by only one of the homesteaders, was not worth the paper it was written on, his contention had sufficient semblance of merit to give it standing in the court and thereby frighten people from buying into the possibility of a lawsuit.

“Before this suit was instituted, however, a number of lots were sold and several of the purchasers had erected homes on the pretty location.

“In the Superior Court of this county where suit was brought[,] the case was decided adversely for Dorsey, but he took an appeal to the Supreme Court. The latter tribunal has affirmed the decision of the lower court, which finally disposes of the litigation and opens the way for the company to resume the sale of lots in that favored locality.”

EP; 18 Jun 1908; article: "N. Mortizia, one of the firm [,] and the active manager[,], of the California Fruit Packing Co., with headquarters in this city, has lately sent out queries to all parts of the United States in relation to this year's apple crop. Mr. Mortizia has resided in Watsonville for many years, is known to all our orchardists, and has a reputation second to none...as a man of his word and well informed fruit man.

"He says that during the past 10 days he has received 27 letters from different sections of the country touching on the fruit crop. New York, Virginia, Vermont and Pennsylvania will have very good crops; Kansas about 50%; Hood River, Oregon, about 700 carloads; all other States very light.

"Mr. Mortizia states that his firm is ready for the present season's business and will do the same on the basis that has prevailed during the past four seasons with him—no commission will be charged on the sale of fruit and only a reasonable and just amount for each packed box. His company will furnish the growers empty boxes free of charge to bring their fruit to the packing house. All the growers have to pay for is each packed box. All apples will be paid spot cash for as soon as they are ready and loaded on the cars. All other chances the company takes, and as soon as apples are received at the packing house the company will insure them, free of expense to the grower, at three-fourths of their market value.

"Mr. Mortizia, who is well acquainted in all Eastern apple selling agencies, has had a good reputation for his pack of fruit[.] [F]rom the time he first went into business with his former partner, I. H. Tuttle, the firm never had a carload of fruit rejected, something unusual. He put up the best pack of apples in the Portland and St. Louis fairs and received gold medals therefor.

"He believes his firm, the California Fruit Packing Co., can sell apples for better prices than others for the reason that they are exceptionally well posted on conditions of the trade through the Eastern and Western States, Australia, Honolulu, Great Britain and elsewhere. The firm will do good honest business with the growers and there will be no delay whatever in any payments.

"Mr. Mortizia will do all the managing of the business. His leading partner, B. N. Trobock, is one of the best known of all San Francisco's produce and commission merchants and is a man whose financial standing is the highest.

"No apples will be sold by the firm without the consent of the grower as to the price to be received, otherwise growers will have the right to sell their own fruit. The grower always has control of his own fruit. The firm will never have any trouble making sales of apples owing to the fact that they have so many well distributed selling agencies. Growers will always have the right, and are welcome, to come to the packing house and see how their fruit is sorted and packed...The company has already received five carloads of box shooks. That looks like business, doesn't it?"

EP; 20 Jun 1908; article: "WALKER STREET IS APPEL MEN'S MECCA. Five new packing houses have been, or are being, constructed this year, which is a pretty good indication that the packers have confidence in the future of the apple business in this city.

"The largest, in point of floor space, and the most substantial in the matter of construction, is that of the John Sheehy Company, located at the northeast corner of Walker and Second streets. The building is 56x180 and has 10,000 feet of floor space exclusive of a large platform on the eastern side of the building.

"The next in point of size is that of Stolich Bros., located near Walker street, but facing Fifth street and running through almost to Sixth street. This is a double-roofed building and covers 9600 square feet. On the same large lot Stolich Bros. are constructing a two-story frame building for the use of their employees.

"At the southeast corner of Walker and Fifth streets is another new packing house just erected by Novancovich [Novakovich] & Stolich. It is 50x50 in size and substantially built.

"On West Third street near Walker is located the 36x100-foot packing establishment of Gurash & Stolich, and on the east side of Walker between Second and Third, another belonging to J. D. Perry. The sixth building is in the form of an addition which will double the size of the Secondo Bros.' packing house on the lower Rodriguez street.

"All of these new establishments have been made necessary by the great increase in the number of young orchards coming into stronger bearing. The packing houses, packing sheds, driers, canneries and vinegar factories, now operating in Watsonville number more than 40, and the wiseacres of the apple business decree that within four years at least 50% more floor space will be required to accommodate the season's apple crop."

"Deputy District Attorney Bridges appeared for the people and Attorneys Oneal and Herrington represented Shafter, the case being submitted without argument. Justice Brown, before whom the examination was held, stated that he regretted that counsel did not argue the case. However, he had reviewed the evidence very carefully and he stated that he did not believe that any jury would convict Shafter. In Justice Brown's opinion, formed in the light of the evidence in the case, the truant officer believed that his life was imperiled when he fired the shot which ended Ivancovich's life."

She was burned about the face and neck by flames from her dress, which was fired by matches in the hands of other children.

"The little girl is a daughter of Mrs. Butier of San Francisco, formerly Mrs. Peter Lettunich of this city, and with her mother is here on a visit as the guest of the Milocivich family. [the child was Catherine Lettunich]

"Saturday the children were playing about the yard and no attention being paid to the fact they crawled under a part of the house projecting over a sloping bank. Later the screaming of the little girl attracted the older people to the yard, where they found her emerging from under the house with the front of her dress in a blaze.

"The flames were soon extinguished, but not until they had so severely burned the girl that it is feared her features will be scarred even if she escape a more serious result of the accident. At first it was believed that the trouble had been caused by firecrackers, but later it was ascertained that the children had been playing with matches, and a little boy had set the girl's dress a fire."

One of the largest and most successful fruit commission companies in the world is the Earl Fruit Co., with general headquarters in Sacramento. Over 10 years ago this company established a branch agency in Watsonville, in fact being the first commission company to do so, and placed W. H. White in charge of the same. Under the latter's management the business continued to grow from year to year. During all this time the marketing, routing, etc., of the business has been directed from the Sacramento headquarters and the orders have been transmitted here to local Superintendent White.

"But the business has reached such a high water mark that General Manager Katzenstein has issued an order that hereafter Watsonville is to be the general headquarters of the corporation for everything pertaining to the apple business, the same as Los Angeles is for the citrus business of the Earl Fruit Co. This order means that Superintendent White will hereafter direct from here entirely the multitudinous details of the office business of the company instead of every little detail having to receive the OK of the Sacramento office..."

EP; 21 Jul 1908; article: "REMARKABLE RANGE OF SLAV LANGUAGE. In an interesting inset to Stieler's Atlas a sketch is given of the distribution of official languages throughout the world. The most pervasive of all the official languages is English, which appears over a considerable portion of every continent and monopolizes one. But next to the English languages which cover the most territory are the Slav, and in one respect their range is still more remarkable, as they are entirely continuous. The Slav languages—Russian, Czech, Bulgarian, Servian, Croatian, Polish and so on, all closely connected with one another—are actually spoken over the northern half of Asia and in half of Europe. Perhaps the most graphic way of stating this fact is to say that a man thoroughly conversant with one of the Slav languages, and with none other, could make himself understood in traveling from the east coast of the Adriatic across Europe and across Asia to the Bering Sea. Another remarkable fact about the Slavs is the vigor of their expansion during the last hundred years. During the early part of the 19th century educated Russians following the example and precepts of Peter the Great, and to some extent of Catherine II, seemed almost ashamed of their nationality and language. The great poet Pushkin, for example, affected to say that 'the language of Europe' was more familiar to him than his mother tongue."

Language Revived.

"Again, in Bohemia, during the early years of the century, the Czech language was almost extinct, so that with a pardonable exaggeration, the Bohemian patriot Palacky, speaking to two of his friends, said that if the ceiling of the room in which they were should fall upon them and crush them the Czech race would have ceased living. Even 50 years ago Bulgars and Servians were hardly known except to historical students, while the language and national traditions of the Poles were repressed with almost equal severity by Russians, Prussians and Austrians. Today all is changed. The Russians, after being ruled on German methods, and also largely by Germans, for more than a century, seem finally to have advanced to a truly national development. From the middle of the last century the tenets of the Pan-Slavists have entirely modified the outlook of the Russian people, who instead of being ashamed of their barbarism, have come to look on the Slav races as the people of the future. This process was largely aided by the policy of Alexander II, the czar liberator, little as he himself sympathized with the Pan-Slavist agitation. His emancipation of the serfs, and, still more, his campaign to liberate the Bulgars, Servians and Montenegrins from Turkish tyranny, gave Russia and all the other Slav races a new conception of their might and their destiny. This process was continued by Alexander III, who more than any previous czar since Peter the Great was in sympathy with the real nature and spirit of his people.

“This expansion of Russian and national self-consciousness has been accompanied by similar movements in the other Slav races. The new strength of Bulgaria, Servia and Montenegro, as we have seen, was largely due to Russia; but the Poles also, hitherto oppressed by the other Slavs, as well as by Germans, have not only shown that their proud national spirit is not extinct, but have developed unexpected qualities of tenacity and political foresight, and, indeed, in a large province of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy have attained the position of a ruling class. Perhaps, however, Bohemia shows the most wonderful example of Slav revival. This country, which seemed to have had all national spirit crushed out of it by German invaders since the 30 years’ war, has entirely recovered its racial individuality. In Prague itself, the capital, German, if understood, is spoken almost with bated [sic] breath, so strong is the feeling against it; and the emperor has actually acknowledged the Bohemian nation’s claims to separate treatment, though he has never actually been crowned as king of Bohemia in Prague, as the Bohemians think would be the logical result of this admission.”

Causes of Slav Revival.

“The causes of this Slav revival, one of the most far-reaching, if hitherto neglected, developments in European history, are twofold. One is the awakening of national feeling in Russia, that mysterious ‘cloud of power in the north,’ as Catham called it, with the life which this awakening brought for the Balkan Slav races; the other is the institution of the German Empire, with the consequent gravitation of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy’s interests from Germany to all the scattered races in its own orbit. The casual observer, influenced no doubt by the history of former centuries, still thinks of Francis Joseph’s Empire as primarily German, and secondly Hungarian, with an admixture of other races which hardly count numerically or politically. But, as a matter of fact of all the races in the monarchy the Slavs are the most numerous. In Austria proper, out of over 26 million inhabitants there are only 9 million Germans and about 1 million Italians and Wallachians, while the remaining 16 million are Slavs.

“Even in Hungary, in a population of over 19 million, the Slavs account for over 5 million and the Hungarians do not form half the population. In the whole of the monarchy the Germans are only reckoned at 11 million and the Hungarians at 8,250,000. In view of these figures it is at first sight a subject for wonder that the Slavs have not more influence in the realm than they at present have. One reason for this is that they are still by no means a coherent body. In Galicia, for example, there are two Slav races, the Poles and the Ruthenes; and of these the Poles, being the masters, have driven the Ruthenes into opposition to them. The Serbs of the monarchy and the Croats, closely allied as they are in blood, are separated by their religions, the former belonging to the Orthodox church, while the Croats are Roman Catholics. In fact, the Bohemians, the Poles and the Croats, now almost dominant races in their own parts of the empire, find sometimes as much cause for difference with some of the other Slav races as with the Germans and Hungarians.”

EP; 24 Jul 1908; article: “Packers and Shippers Are Getting Their Houses into Shape... A visit to the many packing houses in this city shows that the packers are not worrying over the apple output this season...”

“During the past year there has been one large new packing house erected in the Walker street district, several old ones have had additions constructed, and in others many improvements have been made preparatory to the opening of this season’s business.

“A...reporter who visited the packing houses yesterday found all of the packers in a sanguine mood over the prospects for this season. ‘Biggest in years,’ was the usual answer to the question, ‘What do you think of the prospects for the apple season?’

“Many of the packers have small forces of men at work in the houses making boxes, overhauling trucks, patching boxes, etc.

“The ‘cot’ driers are up to their necks in work. Pulisevich Bros., who have leased Cassin’s field for the drying season, have nearly 100 men, women and children engaged in pitting. There one sees old men and young men, old women and young women, boys and girls, babes in arms and in boxes—all except the latter working industriously for ‘six cents per.’ The average wage earned by these workers is about one dollar per day. The apricot driers located in the country are not so fortunate in securing help, although they pay from two to four cents more per box. Pitters say that they would rather work in town for six cents a box than to go out into the country for eight or ten...”

Droback ‘fired’ Benko. The owner of the ranch reinstated Benko. The foreman quit. Benko made more allegations. They met and the ex-foreman wanted his name established. He asked Benko to go with him to the Lettunich packing house and ‘clear it.’

“They went but while Droback was gathering witnesses to refute the statements made by Benko, the latter made a bolt for the door. Too late, Droback caught him a jolt in the eye and felt vindicated. Benko felt injured and went to Justice Hawkins with his trouble and his sore eye. The Judge issued a warrant. Sandberg served it. Droback was hauled into court. The charge was read. EP; 18 Aug 1908; article: “Fruit Industry Has Called Largest Number of People Seen Here in Years. At the union temperance meeting the other night one of the speakers said that the population of Watsonville had doubled in the past 25 or 30 years. If one were to judge by the strange faces to be seen on the street Saturday night it might be surmised that the population had doubled again since the foregoing figures were taken.

“In the passing throng one who had lived here for years might find his townsmen of 20 years ago averaging about one in every hundred faces; those of 10 years ago, including children, about one in every 20, while the people whose names had been learned recently or not at all were going past by hundreds.

“That circumstance has to be accounted for by the arrival of an unusual number of people whose business is to work in the fruit. They are certainly a very desirable class of people, far removed from the gypsie and hobo class of travelers.

“This migratory contingent as a rule is composed of sober, respectable and industrious workers, in many instances young married couples enjoying an outing and at the same time making their pleasure pay.

“This class is well known in the interior of the State, where they follow the fruit ripening season from south to north, but this is the first year that their services have been required in this early part of the season, and they have found the lodging house keepers and restaurateurs somewhat unprepared for them. They are regular patrons of those establishments and are known as orderly, desirable customers while they stay.

“Distinguished from them is another class of migratory working people who have come from the interior or northern part of the State and purpose going south by wagon to spend the winter. They are here in families and are camped near the berry or hop fields. They, too, are orderly and respectable, having nothing in common with the old-fashioned ‘wagon tramps’ who spent their lives running away from work.

“Working with these people and scattered all over the valley in various departments of the fruit industry are the young Slavonians patiently plodding through their first years in America and no doubt dreaming of the soon to be seen day when they, too, will be employers of men. They constitute a noteworthy figure in the average population.

“The much-talked-of Jap is not so much in evidence in the fruit work as one might suppose. In fact there seem to be more Chinese than Japanese scattered amongst the laborers.

“Last—and thanking a kind Providence, least—is the famous Weary Willie, the peripatetic half-unfortunate, half-criminal, wholly lazy ‘bo’ whose sole object in working a while is not so much to enjoy the first fruits of his labor as it is to get a place of reference in case he gets ‘pinched.’

“With all of these people in the valley it is scarcely a cause for wonder that our population would seem to have doubled several times recently. It all means prosperity for the merchant and the merchant can never be prosperous unless the community of his customers have a silver ‘jingle in their jeans.’”

Strazicich. A few minutes later A. Riboni, a hotel keeper, brought the check in question to Chief of Police Albright and asked what he should do with it. The chief saw at a glance that the endorsed name of Strazicich was forged, as it was spelled, Stravicich. The check was shown to Mr. Strazicich and he pronounced it a forgery at once.

“Rodriquez has been employed by the Granite Rock Company and has been boarding at the restaurant owned by Mr. Strazicich. Knowing Rodriquez to be of doubtful integrity, the restaurateur refused to board him unless he was assured of money for board. Accordingly it was agreed that the Granite Rock Company should make Rodriquez’s check out in favor of Strazicich, so that he could deduct what was due for board and return the remainder over to Rodriquez. The scheme worked to perfection for several weeks and probably would have continued to do so had not the aforementioned Rodriquez gotten an idea that he was a whiz with the quill. Saturday night, instead of going to the Morning Star with his check, he went to A. Riboni’s place and passed the check after fixing the name ‘Stravicich’ to it. When the facts became known Riboni swore to a complaint charging the pen and ink ‘artist’ with forgery, which will be a just cause for Mr. Rodriquez becoming the guest of the State should he be convicted.”

“Mr. McGowan reports that when the drill was at a depth of about 80 feet it sent up a number of redwood chips, showing that it had encountered a log of that species of wood. EP; 17 Oct 1908; article: "...One of the best organized systems for handling all sorts of apples and for utilizing every part of the fruit is that in use at the plant run something after the community plan with the San Monte Fruit Company as the parent organization. It should be understood that each of the establishments is conducted as a separate institution but the three lesser ones, the Pajaro Packing Company, the Krieger Vinegar Works, and the Lee Wah Drier, are almost wholly, or at least in very great measure dependent upon the San Monte Fruit Company for stock.

"For instance, this season about 10,000 tons of apples will be received by the parent company. Through the operation of a mechanical device...the work of a regular army of girls engaged in sorting and grading is greatly facilitated and besides the thousands of boxes of selected 3-, 4- and 5-tier apples reserved for shipment by the company, there is a double stream of defective or blemished fruit turned out by the machine. One stream of the rejected apples goes to the cannery, and another to the drier, while the residue such as pairings, corings, etc. from these establishments is added to the culls hauled from the fields, and their product is made into good cider vinegar. Of course the output of the latter establishment is not dependent solely on the drier and cannery but apple vinegar stock is secured from many other sources as well.

"In the Lee Wah drier...some number of tons of green apples approximating 1060 will be used, and in the Pajaro Packing Company's cannery this season an effort will be made to use somewhere near 650 tons, and of these two amounts, added to the consumption of the vinegar works are estimated to cover practically all of the difference between the fruit received and fruit forwarded in their big packing house..."

EP; 24 Oct 1908; article: “FANCY BELLEFLEURS FOR N.Y. MARKETS. A number of the local packing houses have underway a proposition to make up a carload shipment of Bellefleur apples for New York. Nothing but choice 4-tier stock, highly colored, will be forwarded. Upon reaching New York the apples will be placed on sale by a representative in the best fruit stands of that city and it is predicted that their sale will be quickly effected and a future demand for Pajaro valley choice Bellefleurs created.

“Heretofore Bellefleurs have not been marketed in New York but to a small extent—in fact their shipment there has not been encouraged. This year Pajaro valley has a crop of this variety of apples that for average size, color and quality has never been excelled here. There has never in the past been a fair test made of the New York market with this variety of apples, and the packers who will send the car out next week are going to make it for the first time.

“Luke Scurich and F. P. Marinovich are interesting themselves in the matter of securing from the different packers from 50 to 100 boxes of choice Bellefleurs to make up the carload. They have both had long and successful experience in the apple packing and shipping business and are firm in their belief that the fancy fruit stalls of New York will become extensive purchasers of choice Pajaro valley Bellefleurs providing they are given that kind of stock. The outcome of this test shipment will be anxiously watched by all growers and packers.”

EP; 26 Oct 1908; article: “Two Local Fruit Packers Engage in Fistic Encounter. Mike Mayovich and John Gabelich, two residents of the local depot packing section, became engaged in a fistic battle...the result of which was the arrest of Mayovich for battery and the arrest of Gabelich for disturbing the peace.

“It is said that much enmity has prevailed between the two men for some time and last night...the two had some bitter words that ended in the battery of Mayovich upon the person of Gabelich. Before the infuriated man could be pulled off by his friends Gabelich had been kicked around the head and in the chest, receiving painful injuries.

“A call was sent to police headquarters and Officers Whalen and Bagnall were soon upon the scene. Judge Bridgewater was hurried from his home to issue a complaint for battery on the part of Mayovich. The latter was arrested and later released upon payment of $25 cash bail.

EP; 27 Oct 1908; article: “CAR OF BELLEFLEURS FOR NEW YORK...Several days ago the ‘Pajaronian’ published an item to the effect that F. P. Marinovich and Luke Scurich, two of the oldest and best known apple shippers of the Pajaro valley, were interesting themselves in getting other packers to join them in making up a carload of extra fancy Bellefleur apples for shipment to an agent in New York who was in touch with the fancy retail grocery and fruit trade of that city, and have the apples placed on sale in that class of stores in order to ascertain whether or not an active demand for such stock of apples from this valley could not be created.

“Messrs. Scurich and Marinovich have been successful in their effort and last night a carload of the choicest Bellefleurs ever packed in this valley left Watsonville depot, consigned to an agent in New York who will place the fruit on sale in certain retail sections of the country’s metropolis. Ten packing houses figure in the shipment of 688 boxes of apples all of which is 4-tier stock with the exception of 25 boxes of 3-tiers. In each box is an ‘apple card’ with statistical literature of the Pajaro valley.

“The car will go east over the Harriman lines to Council Bluffs, Iowa, and there will be picked up by the Chicago and Great Western and hurried on to its destination. The latter railroad company is manifesting considerable interest in the shipment. It will take 12 days for the car to reach New York.

“The results of the ‘test’ shipment of fancy Bellefleurs to New York will be watched with interest. The ‘Pajaronian’ has always been of the opinion that a demand could be created for fancy stock of that variety in New York equally as well as it exists for our Newtowns.”

“During his employment by the capitalists Mr. Obradovich...has located over half a million acres of land, most of it in a colonization scheme developed at Seattle, Washington, and finally established near there.

“In completing the whole plan of colonization referred to, 29,000 Swiss families will be brought around Cape Horn to Seattle and thence will go to their new homes.

“Each family will get a certain number of acres to farm and each year will pay 30% of the earnings of the ranch toward the amount agreed upon...and will get a deed to the land when the full price has been paid.

“At the present time this company has about 100 men in this State cruising land with a view of establishing another colony. They expect to take up about 1,000,000 acres if possible.

“Mr. Obradovich has earned a good salary and commission through his transactions in Washington, and is going to send for his family and remain for the greater portion of his vacation in Pajaro valley. He characterizes this place as the best he has ever seen and his observations in land cruising have extended over most of the world.”

It is expected that if this is true the new concern will pack both deciduous and citrus fruits at this plant and will erect an icing plant and other works here. Developments in regard to the Pacific Fruit Express are being eagerly watched here, for it is believed to be a Western Pacific enterprise, organized for the purpose of securing for the new railway a large portion of the fruit shipping business of the territory through which the Gould road will pass.”

Apple buyers have been buying up during the past two weeks many small lots of choice apples in different parts of the valley that orchardists had stored away on their account. EP; 30 Dec 1908; article: "Before Becoming a Naturalized Citizen These Days You Must Know A Few Things...The laws are very strict now in relation to the admission of aliens to citizenship. Now an alien in order to become a citizen, must proceed in the following manner:

"First—Two years at least prior to his admission, and after he has reached the age of 18 years, he shall declare his intention to become a citizen of the United States, under oath, before the county clerk or the clerk of any court exercising naturalization jurisdiction...

"Second—Not less than two years nor more than seven years after making such a declaration and after he has been in the United States continuously for the full period of five years, the applicant must secure two witnesses, citizens of the United States, who shall go with him to the county clerk's office and swear, under oath, that they have personally and continuously known him to be a resident of the United States for the full period of five years immediately preceding that date; of the filing of the petition, and of the State wherein he then resides for the year immediately preceding that date; that he is a man of good moral character; that he is attached to the principles of the constitution of the United States; well disposed to the good order and happiness of the same, and in every way qualified to be admitted as a citizen of the United States.

"Third—Not less than 90 days after filing his petition the applicant, with his two witnesses, upon a day regularly set by the court, must appear in open court before the judge of the court and be examined under oath; the applicant as to his qualifications for becoming an American citizen, and the witnesses as to their competency to testify, from personal knowledge, as to the applicant's character, behavior and facts of residence in the United States, as required by the act of congress of June 29, 1906.

"In addition to the above the applicant must possess the following qualifications:

"He must be over the age of 21 years, able to read and write the English language, and to understand generally the workings of this government; that is, you must know who the president of the United States is, how he gets his office and how long he serves; who the United States senators are from his State, and how they get their office, and the manner in which a bill is presented to congress, and how it is passed, so that when he comes to vote he can vote his own vote, and not be subservient to the will of corrupt political bosses who desire the votes of the illiterate to further their own selfish purposes..."

EP; 6 Jan 1909; article: “20 CENT MEALS HAVE DISTURBING EFFECT. Apparently the city legislators must have perused the financial statements of the city officials, as published exclusively in last evening’s ‘Pajaronian,’ showing upwards of $26,000 receipts in December, with over $11,000 expenditures, and other interesting facts in connection therewith, for right in the midst of last night’s business, when the monthly claims were under consideration, a great wave of economy and a desire for investigation, retrenchment and reform suddenly loomed up, and the most likely target that appeared to wreak vengeance upon was a bill of Strazicich and Sersen for meals furnished to prisoners during a number of months past, at the rate of ‘20 cents per,’ amounting to a total of $23.60, and all of which had been properly checked up and approved by Chief of Police Albright.

“This bill started a torrent of arguments pro and con which was interrupted by the mayor’s call for an executive session in order that the heated words might not reach the ears of the fastidious public, and the press representatives.

“When the city fathers emerged from this session a resolution was hurriedly passed providing that hereafter no public officer should purchase goods or necessities for the city unless they first procured a written requisition from the chairman of the committee that was in charge of that line of public work...

“The mayor’s contention last night in relation to the swearing to of all bills presented to the Board for consideration does not seem to have applied in the past to the $25 per month bill of the Watsonville Water Co., of which corporation he is the superintendent and manager. Probably realizing this last night, and further knowing that it would not look exactly nice or legal for him to swear to the December claims of the company at that time, the bill was laid over for future action—or until some clerk of the company could swear to the affidavit...”

EP; 25 Jan 1909; article: “The present indications are that the local fruit packing season will close about the middle of this week. The only packing houses now in operation are those of the Stolich Brothers Company, Secondo Company and the Pekoch Company. Six cars were sent out of the local railroad yards last Saturday, and there are now only the same number left to ship in order to complete the season. The inclemency of the weather, together with the several washouts along the lines of the S.P. Co. have had much to do with the delaying the closing of the season, but as these hindrances are now practically a thing of the past, the work is fast being rushed to completion.

“With the seven carloads still to go out this week from Watsonville the total shipments for this season from Pajaro valley will amount to 3214 carloads, 500 of which were from Pajaro, Aromas and Vega loading stations. It is safe to estimate that about 1000 carloads of inferior and small sized apples were converted into by-products, such as vinegar, cider and dried apples, which[,] added to what was shipped to outside markets[,] would bring the total apple yield for 1908 up to about 4250 carloads.”

“Not knowing that the fare for night service is 50 cents ‘each man’ they proffered pay at the rate of 25 cents each. The driver insisted on having his full fare and after considerable discussion Constable Cano was called and the two men were put under arrest. They were searched and locked up in the dismal affair which serves for a

Chinatown calaboose, and yesterday morning were hauled into court where their case was set for next Friday and were released on $10 cash bail each.

“On applying to Attorney Smith of this city they secured his services and this afternoon the case was advanced on the calendar and dismissed. District Attorney Bardin agreed with Mr. Smith that criminally the men could not be held and convicted for the charge on which they were arrested.”

EP; 17 Feb 1909; article: “RAILROAD MUST PAY FOR SPOILED APPLES. A Judicial Decision which Pajaro Valley Shippers should Bear in Mind Next Season. Every apple grower, packer, shipper and broker of Pajaro valley should be interested in a verdict recently handed in before United States Judge Simpson of Minneapolis, Minn., wherein heavy damages were awarded against the Northern Pacific R.R. Co. for failure to provide refrigerator cars to apple shippers in the State of Washington. Every season Pajaro valley shippers have suffered from a failure of the S.P. Co. to furnish sufficient cars and just complaints have only resulted in hot air 'promises.'

"The local shippers should clip the following synopsis of the jury's verdict, as published in the recent issue of the Minneapolis News:

"One of the largest verdicts of its kind ever rendered in Minnesota was returned by a jury late Saturday in the case of Ritchey & Gilbert Co. vs. Northern Pacific Railway Co. before United States Judge Simpson, the amount awarded being $21,588...

"The decision would be of the greatest interest and advantage to shippers of fruits, produce, livestock and perishable property in general, affording a precedent as to their rights in similar cases.

"The suit resulted from the failure of the railway company to provide refrigerator cars with reasonable promptness for the use of Ritchey & Gilbert Co. to ship some 40 cars of fancy boxed apples from the stations at North Yakima and Toppenish, Washington, to the eastern market during the fall of 1907, as a result of which delay the apples became overripe and damaged and the market declining before they could be shipped.

"The railway company asserted that its line, yard and terminals became congested because of an unusually heavy press of business and that a great number of its refrigerator cars had been shipped off its lines early in the season, necessarily delaying the movement of its trains and causing a general car shortage.

"The shippers affirmed that the railway company had advance notice of the shipment, which was about the usual crop, and that the road should have been prepared to take care of the shipments without any delay whatever.

"The court instructed the jury as a matter of law that it was the duty of the railway company to promptly furnish necessary and suitable cars on request for all shipments which the company might reasonably anticipate would be offered, and that the failure to do so would make it liable to the shipper in damages arising from the decline in market as well as from deterioration in condition."

Such a Plan of Organization Should Exist Among the Apple Growers of Pajaro Valley. San Jose, March 15—A call has been sent out by several prominent fruit growers of this valley for a meeting of 50 representative producers to be held Tuesday... at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce.

"The purpose of the meeting, which will not be open to the general public, is to discuss ways and means to improve the condition of the fruit market. It is generally recognized among fruit growers not only that the prevailing fruit prices are below the most economic cost of production, but that a betterment can only be induced through concerted action among a majority of the growers along some well defined and well considered lines. Five horticulturists, with a view of setting some proper remedial machinery in motion, have addressed a letter to a considerable number of fruit growers. It is expected and hoped that all of those who have received the notice of the meeting will attend. If 90% of those present agree upon a plan of action, a general public mass meeting will be called; otherwise the matter will be dropped."

EP; 16 Mar 1909; article: "DISTRICT ATTORNEY DISMISSES CASE. The trial of James Sullivan and Henry Foster this morning in Judge Hawkins' court for the alleged disturbing of the peace of Andrew N. Zufich in the Blackburn addition over a week ago was one of the shortest exhibitions of justice ever pulled off in this section. After three witnesses for the prosecution including the complainant had testified, District Attorney B. K. Knight who conducted the prosecution, moved that the case be dismissed because of insufficient evidence to convict. Judge Hawkins accordingly granted the motion and instructed the jury through Foreman I. H. Tuttle to render a verdict of 'not guilty.' The jurors who heard the case were B. F. Akers, I. H. Tuttle, A. Martin, W. J. Gleason, Luke Scurich, F. A. Kilburn, W. J. Majors, Stephen Hatch and F. P. Marinovich.

"The first witness called was Andrew Zufich, the complaining witness. He testified that the two defendants called him from his house and when once outside began to assume a belligerent attitude, used offensive words and in general frightened him so much that he ran into a neighbor's house for refuge.

"Joseph Powaski, a fellow employee of the two defendants, was the next witness and his testimony was almost a direct contradiction of Zufich's allegations. Powaski was present during the conversation between Zufich and the defendants and he denied that any offensive words or that any belligerent expressions were used. In fact, stated Powaski, he thought the whole proceedings was a joke.

"G. A. Fenn was the last witness for Zufich and he testified that the latter ran into his house in a great fright. Zufich asked Fenn to protect him from the alleged attacks of Sullivan and Foster but Fenn alleged that he saw no cause for alarm on the part of Zufich as the defendants came up later and asked in a gentlemanly way to speak to Zufich for a few moments.

"It was then that District Attorney Knight made his motion for dismissal of the case..."

Yesterday Chief of Police Albright notified all of the local garages and autoists that the recent infractions of the speed law in Watsonville would not be tolerated any longer.

"This morning one of the first violators of the 12-mile-an-hour speed ordinance in the city of Watsonville was Guy L. Bailey, of Berkeley, a mechanical engineer, visiting friends here, who was accompanied by Mayor J. A. Linscott.

"The car, according to the statement of Mr. Bailey, was making a good 20 miles an hour, and according to observers, a good deal more.

"When hauled before Judge Bridgewater, Mr. Bailey acknowledged that his car was going more than 12 miles an hour, but said he had no means of knowing that the speed ordinance, if one were in effect, was being enforced. He cheerfully paid the $6 fine imposed, but characterized the ordinance as ridiculous—wherein the people who have to walk do not agree with him.

"Chief Albright believes that autoists have lately been abusing the provisions of the ordinance regulating the speed of automobiles and it has to stop.

"It is unfortunate that the first arrest made was a stranger, and therefore he was given the minimum fine."

Day, secretary of the firm.

“Mr. Day has been making annual visits to Watsonville for almost 15 years past, and his well groomed appearance certainly indicates that old Father Time is not leaving any marks on him. The happy condition he attributes in a large measure to the benefit derived from his annual business outings to the Pacific coast.

“During the 1908–09 season Mr. Day says his firm has handled over 200 carloads of Pajaro apples. Up to within the past few weeks the prices received have not been very favorable, but at present the cold storage apples from here are bringing good prices in the east and in Great Britain. Lack of uniformity in grading, packing and quality of some of the fruit shipped is what injures in mid-season the sale of Pajaro apples in New York, says Mr. Day.

“The recent ‘jump’ in the price of Pajaro apples in the New York and English markets, says Mr. Day, was just to the liking of W. N. (‘Nick’) White the well-known New York apple speculator, and who at one time years ago, when operating in London, bore the title in trade circles of ‘the English Apple King.’ Right at the present ‘Nickie’ has 25 carloads of Pajaro Newtown apples which he bought ‘low’ and has been carrying in cold storage for some time. He will net a neat sum as a result of the ‘jump up’ in prices.

EP; 7 Apr 1909; article: "OVERRULING RIGHTS OF HOME OWNERS. Beyond a little spluttering and sizzling at infrequent intervals, the meeting of the mayor and board of aldermen last night was devoid of any fireworks to make the meeting interesting. There was only one time when all present seemed excited and wanted to do all the talking, and that was when two communications were read, one in which the Watsonville Lumber Company wanted a spur track across the Walker street, between Lake avenue and Kearney street and the other wherein Copriviza & Gera applied for a spur track from the main line of the railroad south of the intersection of Second and Walker streets, to their property on the opposite corner.

"Both applications might have slipped through had not Perry M. Andrews, on behalf of his mother, Mrs. D. Tuttle, made a protest. Andrews wanted to know if the spur would go past the middle of the street on the south, but Copriviza, who answered him, could guarantee nothing. Copriviza told the board that he did not wish to infringe on anyone's property rights and that besides, the spur would go on the street, which was city property.

"Alderman Weisenburger suggested that a diagram be produced showing what effect the track would have on the property there and in order that the members of the board could intelligently vote on the question. Alderman Horgan, in true Herrinesque style, said that he could not see on what grounds anyone could oppose spur tracks, as there were several spurs there already. He said it would be impossible to put in a spur track at Second and Walker streets which would not go past the center of the street.

"Horgan appeared to be anxious to have the resolutions granting away valuable rights of the people acted on at once, and went on to tell how the dear corporation, the S.P. Co., should be given plenty of time in which to put in any spur track and if the matter was delayed how difficult it might be to get into touch with their engineers. The rights of the poor property owners seem to be a matter of secondary consideration.

"Mayor Linscott was holding down an expression of his real sentiments on the resolution which had been 'slipped' to Clerk Coffman after the board had convened, but it was easy to be seen that he much regretted that any property owner should have protested.

"Mr. Andrews, in his remarks, stated that there was already a spur track adjoining the property of Copriviza & Gera, and that a continuation of the same could be made from the west into their property.

"Mr. Copriviza said this would be entirely satisfactory to him, but that the owners objected, but Mayor Linscott did not volunteer what control the city should exert over such a matter.

"Alderman Weisenburger finally insisted that his motion calling for delay of action should be put and such was finally adopted.

"Action on the spur track propositions on Walker street will take place next Tuesday night..."

EP; 7 Apr 1909; article: "A JUST PROTEST. Within the past two years the present mayor and aldermen have permitted Walker street from Third to the river to be converted into a switching yard for the S.P. Co. by an indiscriminate installation of spur tracks without consultation with or respecting the rights of all property owners along that street or even the general public. Resolutions granting these privileges have been slipped through at meetings at which they were first introduced when common justice to those people who have invested their hard earned savings in little homes along Walker street should have prompted a postponement of final action for at least a week. Further, with each application for a spur track there should have been a plan filed and all of them should have been granted with the proviso that the city could order them removed, if necessary, at any future time.

"There is a right way to do public business of this nature as well as a wrong one, and the latter course has been pursued by the mayor and aldermen in this matter. The necessity for the installation of certain spur tracks on Walker street, from Third to the river, cannot be objected to under present conditions, but there is no necessity whatever for injuring homeowners and making certain street corners regular death traps by the indiscriminate installation of these spur tracks.

"At last night's meeting of the aldermen resolutions granting the right to install two additional spur tracks, one at Second and Walker streets and another across Walker, between East Lake avenue and Kearney, were passed to Clerk Coffman to read and would have been 'slipped through' but for the fact that Perry M. Andrews happened to fortunately be at the meeting and, on behalf of his widowed mother, who has a pretty little home at the corner of Second and Walker streets, he made a just protest. Alderman Palmtag had already made a motion to such effect and the vote was just to be called for when Mr. Andrews arose. Action was delayed in both matters for one week on motion of Alderman Weisenburger, but not with the hearty goodwill of 'the powers that be.'

"Now, in relation to that application of Messrs. Copriviza and Gera for that Second and Walker street spur there is a way in which they can be accommodated without the board doing a damnable injustice to a widow's property or converting a public street corner into a death dealing trap, and further, we believe Mayor Linscott and several of the aldermen know full well how it can be done.

"As regards the installation of a spur track on Walker between East Lake avenue and Kearney, it should not be granted and the citizens of the whole city should arise in protest of the same. It is bad enough to have made a spur track district of Walker street from Third to the river. Let the work stop there. It is about time to stop and consider in this matter the rights of honest homeowners, many of whom are afraid to publicly protest against such an injustice because the infamous 'influence' might reach out and deprive them of a job or the show to get one.

"Roosevelt's rule of a 'square deal' should be followed in all public matters, like unto giving the Harri-man-Herrin corporation spur tracks indiscriminately, and it is about time it was put into practice in municipal matters in the city."

The insane Slavonian was being kept since his escapade of a week ago at the Del Monte fruit farm at Aromas.

"Early this morning Drobaz arose and commenced raising a riot in the cookhouse that was in the yard. He then walked over to a nearby fence and tearing off a picket returned to the cookhouse with the weapon. Before anyone could stop the mad man he had beaten a bicycle into a mere scrap heap with the fence picket, all the while gleefully laughing and gloating over his work. Drobaz was at last subdued and one of the ranchmen hastened into town to swear out a warrant for his arrest.

Constables Sandberg and Corr hastened to the scene in an automobile and placed the man under arrest."

EP; 19 May 1909; obit: "Well Known Fruit Packer of This Valley Died Suddenly...Mitchell N. Alaga, a member of the well known fruit packing firm of Alaga Brothers, passed away suddenly early this morning at his home at 32 Alexander street, a victim of heart trouble. Mr. Alaga retired in the best of health and spirits and had returned early in the evening from an enjoyable automobile ride around the valley. About midnight a fellow-lodger in the house heard moans from Mr. Alaga's room and upon entering found him suffering from severe pains in the heart. Dr. Keopke was hastily summoned, but the Grim Reaper had already placed his firm hand on Mr. Alaga and all that medical skill and friends could do was in vain.

"Mr. Alaga was born in Konavle, Delmacia [sic], Austria, in 1883 and came to Pajaro valley some 12 years ago. He and his three brothers engaged in the fruit packing business until, at the time of his death, the firm of Alaga Brothers was one of the most substantial in the valley. Mr. Alaga is survived by a sister, Mrs. Peter Gjano (Jano), and three brothers, Nicholas, Pole [Paul] and John Alaga. The funeral services will be held next Friday morning...from the late residence of the deceased, 32 Alexander street, from which place the funeral cortege will go to St. Patrick's church, where high mass will be said. Interment will be in the Valley cemetery. Deceased was a member of Watsonville Aerie, No. 72, F.O.E., and also of the Austrial [sic] Benevolent Society."

"The capital stock of the corporation should be $200,000, divided into 200 shares of the par value of $100 per share and erect a plant for the storage of apples, meat, eggs, vegetables and other products on the basis of a capacity of 500,000 boxes of apples. Headquarters of the company will be in Watsonville and as projected, the plant will be owned and controlled by the growers and packers themselves.

"In his prospectus yesterday Mr. Wyckoff presented the following proposition for the benefit of the fruit growers and shippers:

"It will enhance the value of the products of this valley by enabling them to be stored at home.

"It will provide storage without double handling and double freighting.

"It will convert the products of this valley from perishable to staple and keeping commodities.

"It will thereby greatly increase the value of crops.

"It should, at regular storage rates, pay the stockholders substantial returns on their investment."

"Frank Simpson, of the Simpson Fruit Co., Los Angeles, writes: 'The erection of a storage plant in Watsonville will be the biggest factor in the improvement of the apple industry. I do not believe your producers realize the immense importance. It would draw purchasers from all over the east and you would have brokers and buyers in your city from September to May. It would be the biggest advertisement your city could put out as regards your apple industry.’

It was not until last night that Cumbelich would consent to medical attendance and Dr. Porter was then summoned. Dr. Porter pronounced it a case of delirium tremens, and suggested that the sick man be removed to the county hospital at Santa Cruz. Constables Corr and Sandberg had matters arranged to convey Cumbelich to the hospital today and when they left his side at 10 o'clock he was apparently much improved. MANSION HOUSE. Several Investors Have Been Here to Inspect Property But No Sale Has Been Effected. The rumor was circulating along the street this morning that the Mansion House property, owned by Mateo Lettunich and M. N. Lettunich, had been sold to San Francisco parties and that the new purchasers would tear down the present structure and erect a modern first-class hotel building.

"Investigation soon proved that no sale has been effected. An option for the sale of the property was given a well known local real estate dealer sometime ago at a good sized figure. Parties have been here from San Francisco to inspect the property, but the price asked has been the stumbling block to a successful consummation of the sale.

"The lease of Sliter & McGlashan, who have conducted the hotel for several years, does not expire until Oct. 1st, and if before that time comes around the parties who have the option for the sale of the property are not successful in securing a buyer, then the owners propose to make improvements to the building and lease it again for a short term of years."

The reason for such increase in prices offered are two, to-wit: First, that the prospects for a large and bountiful yield of first-class quality apples of all varieties was never better this early in the season. Second, that the fruit packing firms must be pretty well satisfied that the market prospects for the apple crop the coming season are going to be better than last year.

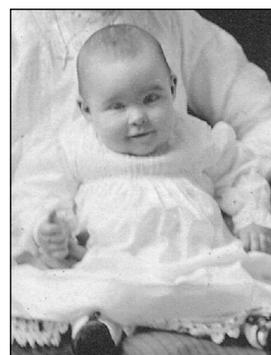

“The Condit estate has sold the apple crop of its 58-acre orchard, near College lake, to Louis Cikuth for the next three years for the sum of $20,000, the buyer to do all spraying and cultivating. This is one of the best and most productive apple orchards in the valley.”

Mr. Ludlow, consulting engineer for the Fulton Iron Works in San Francisco, is acting in the capacity of consulting architect for the board of directors of the local project.

“The primary object of today’s meeting is to decide definitely whether or not the cold storage plant will be in use for the present season. It is the belief of several members of the board that to build the plant now would not be advisable and for the matter to be on hand for the full season would be better. If the plant is available by the fall season a large amount of onions and potatoes could be stored this winter. This valuable document was read by Dr. Saxton Pope and the report minced no words in describing conditions as they were found by the board in this city. The milk of this city was generally condemned. For some time past the board of health has been conducting a series of experiments relative to the condition of the present milk supply of the city and as a result the board was unanimous in the opinion that the city must have better milk. After detailing in technical phrases the methods pursued in sampling milk, the report went on to state the results of four tests made by the board:

“First, a tamale parlor supplied by a Portuguese dairyman; milk found to contain 12,800,000 bacteria and germs.

“Second, a private family supplied by an American dairyman; milk contained 4,300,000 germs.

“Third, Watsonville Hospital, furnished by an American; milk contained 2,500,000 bacteria.

“Fourth, a Slavonian restaurant; proprietor thought the milk had a peculiar taste and wanted it tested; found to contain 26,400,000 bacteria.

“The above tests were taken during the recent warm weather. The normal cow under the best conditions will give milk containing only 42,500 bacteria to the cubic centimeter, hence the above figures go to show how bad the local milk supply is...”

“The current issue of the New York Fruit Trade Journal, a journal which seems to think that all the apples raised in the west come from Washington and Oregon, when in reality this little valley ships more than both those States combined, erroneously states in its last issue that the first boxed apples to attract much attention abroad were from Hood River. Long before Hood River was heard of as an apple district choice Newtown Pippins from Watsonville were being sold at fancy figures in London and Liverpool. Paj; 2 Sep 1909; article: “This Valley to Be the Host of Nearly Five Hundred ‘Apple Birds’ on Annual Visit. The now famous ‘apple tramp’ army, numbering some four or five hundred persons and representing almost every nation upon the globe, is once more invading the fertile Pajaro valley, as it has done for years in the past. The sweet ‘call of the wild,’ the Newtown Pippin, the Bellefleur, and others, has been hearkened to and the ‘apple birds’ are arriving in large flocks every day to aid the orchardists, the shippers and the packers of this valley in the harvesting and marketing of this season's banner crop. Already the wheels of the apple industry are turning and from the time the sun rises upon the month of September until shortly after it sets in November, and probably December, the bulk of the apple tramp army is with us, their presence in our midst lending a cosmopolitan tinge to our environments, which is not found when they are gone. A brief study of this peculiarly successful and uniquely omnipresent army would not be amiss at this period, the verge of their active work in this valley for the season of 1909. The apple tramp army is one of the most peculiar features or industries in this State and to dilate upon its travels, its work of almost multitudinous proportions furnishes food for thought and gives the uninitiated a better insight into the inner workings of this now powerful factor in labor circles, without which the apple, grape, orange, pear, cantaloupe and other fruit industries would be seriously handicapped.

"Let us then begin this brief study right here at home in the Pajaro valley. The line of work accomplished by this class embraces every phase of the apple industry, from the picking of the fruit from the tree to its transportation to the markets. The apple tramp army is composed of men whose specialty is picking the apples in the orchard, men whose knowledge of box making is expert, men who are especially adapted to packing the fruit in boxes, men whose executive ability is needed in the supervision of their colleagues in the industry, others are needed in sorting the various varieties of the fruit, others who are clever at stenciling, marking or tagging the packed boxes of fruit, men—well, there are lines of work innumerable that this apple tramp army follows and in its midst are individuals whose ability can be of service to any department of the industry. The shippers and packers together with the orchardists depend upon the annual invasion of this army and their absence from this valley in the apple season would be missed, as the available home supply of labor is not sufficient to meet the demands. Their work is just beginning in full blast at the present time and a visit to the orchards and packing houses of this valley would give one a clearer idea of just how indispensable their presence is to the industry. The number of apple tramps at present in the valley has by no means reached its height and every train has its quota of apple birds bound for Watsonville to join their comrades in the army which at present is one of the features of the industries of the State as well as of the west.

"As the days of December gradually lead up to the opening of a new year, the ranks of the army become rapidly depleted. Their departure from the valley is then as sudden as their arrival over three months before. The army then hears a different call and they leave us in answer to this new demand, leave us for another year, until the cry of this valley for their return brings them back to us again. Then comes the invasion of the lower San Joaquin valley, commonly called the branch, where the towns of Porterville, Terra Bella and Exeter nestle amid their orange groves. Then begins the great orange industry which, while longer in duration, is of no greater importance than is our apple industry. Over on the branch the orange season of the State first begins and from December 1st to January 15th the apple tramps are working there at the same line of labor which they pursued in the Pajaro valley. When the month of January is nearing its end the fruit army picks up its belongings and from the branch region they go on to Southern California to engage in the orange business there. Here the season is the longest for the army. From January 15th to June 1st the orange industry demands their presence and here also their varied skill is called to action in exactly the same way it is in this valley.

"When the month of June arrives an entirely different call is once more heard, this time to the famous Imperial valley, which, hugging the borderline of our Golden State, has developed a new industry that bids fair to rank in importance with the apple, orange and grape industries. This is the cantaloupe industry which, beginning in June continues until almost September, the time when the army is beginning to once more cast longing eyes toward the apple orchards of the Pajaro valley.

"But there is still the grape industry, which has made Atwater, Fresno, Malaga, Sanger and Selma so famous. Here the army arrives from Imperial in August and the eastern-central portion of the great San Joaquin valley is then the working ground until even after it is due in the Pajaro valley. Each year a remnant of the army lingers in the grape or cantaloupe sections, delaying their presence in the apple district of the State, but the army alternates in this respect. Those who remain in the former sections this season will in all probability be the first to arrive in the apple section next year, while many of those who came to the Pajaro valley early in the present apple season will next year postpone their arrival, in order that they may bring the grape and cantaloupe seasons to a close.

"The fruit tramp army is doing a paying business. Many of them, by wandering from one section of the State to another, have reaped a snug financial harvest and some upon whose heads the winter of life is falling are dropping from the ranks to enjoy the fruits of their labor in ease and comfort. It would not then be inopportune to mention briefly what wages are commanded of the various lines of work pursued. The piece-work system applies generally in all of the fruit industries wherein the army takes part. Here in the Pajaro valley the wages are among the highest paid for that class of work in the State. Four cents per box for packers and from 50c to 60c per hundred boxes for the box makers is the price commanded and these wages net the skilled workmen a neat weekly wage. The orange industry pays from 3c to 3½c for packers and from 85c to $1 for box makers, the latter being a much higher wage than is paid in this valley for box making. Over in the grape section, the packers receive their wages per diem which vary in proportion while the wages for making crates average 60c per hundred. The cantaloupe crate makers receive from 90c to $1 per hundred crates while the packers receive 5c per crate. The packing of pears is most generally rewarded by a daily wage. Hence, one can see readily that those who are associated with the fruit tramps receive no mean stipend for their labor and it is not then to be wondered at that the army assumes such large proportions and that its ranks are yearly being recruited.

“Now, a closing word as to the character and makeup of the average ‘fruit tramp,’ which is a slang term used by themselves. There are of course, and it is to be expected in such instances, those in the army who course, and it is to be expected in such the general public but to their colleagues [sic typos in original]. The acts committed by some of these individuals are deplored by the better class, who, happy to say, are in the vast majority. The average ‘fruit tramp’ is the personification of good fellowship and manly conduct. Their presence in this valley each year is largely awaited for, their being here brings a jolly, good-natured temperament to the city that is more pronounced than when they are gone. Their decided cosmopolitan make-up, their appreciation of a good time, their knowledge of human nature gleaned from close contact with nearly all sections of the State gives the city a distinctive glamour that could not be duplicated under ordinary circumstances, such as prevail while the army is absent from our midst. Take off your hats to the ‘fruit tramps.’ You can find no better specimens of humanity than are found in their midst. While they are with us they excel even ourselves in many instances in boosting the valley. Further, while they are performing their duties in other districts of our State they never forget us and they never neglect to give this valley and its people a boost.

“We appreciate the ‘fruit tramps’ and we all rejoice that once more the army is with us to remain for a few months. They are, to use a slang expression, a mighty good ‘bunch.’”

In conversation with a 'Pajaronian' reporter this morning, Mr. Vandervoort told many interesting reminiscences of his visit here some 32 years ago, when he said the present city of Watsonville was marked by a lonely red depot used only as a flag station on the narrow gauge railroad. Then the railroad ran only from Santa Cruz to San Miguel, and nearly all traffic was accomplished by teaming over the mountains and other primitive modes of travel. The little red flag station was the only sign of human habitation for miles and gave then but little promise of being a nucleus for such a thriving and populous city as Watsonville is today. Then the entire Pajaro valley was practically a small prairie used as a range for cattle, sheep and other livestock, with here and there a wheat field to vary the monotony. The popular entrance to this valley then was via the old San Jose grade from Santa Clara valley, and via the Pacheco pass from the San Joaquin valley. Houses were few and far between, no orchards enlivened the dull monotony of the landscape and fruit growing was practically unknown. Mr. Vandervoort stated that he was not only pleased but surprised to find Watsonville such a city as it is and expressed his great delight at being able to return for a brief visit after his absence from here of over a quarter of a century..."

White, one of the best known and best informed fruit brokers in the world, is here from New York and is spending a few days inspecting the apple orchards of this valley, and incidentally enjoying himself by social visits to old friends. He is a guest tonight at the mountain home of Judge W. V. Gaffey.

"'Nick' White knows the fruit business from A to Z and he has encountered all the ups and downs that are to be encountered therewith. Upwards of 15 years ago his headquarters were in London and Liverpool, when he was known as the apple king of Great Britain. It was then that he paid his first visit to the Pajaro valley and for several years afterwards handled and sold large quantities of our Newtowns in the British market. For a number of years past he has had his headquarters in New York and has at intervals visited this city, and there has never been a time that he favored this section with such a visit but what there was soon 'something doing' in the apple trade.

"As a letter writer for the papers, 'Nick' is in Teddy Roosevelt's class—he is forceful, interesting and comes mighty near hitting the nail squarely on the head every time. Frequently his contributions have appeared in the 'Pajaronian,' and they have always been read with much interest."

EP; 4 Oct 1909; article: "EASTERN BUYERS AFTER PAJARO APPLES. Early this spring the 'Pajaronian' predicted that the Pajaro valley apple crop would bring a good price this year and would be eagerly sought after by the Europeans and eastern buyers. These firms generally prefer to handle fruit on a commission basis, but when there is a general storage in the country of apples they can generally be found making f.o.b. quotations. From the time this paper made its first prediction concerning the good prospects ahead for Pajaro valley's apple crop it has seen no occasion for changing its views, although heretofore throughout the season many of the 'middlemen' in the apple business have not coincided in our views. The interest of the growers always has and always will come first with the 'Pajaronian,' while that of the middlemen in the business will come second.

"Last year the apple crop of this country was far below the average and early this spring a perusal of government reports and even the general tenor of articles in eastern fruit journals, which are more loyal to the interest of the brokers than they are to the growers, lead us to believe that the crop would be even shorter this year than last. Later we predicted a shortage in the northwest, which, of course, was not coincided in by most of the middlemen, but time has demonstrated the correctness of our contention.

"But there was one class of people connected with the fruit business in this city and valley who also believed there was going to be a general shortage of apples in the country, and that was the Austrian buyers and packers, and they immediately proceeded to 'get busy' buying up the 1909 crop, long before the apples were fairly formed on the trees. As usual, there were those connected with the fruit business who predicted that 'this is the year when Mr. Austrian Buyer is going to make a miscue and get financially pinched.' The writer has annually for 20 years past heard like futile predictions about the Austrian buyers not knowing their business. The financial standing of most of them today is the best testimonial of their good judgment in the apple business. This year they control about 85% of the apples grown in this valley, having on an average paid much better prices for the orchards than they did last year, and from present indications most of them will make good money this year.

"Those orchardists who did not sell their crop outright early in the season but are doing the harvesting themselves and selling through the commission packing houses will no doubtedly get better financial returns than if they had not handled their own apples.

“Already almost the entire Bellefleur crop has been purchased by local agents of coast buyers and the present f.o.b. quotations for four-tier stock is 90 cents per box and it will probably go higher. Los Angeles and the southwest is generally our big market for Bellefleurs, but this season the demand from Montana and other northern points has been better than for many years past.

“One New York buyer who has been here for a week past is credited with having already contracted for 200 cars of Newtown Pippins at from 90 cents upward per box...Yesterday the representative of a large British firm arrived here and it is expected that he is busy today making Newtown purchases, and we predict that before the week is ended another large firm, with worldwide connections, will enter the buying arena and if it does there will be things doing. It is estimated that the output of four-tier Newtown Pippin stock from this valley will total at least 1000 carloads, which if sold at even as low a figure as 90 cents per box will mean a return to the growers and packers of about $600,000. But strictly first class four-tier Newtown Pippin stock should bring at least $1.00 per box f.o.b. Watsonville.

“But now is the time, particularly in a season like this when there is an active demand for apples, when inestimable future harm can be done the fruit industry of this valley by sending out any inferior packs. The ‘Pajaronian’ hopes that the buyers will from now on this season most rigidly inspect the pack and see that it is up to the grade called for. The quality of the Pajaro valley apple crop this year is above the average and the party or parties that will send out an inferior pack under such circumstances is the worst enemy the community can have. Any inferior or small sized apples should be sent to the driers or to the cider and vinegar works, where they are bringing a better price than for several years past.”

broached this subject to several of the packers of this city and their proposition for the holding of such an event has met with unanimous approval. While it is the general opinion that the present fruit season is now too far advanced to warrant the holding of an apple carnival this winter the packers, shippers and other fruit men will discuss the proposition Friday afternoon of having this show next season and will start to boom the carnival this year.

“The idea of those backing the scheme is to make this apple carnival an annual affair and to have the entire show typical of this city and valley, and their products. The erection of an exhibit hall for the housing of the fruits and produce displayed will be among the topics discussed at the meeting on Friday.”

“Editor ‘Pajaronian:’ —In your today’s issue I noticed remarks anent ‘Watsonville Apples Selling in London,’ and your own special remarks about ‘apples at two dollars per box.’ For your benefit and your readers generally I append below the price and minimum charges, together with net results:

Box sold at: $2.

Railway charges to New York: 52¢.

Sea freight to London: 27¢.

Market charges: 12¢.

Commission at 5%: 10¢.

Insurance, cables, etc.: 01¢.

Total: $1.02.

Net: $0.98.

“As a matter of fact I say four-tiers have been sold today in Liverpool at only $1.86.

“Furthermore, I want to say here that Watsonville apples are never sold in London in carload lots. Your readers who have sent them there know there are always broken and damaged boxes. The practice is to sell in lots of 10, 12 or 20 boxes.

“Yet here I have bought 285 cars at 90 cents to $1 each. The dealer gets his money here the day after the goods are shipped. When he ships to England he has to wait 18 days for goods to get to New York. There goods wait 2 to 4 days to get shipped, seven more days to get across the herring pond, three days to get unloaded and ready for sale, and after the sale 14 days for the money to get to Watsonville, or a total of about 44 days, besides taking chances, such as lost in transit and plenty of other risks.

“Some of your readers remember their red ink sales of last year. From these charges I have deducted nothing for agency charges in Watsonville or New York. Since I have been here this time I am told of two firms in New York who have always charged $25 per car for doing something. I take it no agencies here or in Europe are working for Watsonville apples out of philanthropy for Watsonville.

“The charges I have quoted above are the minimum, not the maximum.

“Yours faithfully, W. N. White”

EP; 22 Oct 1909; article: “APPLE CARNIVAL DISCUSSED TODAY. An important meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce is billed for this afternoon and as the ‘Pajaronian’ goes to press the meeting is on. The most important business to be discussed and transacted is relative to the scheme advocated by President Hall, Secretary Einfalt and many others of the local packers for the annual holding in this city of an apple carnival, an outline of which was given in the ‘Pajaronian’ of last Wednesday. The meeting today is to discuss the carnival in its general phases and also to talk over ways and means for the building of an exhibit hall to be used in connection with the show. If this idea meets with general approval the appointment of committees to further the proposition will likely ensue today. The possibility of this city receiving a slice of the annual legislative appropriation for agricultural purposes for the purpose of aiding the apple carnival will also be taken up.

“The idea of an apple carnival for this city is one that appeals to all. The promoters of the big show plan the erection of a good sized exhibit hall where will be housed the various displays of fruits made by the packers of this valley. The carnival would last one week, at which time the city and valley would play the part of host to many outsiders who would come here for the fete. A feature of the carnival would be a good program, which would include baseball games, football games, a big parade, balls and in fact all of the features that go to make up a typical carnival. The inauguration of the scheme into an annual affair it is believed will mean good advertising for this city and valley and the products thereof and would mean much in the end from a dollars and cents standpoint.”

EP; 23 Oct 1909; article: “As the ‘Pajaronian’ was going to press yesterday...a meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce was in session, the principal topic of discussion being the proposed apple carnival to be annually held here in the autumn of each year. The directors had decided to hold a big smoker in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce next Wednesday evening, to which all citizens of this city and valley are invited, and at which the carnival project will be taken up in detail. This smoker will be an informal affair and everyone interested in the carnival scheme is free to enter into the discussion and state their particular views upon the matter. Some definite action will likely be taken at that time in the matter and a large attendance is desired, that the subject may be thoroughly thrashed out.

“The directors of the Chamber of Commerce in session yesterday appointed a committee to co-operate with Mr. C. H. Rogers, president of the Pajaro Valley Orchardists’ Association, who is in charge of the biggest convention of the State Fruit Growers’ Association which convenes here in December. The committee appointed from the Chamber of Commerce to assist Mr. Rogers is composed of Messrs. W. H. Benteen, James Sheehy and J. A. Linscott. Secretary Einfalt was also instructed to render whatever assistance within his power in the matter.”

One of the first steps to be taken if the project receives the desired engagement will be the erection of an exhibit hall, centrally located and large enough to house the various exhibits and displays during the carnival week. The reason for such an early discussion of the project is to have this proposed hall built in time for the carnival next year.”

EP; 28 Oct 1909; article: "APPLE CARNIVAL IS BOOSTED AT SMOKER. The apple carnival for Watsonville and Pajaro valley in 1910 is an assured thing. The movement was unanimously approved and the preliminary plans laid at a meeting held last night in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce. Those present at the gathering were President E. A. Hall, Secretary R. G. Einfalt, J. A. Linscott, J. J. Morey, Attorney J. E. Gardner, J. W. Baxter, E. Fritz, E. E. Steinhauser, S. P. Agent J. C. James, Geo. W. Sill, W. G. Taffinder, Thos. Canty, Lieutenant-Governor W. R. Porter, James Sheehy, Geo. F. Martin, Dr. S. C. Rodgers, C. B. Overhulser, C. H. Murphy, Otto D. Stoesser, Edward White, Henry Alexander and L. Cornell. [no Slavs]

"President E. A. Hall opened the meeting with a few preliminary words stating the object of the smoker, and he dwelt on the big advantages which would accrue to this valley by having the apple carnival. This carnival would interest and attract visitors from the east, middle west and south, and would bring fruit buyers here from all over the United States and Europe. Mr. Hall spoke of the apple shows at Denver in January and in Spokane in December, and believed that Watsonville should have one in October. He believed it a wise plan to make the event a State affair and thus be in line to secure financial assistance from the State.

"Secretary Einfalt was then introduced and he read the following paper, which at its conclusion was awarded applause:

"...The apple carnival, which we hope to make as distinctively characteristic of the Pajaro valley as the various floral fetes that are held throughout the State are peculiarly suggestive of the sections where they are held, is manifold in its advantages.

"First among the benefits to be enjoyed is the widespread publicity that comes through the co-operation of a patriotic and energetic press. From the viewpoint of one engaged in promotion and publicity work, this may easily be regarded as the most important.

"To keep before the public eye is the chief aim of the successful businessman, who is awake to the wonderful results of intelligent advertising.

"Even though Watsonville has impressed upon the outside world that she raises apples that can vie with the best products of other localities and that the extent of the industry is as gigantic as the quality of her fruit is remarkable, this is hardly sufficient.

"How soon do well known brands of merchandise and proprietary medicines drop from sight and are lost to memory, when the attractive and appealing advertisements are dropped from well known avenues of publicity.

"To keep abreast of the times, and to hold one's position in the spotlight and against the encroachment and ultimate surrender to competitors striving for public favor, requires the utmost vigilance, intelligence and originality.

"If the citizens of Watsonville and the Pajaro valley accept the plan and co-operate in the movement, it will require all the energy and originality they can throw into the project to merit an annual repetition of it.

"But when once successfully conceived, the way is clear and the name of Watsonville goes abroad linked with an apple that is as much sought for as the historic one that first led our common progenitor from the accepted path of rectitude.

"The great avenues of publicity, which have able representatives here, are put into action and the news columns that are ordinarily closed to anything that is suggestive of advertising, are thrown open in hearty support of a movement that their representatives recognize is intended to foster the extension of an industry that never can depreciate in value to those engaged in it by over-production. The latest and most authentic advices from the market centers of the earth prove that this is no idle contention, but is a fact that becomes more apparent as time grows apace.

"From an ethical point of view the next important benefit is that which co-operation achieves through the enlistment of men and a movement intended to promote the common good of the community...

“One really cannot enjoy the full benefits which this city offers to him as a place of residence unless he is in rapport with the constructive spirit that actuates those who are engaged in the development of its natural resources...

“The third benefit, which is none the less important because of its material aspect, is the one that comes through the attraction of visitors and the holding of your home money to local commercial channels that otherwise would be expended abroad in recreation.

“The local merchant, whose success depends upon the support that comes from your productive and industrial avenues, will appreciate this and will be enabled to retain a worthy position in your commercial world, if you will cooperate with him in fostering such movements as that which we hope to inaugurate.

“Being appraised of the benefits of an annual apple carnival, it is ‘up to you’...to make the decision.

“If it meets with your approval, it then devolves upon a committee of your responsible citizens to perfect the details necessary to bring the matter to a happy and gratifying conclusion.

“First of these is a pavilion sufficiently commodious to meet the requirements of such a fete and this should be agitated and brought into creation as soon as possible.

“Other matters of secondary moment will come along in the course of natural development and will be disposed of according to what in the judgment of those in whom the work is entrusted, they regard to be in the line of greatest urgency and importance...”

“Following the report of Mr. Einfalt a general discussion was invited. Those who spoke were Lieutenant-Governor Porter, Dr. S. C. Rodgers, Edward White, Supervisor Linscott, Attorney Gardner, J. J. Morey, E. E. Steinhauer, W. G. Taffinder, Otto D. Stoesser. Each speech was in support of the carnival project and the general trend of the short talks was along the lines laid down in Secretary Einfalt’s paper. Every speech was but an enlargement of some particular thought embraced in Mr. Einfalt’s well written report.

“A resolution was unanimously passed to the effect that it was the sense of the meeting to boost the apple carnival, and then the discussion drifted as to the proper way to put the matter into action. The matter finally ended by President Hall being authorized to appoint a general committee of 25 members in the next few days. This committee will be in full charge of the carnival and of all plans leading up to this event.”

EP; 2 Nov 1909; article: “CARNIVAL COMMITTEE WILL INCORPORATE. The general committee of the apple carnival held a meeting last night in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, at which time the various phases of the proposed annual event were discussed. The result of the meeting was that those present unanimously decided to incorporate the carnival and that a board of directors would be constituted from the chairmen of the various committees appointed from the general committee by President E. A. Hall. This step was favored unanimously by those present, who were Messrs. J. E. Gardner, Otto D. Stoesser, T. M. Wright, A. E. Joy, Dr. S. C. Rogers, Geo. W. Sill, J. A. Linscott, S. O. Andros, Dan Leddy, C. H. Rodgers, E. A. Hall and Secretary Einfalt.

“President Hall opened the meeting with a few words of introduction, after which he announced the following appointments:

“Finance—John Gardner, W. R. Radcliffe, W. H. Benteen, Edward White, Luke Scurich, J. J. Morey, H. S. Fletcher.

“Publicity and printing—W. R. Porter, O. D. Stoesser, T. M. Wright, A. E. Joy, Dr. S. C. Rodgers.

“Building—G. W. Sill, J. A. Linscott, J. B. Holohan, S. O. Andros, F. P. Marinovich.

“Entertainment—A. W. Cox, W. R. Porter, P. K. Waters, Dan Leddy, R. W. Eaton.

“Exhibits—C. H. Rodgers, Carey Baker, Jas. Sheehy, W. H. Benteen, M. N. Lettunich.

“These appointments were approved unanimously.

“The discussion upon the various phases of the apple carnival project was general, several different subjects being considered. No definite action was taken on some of these, however, but they were referred to the various committees for more mature consideration, to be adopted or rejected accordingly. Attorney J. E. Gardner did not like the idea of two different committees hustling for the necessary finances, the finance committee seeking subscriptions for general purposes and the building committee seeking finances for the erection only of the exhibit pavilion. Gardner was of the opinion that the two committees should combine on the proposition and that only one committee be delegated to secure all of the necessary finances. He was also of the opinion that this was no small celebration and for that reason the committee should go after big amounts in a business way. The subscribers should be convinced that this carnival was a business proposition and would mean money in their pockets later. The matter of offering premiums for the various exhibits of packs was also discussed briefly.

“Carey Baker brought up a question about the quality of the exhibits to be shown at the carnival. He believed that the packers should exhibit only their standard, commercial pack, and not their fancy, choice fruits. This argument did not take well with the majority present, who were of the opinion that only exhibits of the choicest apples were shown at the various carnivals held in the middle west, northwest and other apple sections.

“This argument brought up the question of how large the exhibit should be, and a suggestion by Geo. W. Sill that 50 cars be exhibited seemed to meet with general approval.

“Then came the knotty problem regarding the nature of the exhibit hall, or pavilion, which question aroused an interesting discussion. Dr. S. C. Rodgers and Carey Baker favored the erection of a big tent for the first year and then if the annual should prove successful a pavilion could be erected. Otto Stoesser came out strongly in favor of the erection of a permanent pavilion and said that a tent would only lend an air of cheapness to the affair. The permanent pavilion could be used for other purposes such as conventions, entertainment and the like at those periods of the year when the carnival was not in session. After a few others had expressed their ideas pro and con on this matter the question was finally left in the hands of the building committee.

“After President Hall and the chairmen of the various committees had been selected as the executive committee of the fair, Attorney Gardner was instructed to draft the necessary papers of incorporation...”

EP; 4 Nov 1909; article: “Mr. Pajaro Valley Grower, Just Read the Following Interesting Little Article. Year in and year out the ‘Pajaronian’ has been telling the apple growers of this valley, although many of them have grown rich out of the business, that they do not get enough money for their fruit and that they never will until they perfect an organization amongst themselves similar to several in the northwest and also in the south amongst the citrus fruit growers.

“Pajaro valley is the most productive apple district in the world, but the system of marketing its fruit is all wrong, as this paper has long contended and as has been proven in a way quite frequently of late by contributions appearing in the ‘Pajaronian’ from W. N. White. The benefit of organized effort is well demonstrated in the following item from the Hood River district:

“With the announcement of the prices which Steinhardt & Kelly, of New York, paid the Hood River Apple Growers’ Union for its product this year, a new record price for apples becomes known and the Hood River apple leads the world in the price which the grower gets for his fruit. At a meeting of the directors of the union Saturday, it was decided to give out the prices which are record breakers for not only the fancy grades purchased by the New York firm, but for the choice apples which were purchased by Page & Son, of Portland.

“The fancy Spitzenbergs which pack 72 to the box and larger were purchased for $3.35 with the smaller fruit proportionately high priced. Page & Son took the choice grade Spitz at $1.75, which is a great advance over former prices.

“The fancy Newtowns went to New York at $2.40 for the 4-tier and larger sizes. This same grade brought $2.25 last year. The choice Newtowns brought the same figure as the Spitz, $1.75. The fancy Jonathans brought $2.00 a box, while the choice sold to Page & Son at $1.75. Fancy Baldwins bring $1.90 and Steinhardt & Kelly also took the choice grade Baldwins at $1.50. The fancy Ortleys brought $2.25.

“These prices are what the grower actually receives at the shipping point. The Apple Growers’ Union, in handling the crop which includes 90% of the apples grown in this valley, has by its excellent management secured a standing which will enable the Hood River growers to always obtain top prices for their fruit. The extremest care is used in every stage of the development of the apple until it is packed and loaded into the car.”

EP; 4 Nov 1909; article: “ANOTHER EXPOSE OF APPLE GRAFT. Which Clearly Shows How the Watsonville Shippers Are Plucked By New York Middlemen. Watsonville, Nov. 4th. Editor ‘Pajaronian.’—During this apple controversy, you will remember, I hinted at a charge of $25 per car said to be made by some New York agents. That rumor has now proved a certainty. I have before me an account sale from Liverpool of a car of apples sold for a Watsonville shipper. Among other charges are twelve cents a box carried out as ‘our charges, etc.’ Of that twelve cents part goes to the New York agent. The commission is carried out as 5%, 2% of which is returned to the New York agent. But now watch the results in the left hand corner of this account sale. Marked there evidently with a rubber stamp is: Freight to New York, $350; forwarding, custom house clearance, bills of lading, etc., $25.60; marine insurance, $6.40.

“It is quite true that in regard to the $350 freight to New York he proves the item by forwarding the paid expense bill, but previous experience should have told him that the charge is excessive, and if he had seen the way bills turned up he would have found that the first charge was made on an estimate, and that when the goods passed Pajaro they were weighed 33,300 pounds [sic]. These figures I have proved, and the result of my investigations will get the shipper a refund here of $17.

“As to the $25.60 for ‘forwarding, custom house clearance, bills of lading, etc.,’ no other party in New York makes such a charge. The freight broker does all that and is duly paid for it by the steamship agent. No charge is made for bills of lading. ‘Etc.’ may mean a lot, such as ‘how do you do?’ or ‘good morning,’ and surely such expressions of courtesy don’t cost $25.60. Really I can’t help smiling at this sixty cent business. I have heard of the square deal given to the shipper, but I can’t square this one in any way. ‘$6.40 marine insurance’—carried out exactly one cent a box. Suppose this lot of goods had been insured by me for $1500. The charges I should have to pay would be exactly $3.75. The rate of exchange is carried out at $4.85½. The actual amount returned to the shipper in Watsonville was $469.53 for 640 boxes, [or] 73½ cents a box. —Yours faithfully, W. N. White.”

This migration has been on for a couple of weeks but the exodus has now about reached its height. The majority of these Austrians, most of whom have been employed here in the orchards, are bound for the gold mines of Tuolumne and Calaveras counties, where they gather in such towns as Sonora, Angels Camp, Jamestown and Tuolumne to labor in the mines. The most of them go to these mines via San Francisco, thence on to Stockton, where the Sierra Nevada foothill section connections are made. Comparatively few of the Austrian laborers go south for work in the orange orchards. It is a case of the mines for them during the winter and spring, and the Pajaro Valley in the summer and early fall.”

Lately he leased the hotel and erected a business building at the corner of West Lake avenue and Walker streets.

EP; 9 Nov 1909; article: "MISTAKE SHOULD NOT HAPPEN AGAIN. There has come into the possession of the 'Pajaronian' a letter which the Earl Fruit Co. of this city sent William Pulisevich, a Los Angeles fruit dealer, in relation to a certain shipment of Bellefleur apples, which Pulisevich had turned down, in which the following sentence concludes one of the paragraphs of the letter:

"We make no claim, and our brokers have no authority to sell extra fancy apples, as you know as well as the writer, that Watsonville does not grow extra fancy apples."

"This is the most harmful statement ever made about the leading industry of the Pajaro valley, and coming from such a large concern as the Earl Fruit Co. is one that is likely to do untold harm unless nipped in the bud and a public retraction made. The 'Pajaronian' stands first and last for the perpetuation of the apple industry along honest and conservative lines and has always condemned the shipping of any poor apples from here, but that such has been done quite frequently cannot be denied and the Earl Fruit Co. has no doubt been frequently guilty of such offense, the same as many other apple shippers. But that the company would deliberately send out to the world such a falsehood as is contained in the published extract from Mr. Pulisevich's letter was almost beyond belief, particularly in relation to Bellefleur apples, and therefore Mr. W. H. White, the apple manager of the company was called on this morning for an explanation.

"Mr. White states that the letter was hastily dictated and in the quoted sentence he unintentionally omitted a few words that would have entirely changed the meaning thereof. He believed the term 'extra fancy' to mean apples without a blemish or defect of any sort and that as it was almost impossible to get carload lots of such fruit in any district[,] the Earl Co. did not want their brokers to quote out apples received from them as such. Further, Mr. White says the letter to Mr. Pulisevich was written in reply to one that had just been received from the latter gentleman about the carload of apples turned down as he (White) was so indignant thereat that unfortunately he was not careful in the phraseology of the reply thereto.

"The 'Pajaronian' is charitable enough to believe that Mr. White of the Earl Co. made an unintentional mistake that he greatly regrets and we trust his company will send out a circular letter to their brokers to that effect.

"The writer was told about 20 years ago by that well known and popular eastern buyer, W. R. Keller, a man who in the aggregate has paid out upwards of $2,000,000 in cash purchases of apples in this city, that nowhere else in the world did the Bellefleur grow to such perfection as in the Pajaro valley. Our Newtowns, he said, were equalled by those of the northwest, but here the Bellefleur was supreme. Throughout the years Mr. Keller has frequently reiterated this statement and no doubt would do so this year if he were here. This year the quality of our Bellefleur apples has been better than for several years past. Any person or persons who says to the contrary know not what they are talking about.

"The 'Pajaronian' will continue to defend the quality of apples that can be raised in the Pajaro valley. We are only sorry that we cannot say as much about the marketing methods."

EP; 9 Nov 1909; very large disp. ad: "Watsonville Cold Storage Company. IT IS A CORPORATION FORMED FOR THE PURPOSE OF ERECTING A COLD STORAGE PLANT IN THE CITY OF WATSONVILLE. After a careful investigation, which extended to all parts of the State, and occupied months, it has been proved conclusively that a Cold Storage Plant will do more good for the apple industry of Pajaro Valley, both directly for the grower of apples, and indirectly for the packers, merchants, laborers, and all others interested in the welfare of the community, than any other proposition ever advanced in Watsonville.

"The main purpose of the Cold Storage Plant will be to provide a means to avoid rushing all of the apples into market as soon as they begin to ripen, thereby overstocking the dealers with fruit and forcing down the price realized by the grower and forwarding agent.

“Another favorable feature is that by providing immediate storage facilities it will prevent deterioration between picking and storing, and will extend the shipping season. There are many other points of advantage to be realized, most of which will be presented in this paper, and there is not a single general disadvantage to be encountered.

“The Directors have concluded that a plant with a capacity of 1,000,000 cubic feet would be best suited for the present needs of the Pajaro Valley. Such a plant would take care of 500,000 boxes of apples or 760 carloads. A plant of this size would be assured of sufficient business at all times to make it an absolute PAYING PROPOSITION from the beginning.

“There is no guesswork in the proposition. All of the details have been gone into, and careful estimates, based on actual precedent, have been made on the cost of such a plant, of its maintenance, and of its direct profits.

“The plant of the Watsonville Cold Storage Company will be first-class in every particular. It will be equipped with the latest machinery, and will be capable of giving a maximum of efficiency at a minimum of cost.

INVESTIGATE

“Subscriptions for stock are now being taken by the directors, also applications for 6 per cent bonds, and applications for storage space. If you have the best interests of the valley at heart, and at the same time want a safe, profitable investment, investigate this proposition. Any of the following directors will be pleased to give full particulars:

“E. A. HALL, J. E. TRAFTON, J. J. MOREY, O. D. STOESSERT, W. J. MCGRATH, J. H. THOMPSON, J. D. MURPHY, A. W. COX and J. B. HOLOHAN.”

EP; 9 Nov 1909; item: “Articles of incorporation were filed with the county clerk yesterday at Santa Cruz with the following subscribers to the first shares of stock issued, the first seven named being the directors of the Watsonville Annual Apple Carnival Association: Edw. A. Hall, W. R. Porter, A. W. Cox, O. D. Stoesser, Geo. W. Sill, $25 each; C. H. Rodgers, $10; J. E. Gardner, T. M. Wright, J. A. Linscott, W. H. Benteen and James Sheehy, $5 each.”

EP; 9 Nov 1909; item: “Watsonville apples won a gold medal at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition in Seattle...This award pertains to the exhibit placed at the exposition by the Santa Cruz county committee and does not mean any individual exhibit that might have been sent by local private parties...The Pajaro valley exhibit at the fair was much smaller than those from the Oregon and Washington apple regions, and yet the northern apples were ranked no higher by the judges...”

The annual rental to be paid for the orchard is said to be a most satisfactory one to Mr. Brewington, and no doubt it is equally as satisfactory to the Zar Bros. The Brewington apple orchard is one of the best in the valley and is most conveniently located, being less than a mile from the depot.”

Jeffrey to the effect that the 36th annual fruit growers’ convention will be held in Watsonville on December 7th to 10th, inclusive, and urging their presence thereat.

“One of the most pleasing features, states the circular, is the place where this convention is to be held, Watsonville, the center of the beautiful Pajaro valley, which ships yearly more apples than any other district or districts combined on the Pacific coast. These apples, the Newtown, Pippin and Bellefleur, which have made this valley famous, will be everywhere displayed, not only for inspection, but for sampling as well. Papers will also be presented on the subject of the apple in all its phases by representative men from the different sections of the coast.

“Of the other topics to be presented by the paper and discussion[,] some of the most important are: The leasing of our orchards and vineyards, its economic effect on the people and properties, and the closely related and ever significant farm laborer problem. Our markets and transportation of our fruit will be discussed from every standpoint, from producer to consumer. Among these papers will be reports on transportation and storage experiments, pre-cooling, co-operation, distribution, grading and packing.

“Special rates will be given by the railroads to delegates attending the convention. A big crowd of representative producers are coming, so now it is up to the citizens of this city to assist the committees appointed by President C. H. Rodgers of the Pajaro Valley Orchardists’ Association in every way possible.”

Miller is charged with not only stealing a check for $70 upon a local bank but also for forging the name of Joseph Bendecovich, the payee, to the same and then cashing the check. Miller confessed his crime to Constables Corr and Sandberg and a ‘Pajaronian’ reporter this morning and stated as an excuse for his crime that he needed the money.

“News of the offense came to Constables Corr and Sandberg this morning when Joseph Bendecovich, a lodger at the Railroad Exchange Hotel on Walker street, reported that his room had been entered and a check for $70 as well as a certificate of deposit for the same had been stolen. The officers notified the local banks to stop payment on this check and were preparing to notify the nearby officers of the theft when the Chinese proprietor of the Red Front Store on Lower Main street, notified them in an excited and wild-eyed manner that he had been buncoed by a young man and the Chinaman then produced the stolen check. Miller had entered the store, bought a $3 sweater, handed the Chinaman the $70 check, received his change and made his getaway. The Chinese merchant discovered the crime when he tried to cash the check at a local bank a few minutes later. The officers proceeded to the store and Constable Corr was in the act of telephoning to other officers in this vicinity when Miller was espied a few yards away by the Chinaman. The young crook was pointed out to Constable Sandberg by the Chinaman and Sandberg accordingly placed Miller under arrest.

“Miller was sweated by the police and he confessed the whole affair...”

While the season in general has been a fairly prosperous one for the California fruit grower there are some lines which have sold at very low prices and have entailed heavy losses upon growers and shippers alike. This condition of affairs has thoroughly awakened all interests at this end of the line to the necessity for the greatest care in picking and packing fruit for eastern shipment. Already a movement is well underway in this State for the standardizing of our fruit pack, and there is no doubt but that a greater effort will be made next season than ever before to ship no fruit except a strictly good and dependable article, honestly packed...”

Lettunich, eldest son of Mateo Lettunich, left here for a trip to Mr. A.'s old home city, Konavle, Dalmatia, Austria, where resides his mother, a couple of brothers, and sister. It's been 15 years since Paul left his native city to come to this valley and join his brother, Nick Alaga, who had preceded him here one year. Since then the Alaga brothers have through their energy and perseverance, prospered and become important business factors in this community, and very sensibly Paul has decided to enjoy his first big vacation in that length of time by paying a visit to his mother in Austria and, incidentally combine a degree of business in connection therewith.

"While he will be gone from here six months, Paul and young 'Nick' Lettunich will spend much of that time in visiting London, Liverpool and other European cities where Pajaro valley apples are sold, or such other cities as are likely to become purchasers of such fruit, and both going and returning through the United States will spend some time in each leading eastern and middle west city that is a purchaser of Pajaro valley apples. In brief Paul will closely study market conditions and Nick will not be a bit behind him as an observer.

"A bon voyage and a safe return to the Pajaro valley is the wish of their many friends."

EP; 20 Dec 1909; article: "The directors of the Pajaro Valley Apple Annual Association will meet...in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, and considerable business of importance is expected to be transacted. Among the matters to be taken up will be the increase in the directorate of the association from 7 to 15 members. This step was decided upon at the meeting held last week, and Attorney J. E. Gardner was directed to amend the by-laws to provide for that step. The eight new directors will therefore in all probability be chosen tonight. Another matter to be taken up will be the important financial question for which a solution is still needed. Whether the necessary capital shall be raised by popular subscription; whether it shall be secured through the sale of stock or whether, as Director Gardner suggested, it shall be had through a partnership in the proposition with the municipality, are the problems advocated, and some definite action on the matter is expected at tonight's session..."

The first picture shows the big offices of the brokers downtown, the second and third show the docks with boxes of Pajaro Valley apples everywhere, the fourth shows the storerooms with boxes of Pajaro Valley apples piled in high stacks, while the remaining photographs show the Pajaro Valley apple exhibit in the pavilion. attempt on the part of Congress to regulate the size or standard of a box and by a unanimous vote condemned the Lafean bill now before Congress at Washington, D.C. The meeting last night was called by President W. H. Benteen for the purpose of advising Horticultural Commissioner Chas. H. Rodgers relative to certain local matters which he will present early in the coming year in Sacramento at a meeting to be held there of the special committee of the State Horticultural Commission. This meeting will be called to discuss such matters as the standardizing of the fruit pack, securing fairer freight rates and to take up other matters of vital interest to the fruit growers of this city.

“The standardizing of the fruit pack as incorporated in the Lafean bill now before Congress was discussed at length last night and the directors expressed their opinion on the matter in every phase of the question. To get the opinion of those present in better form, the following resolution was drafted and unanimously adopted:

“Resolved: That inasmuch as this Association has protested against any set size of box being adopted by the federal government as a standard box, that we request Mr. C. H. Rodgers, as a member of the committee of ten called together by the State Horticultural Commission to discuss the standardization of the fruit grade and package and the freight rate on fruit from California, to protest earnestly against the adoption by Congress of the standardizing of apple grades and packages as set forth in what is generally known as the Lafean bill now pending before Congress.”

EP; 28 Dec 1909; article: “Chairman Gardner Tells Apple Annual Directors That Bonding the City is the Best Plan. After both verbal and written reports from them had been accepted and their decisions in the matter practically deemed final, the finance committee of the Pajaro Valley Apple Annual Association was last night given permission to render a supplementary report by the directors, for the reason that Director J. E. Gardner, chairman of the finance committee, thought the committee now saw the matter of finances in a different light. Three weeks ago, Mr. Gardner rendered a verbal report on behalf of the finance committee in which that committee introduced three solutions for the financial problem. The first solution was to secure the necessary funds by subscription of stock; the second was to bond the association for $15,000, and raise the remainder by stock subscriptions and the third was to bond the city for the sum of $15,000 and raise $5000 by subscription. In the written report rendered last night, the committee favored the second proposition, namely that of bonding the association for a given amount. In favoring this proposition, the committee stated that there would be no dividends until the bonds were paid off and that this solution should prove feasible, for the reason that those who invested would get their money back in dividends.

“After this report had been read by Secretary Einfalt, Chairman Gardner of the finance committee stated that his personal views on the question did not coincide with those expressed by the rest of the committee in its report. Since the committee had made its report he had discussed the question with various persons and the more he had investigated the question the more firmly he believed in bonding the city to build the exhibit pavilion. At first he did not believe the election could carry but now he was convinced that it would. The city needs a building of this kind, he said, and it would be an easy matter for the city to pay the interest and sinking funds of the bonds out of the annual income from the building. If this could be done, the taxpayers would not need to pay a cent on the bonds. Here Director Hall moved that the finance committee be requested to submit a supplementary report, which in other words means that the committee will consider its report...”

“Chairman Stoesser of the nominating committee, which is to choose eight new directors, asked for more time and his committee was granted until next Monday evening, when the directors will convene next. Those present last night were President O. D. Stoesser, Directors E. A. Hall, A. W. Cox, Geo. W. Sill, C. H. Rodgers, J. E. Gardner and Messrs. W. G. Taffinder, Jas. Sheehy and Secretary R. G. Einfalt.”

EP; 10 Jan 1910; item: “OVER 500 ATTEND CROATIAN MEETING. The second annual installation of the officers of the local Croatian Lodge, Sokol No. 352, attracted to Odd Fellows’ hall...the largest fraternal gathering ever held in Watsonville. It is estimated that at least 500 witnessed the elaborate installation ceremonies and partook of the lavish hospitality at the festival board.

“Although they have played an important part in the world’s stage, comparatively little is known of the Croatian people and their accomplishments—a condition deliberately brought about by the Austrian government which has, since the conquest of Dalmatia in the 11th century, practiced a course of tyranny and oppression towards these people. Education has been denied them, every conceivable tax has been levied upon their possessions; and the ban of governmental displeasure has been placed upon their language—it cannot be used officially. Yet, in spite of all this, the Croatians have been loyal and valiant subjects. It was the regiments recruited from the humble peasants of Dalmatia that saved Austria from inglorious defeat at the hands of the Turks in its last war. Although thousands of these people perished in this great conflict, Austria’s reward for their bravery was the repeal of the line tariff, permitting the entry of the cheaper products of other nations to enter the kingdom duty free—thus ruining the great industries and entailing years of suffering. The Croatians number nearly a million, yet they are unrepresented in all branches of the government.

“In America the Croatians have been known as Slavonians, and while they are a branch of this great race, yet the term is too broad. The Croatians derive their name from the territory in which they now live, now Dalmatia, but, at the time of its occupation and conquest by these people, in the reign of Augustus Caesar, known as Croatia. Croatia for centuries was a separate kingdom, and became a part of Austria by conquest in the 11th century when it was named Dalmatia. Finding conditions unbearable in late years a great number have immigrated to the United States. The record in this valley needs no comment, suffice to say that no more law-abiding, thrifty and industrious people can be found.

“Croatian Lodge, Sokol, No. 252, was instituted in Watsonville during the month of February, 1907, and is a branch of the parent organization in Pennsylvania. The objects of the order are the relief of the sick and needy members and their families by providing sick and funeral benefits and by life and accidental insurance.

“The officers for the ensuing year were impressively installed by P. G. Carevich and V. Lister. After which Treasurer Stephen Scurich introduced N. V. Lettunich, president elect, who dwelt at length on the objects of the order, and promised to devote his time and attention to its advancement.

“The annual report was read by the Secretary Nick Stolich, showing a membership of over 140, and a goodly balance in the treasury.

“Geo. Carstulovich, of Santa Cruz, evoked great applause when in the course of a few eloquent remarks he feelingly referred to the struggles of his people for recognition and betterment. Mr. Carstulovich, a number of years ago, headed a deputation to the Austrian emperor, petitioning him for at least one representative in parliament. The emperor’s reply, through his prime minister, was the imprisonment of the entire deputation for several days on the ground that they were revolutionists.

“Luke Scurich, gave a history of early days in the Pajaro Valley. Mr. Scurich stated that those Austrians who were in the Pajaro Valley when he came here, but two were living, himself and A. Miochevich [Mioceovich].

“Stephen Scurich urged the building of a home for the aged and infirm at San Jose, and the establishment of a separate jurisdiction on the Pacific coast.

“That the Croatians were indebted to the United States beyond re-payment, and that they should not forget those who came before them and by their privations blazed the trail to success was the substance of a brief address by Attorney Geo. W. Smith.

“At the conclusion of the speech making all repaired to the banquet hall, where Chef John Scurich and his assistants had prepared a great repast. After the banquet dancing was indulged in until an early hour.

“The following are the newly elected officers: President N. V. Lettunich; vice president, V. Lister; recording secretary, Nick Stolich; financial secretary, J. Mihlinich; treasurer, Stephen Scurich; chaplain, G. Pujo; conductor, J. Diclich [Diklich]; sergeant-at-arms, J. Gustinsky; trustees, Thos. Zegar, A. Vukich, A. Strazicich; president sick committee, M. Knego.” [some facts here are incorrect; for example, the Slavs came to the area now known as Croatia 650 years after Augustus Caesar; also Croatia did not become Dalmatia—Dalmatia is the Adriatic part of Croatia; this article was likely written by George W. Smith, who often reported for the Pajaronian]

“During the past week negotiations tending towards the leasing for five years of probably the two largest apple orchards in the valley, those of John D. Murphy and sisters, located in Vega district, were concluded. The 210-acre orchard of Mr. Murphy, 175 acres of which is in apples and 35 in apricots, was leased to N. V. Lettunich, while the 110-acre apple orchard of the Misses Murphy has been leased by John Scurich & Co. The annual rental to be paid for each of these places is most satisfactory to the owners.”

Evans sued Radovan for the recovery of $226, which he alleged was due him on 27 tons of apricots purchased by Radovan. Radovan admitted buying the fruit but stated that the quality was poor and alleging defects in the fruit refused to pay. Evans then brought suit.

“In deciding for the plaintiff, Justice Hawkins held that the custom of Pajaro Valley fruit growers in the past had been that whenever the buyer of fruit had accepted the same, he waved all defects as to the quality of the fruit by such acceptance. Attorney George W. Smith represented Evans while Radovan was represented by attorney J. E. Gardner. It is rumored that the case will be appealed.”

Lettunich, a well known and popular fruit packer of this city. The announcement of the wedding will be a surprise to many of Mr. L.'s friends...as they had no inkling that he had been considering such a happy step.

"The bride is a daughter of Mrs. N. Milcovich of Oakland, and she is a charming young lady who has many friends in this city as well as in Oakland. The groom has been in the apple packing business in this city for several years. He has made a financial success of such business a result of pursuing strictly honorable methods, and naturally thereby has made many friends, all of whom extend their congratulations and wish himself and wife a happy journey on the matrimonial sea.

Stoesser. When the session was over the three visiting fiscal agents or promoters declared that a new hostelry for this city was an assured fact and that local capitalists had already been interested in the scheme.

"The meeting...was devoted to a discussion of ways and means for the erection of the new hotel and the financial plan outlined in the prospectus already sent out was duly explained by the promoters. The selection of a board of directors and plans for raising the money were the chief topics of discussion.

"The support of several local capitalists is practically promised for the new building and within the course of a few days the definite announcement will be made of just which local men are interested. The board of directors will first be chosen and they will then assume the business of financing the proposition. All moneys will be handled by them and the fiscal agents will receive a commission for promoting the scheme.

“The visitors expressed themselves as being very much satisfied over the present outlook. They state that the new hotel is a go in this city and more definite news can be looked for next week.”

EP; 16 Mar 1910; article: “NEW BANK WILL BE ESTABLISHED HERE. Stock Rapidly Being Subscribed For—Permanent Location Likely on Mansion House Corner. A proposition which has been quietly underway for some time to establish a new banking house in this city has assumed such shape that its establishment is now an almost assured fact. Frequently for years past there have been rumors of the starting of a new bank in Watsonville, and while it has never been disputed that such would be a good business proposition still the matter has never come to a head until now and we are glad to say that it will be inaugurated by local capital and not financed by capitalists from elsewhere. The men who are interesting themselves in the movement believe that if local capital did not make such a move very soon it would not be very long until wide awake men from San Francisco did so.

“Attorney J. A. Hall is attending to the legal work of the formation of the new bank. He did similar work for the Pajaro Valley bank at the time of the inception of that financial institution about 20 years ago. A few of the others interested in the new bank will be P. A. Callaghan Eugene and Edward Kelly and a number of the leading businessmen, farmers and orchardists, and several of the leading Austrian residents of large property interests...

“The location of the new bank has not as yet been determined upon, but it is beyond a doubt that its final home will be the Mansion House corner. The date of opening has not been decided upon, which of course will have to await the completion of legal procedure that Attorney Hall is now directing. But it will be a State bank with a subscribed capital stock of $100,000, and later a savings bank department will be incorporated.

“No doubt the great success and prosperity of the present two commercial and two savings banks of this city has long been the incentive for prompting local capital to believe that there was room for another financial institution of the kind in this city.”

"Officer Devine saw Derpich rapidly walking towards the Pajaro river bridge about 11 o'clock last night, hiding something all the while beneath his coat. Devine stopped Derpich and investigation showed that two freshly killed chickens, one a small white Leghorn pullet and the other a Buff Cochon, were being carried by the man. Blood, feathers and mud was discovered all over Derpich's clothes and he was taken to jail. Devine says Derpich offered $5 first and $25 to be turned loose, but the officer was not to be bribed. EP; 31 Mar 1910; article: “Mateo and M. N. Lettunich Buy the Ford Estate Property Above the Mansion House. Mateo and M. N. Lettunich have purchased the property of the Ford estate on upper Main street, between the Mansion House and the Brewington property, and in which the ground tenants at present are J. F. Kane, Watsonville Water Co., G. W. Sill (all offices) and the livery stable of J. H. McEwen. Sometime ago it was reported that the sale of this same property had been offered to G. H. Brewington and the deeds from the Ford heirs to Mr. B. are now said to be on the way from the east. Ever since that reported sale efforts have been made to effect a sale to the Lettunichs. Now that they have finally accepted it is thought they have not paid much more than the figure of the reported Brewington purchase, $22,500. The property runs through to Alexander street, but not the width that it has on Main street.

“Mateo Lettunich informed a ‘Pajaronian’ reporter... that he and his cousin take over the entire Brewington purchase with the exception of a certain small tract to the rear of the McEwen stables and that further Mr. B. will have a right of way from his property to Alexander street.

“Mr. Lettunich further states that the plans are at present to tear out as much of the buildings where the offices and stables now are as will accommodate the Mansion House building, and that this work will commence shortly after the deeds have been passed. Where the Mansion House stands at present it is the intention of himself and cousin to build a modern three-story hotel, the building to be flush with the sidewalk on Main and Third streets and to be extended over the building now occupied by Burland Bros. furniture store and owned by the Messrs. Lettunich. No detailed plans of the hotel building have as yet been given consideration, says Mr. Lettunich, and he does not know that a bank will occupy the corner, although it is undoubtedly available for such purpose. He proposes, as far as the new hotel building is concerned, to make many inquiries before having final plans prepared. It is likely, he says, that the building will contain in the neighborhood of 100 rooms altogether.

“Messrs. Lettunich are among the biggest owners of Watsonville realty and in continuing to add to their purchases here they are pursuing the policy that the ‘Pajaronian’ recently commended them and their fellow countrymen for—investing their money at home.”

EP; 31 Mar 1910; article: “...Probable False Charge... Affects Reputation of the Valley’s Leading Industry. Late Saturday afternoon the editor of the San Francisco Call called up by telephone the correspondent of that paper in this city, who happens to be W. S. Sanborn, advertising manager of the ‘Pajaronian,’ and stated that the Portland (Oregon) Journal had a big news story to the effect that a car load of very bad apples from B. Pista & Co. of Watsonville had been received in New York by the commission house of Frank Lester, and that the boxes were falsely labeled ‘Oregon Apples.’ The editor of the Journal requested the Call to have its Watsonville correspondent investigate the story here and call on Mr. Pista for a statement. This Mr. Sanborn did, and he also made inquiries as to Pista’s reputation as a packer and also as to whether or not the New York firm of Frank Lester had done any business here. The conclusions of Mr. Sanborn are embodied in the following telegraphic dispatch which he sent to the Portland Journal on Saturday night and which undoubtedly appeared in that paper yesterday morning.

“Watsonville, March 26, 1910.

“At your request I have seen B. Pista, a well known apple shipper of this city in regard to the statement coming from Portland, to the effect that he had shipped to Frank Lester of New York, a car load of bad apples marked, branded or labeled as Oregon apples. Mr. Pista makes the following statement, which is confirmed by some of the leading apple shippers of the valley: ‘I have sent about 25 cars of Newtons to New York. They were consigned variously to D. Crossley & Sons, Sgobel & Day, and Simons, Shuttleworth & French. I have never heard of Frank Lester of New York. Neither have I ever shipped any apples marked, branded or labeled otherwise than from Watsonville and Pajaro Valley. My label is the “World” brand, and is well known all over the world. My pack sells on its merits at higher figures than that received by other western shippers.’

“Your correspondent has verified the following facts: Mr. Pista is a man of high standing in the community, and one whose word can be accepted without question. He is very proud of the reputation held by his ‘World’ brand, and never ships under any other as he has no need to misrepresent the quality of his pack. In San Francisco his brand brings from the commission houses five cents a box more than the quoted prices, and on a recent shipment of cold storage goods he received fifteen cents more per box than has been paid to any other shipper.

“Mr. Pista, as well as the other 50 and more packing firms of Watsonville shipping Pajaro apples, who have heard the story of the fraudulent use of the name of Oregon in the New York shipment is highly incensed at report, and recommends that measures be taken to get at the truth of the story.

“Inquiry among a number of the foremost packers and brokers of apples in Watsonville, some of whom have connections all through the country, brings out the statement that they have never heard of Frank Lester as an operator in apples from this section. Furthermore, a member of one of the largest San Francisco general fruit commission firms is in Watsonville tonight and in reply to an inquiry stated he had never heard of the Lester firm, and while not doubting its existence does not believe any Watsonville apples are forwarded to Frank Lester.

—W. S. SANBORN.”

“Further investigation this morning bears out the statements made by Mr. Sanborn in his telegram to the Portland Journal and in addition thereto J. C. James, local agent of the S.P. Co. stated that he has no knowledge of any apples ever being shipped from here to Frank Lester, at New York.

“It is probable, though, that some unscrupulous eastern speculator has got hold of a carload of apples that have been out of cold storage for a long time and have been lost for weeks in shipment, which would decay the best of apples at this season of the year, and has put the Oregon label on the boxes. And it may be that this crooked piece of work is a ‘frame up’ to purposely injure the leading apple growing district of the world, Pajaro Valley, in the interest of a lot of Oregon and Washington real estate agents. It now becomes the duty of the local packers and the Commercial League to at once take united action in the work of instituting an investigation of this serious matter which will show up and expose any party or parties that would injure the fair name of Watsonville and the Pajaro Valley. No time should be lost in starting the investigation and no expense should be spared in pushing it to a successful conclusion.”

EP; 17 May 1910; item: “In order to set at rest certain unfounded stories to the effect that the California Fruit Packing company would not handle apples this year, Mr. N. G. Mortizia, the manager authorizes us to state that he intends to do more business in that line this year than ever before.

“Mr. Mortizia has refrained from bothering the growers until ready to deal with them, but is now ready to begin his customary campaign, and with the record of former transactions as a basis confidently hopes to be in the front rank of packers from now on.

“He points with pride to the fact that last year the California Fruit Packing company had no difficulty in selling everything on hand, and returns show that they received 75 cents for 4½ tier and $1 for 4 tier Newtowns and 85 cents for Bellefleurs. Furthermore the growers received their money early in December, and he had no fruit for cold storage.

“This is a good record and Mr. Mortizia accounts for it by the fact that he was so busy attending to the quality of the company’s pack that he devoted all of his attention to that important business, and took no time away from it for the purpose of knocking his competitors.

“From now on he will be out amongst the growers and will endeavor to convince all that he not only is still in the apple packing business, but is in it to stay, and intends to keep up the first-class reputation of his house.”

“While their figures cannot be made public until they have been officially tabulated at the national census office in the capital it is estimated that the population of Watsonville will be close to the 5000 mark. Hopes of the population reaching the 6000 mark will not be realized for the reason that several populous suburbs of this city which are unofficially classed as being in Watsonville, are out of the city limits and must therefore be tabulated in the rural census reports. Further, if the census was taken in this city proper any time between July 1st and December 1st, it would show an additional population of from 1000 to 1500, for that is the period of the year when the big fruit harvest is on which brings here the additional people.

“The population of Watsonville in 1890, according to the U.S. census report, was 2149, and in 1900 it was 3528.

“It is estimated that the 1910 census will show the business trading population of Watsonville to be 15,000, which includes the city, the Pajaro Valley proper (45,000 acres) and its contiguous districts.

“The local census marshals state that those people missed in the city are few and far between, and that their systematic canvass of the city has been equivalent to raking the town with a fine-tooth comb.”

Saturday night he received a different impression. He felt most of the impression in a vague way, the heft of it having hit him where he was best able to sustain it, but some of it was real and as a result George has a broken arm.

“Skirovich was trying an old trick he had learned while skating on the ice in Austria—that of cutting his name in the solid maple floor. At first it worked all right, and he had carved out ‘Skiro,’ but when it came to the ‘vich’ the rollers skidded and he landed in the ditch. Chief Albright called up Dr. Bixby and the young man was given proper attention. The fracture was found to be a severe one and will keep Mr. Skirovich laid up for a long time.”

He has a penchant for getting in against the youngsters and putting it over them. So the challenge is to any team whose members are all under the age of 15 years and five months.

“The challenging team is named the Lyric. "This picnic has no bearing on the one already announced to take place at New Brighton under the auspices of the Danish residents of Watsonville and Salinas, but as the two beaches are on the same bay and only a short distance apart, and as the people under whose auspices the picnics are given are good friends and neighbors when at home, it is probable the picnickers will exchange social visits. EP; 6 Jun 1910; article: “Yesterday was picnic day hereabouts and hundreds of Croatian and Danish residents of this and other towns made the most of it. The 9:40 train to Santa Cruz...was equipped with extra cars yet the train was filled to overflowing with merry picnickers from far and near. The Croatians picnicked at Capitola, where they arrived some 600 strong shortly after 10 o’clock. The Croatians were out for a variegated program of pleasure and to say that all present enjoyed the time of their lives is not putting it strong enough. When the great crowd invaded the peaceful town of Capitola the residents of that fair city capitulated and the town was turned over to the visitors. Many of the Croatians took a dip in the surf, others chose tramps over the neighboring hills, others sat around in knots and groups to converse while others, tired of the dull cares and worries of the weeks past, sought solace amid green, shady nooks there to loll until the luncheon hour arrived. Everybody and his neighbor brought baskets filled with good things to eat and after the inner man had been satiated, the crowd adjourned to spend the remaining hours of the afternoon in dancing. The music was excellently furnished by the Watsonville City band and the dance was a great success from start to finish. At 5:28 the tired but happy folks clambered aboard a homeward bound train after enjoying one of the finest outings in the history of the Croatian society of Pajaro Valley.”

EP; 21 Jun 1910; article: "OFFICIAL POSTER SKETCH ACCEPTED. The board of directors of the Apple Annual Association held a brief meeting...the feature of which was the official adoption of a sketch for the Apple Annual poster, which will be one of the agencies employed by the publicity committee in its tremendous work of advertising the big local apple show and carnival. There were lots of sketches submitted...and every one was a dandy. Each picture had a pretty girl surrounded by apples, every sketch was appropriate for the annual but one submitted by P. M. Beringer, a freelance artist of San Francisco, was finally adopted as the official sketch after due consideration of the merits of the rest. Beringer's sketch was that of a tall, handsome, brunette girl standing beneath a heavily laden apple tree, while before her is spread a partial panoramic view of the Pajaro Valley. When colored for the poster this picture should be a winner everywhere. Beringer, the successful artist, is at present the manager of the Citizens' Alliance in San Francisco, was a former editor of the Overland Monthly and during the Spanish-American war was war correspondent for the New York Herald.

"The matter of co-operating with the Commercial League in the issuance of several thousand well illustrated booklets, descriptive of the Pajaro valley and the Apple Annual, was after considerable discussion postponed until next Thursday evening when the directors will meet again. Several of the members were dubious as to the benefits to be derived by the Apple Annual from this large booklet but others decried the idea of conducting a 'cheap circular' method of advertising..."

The special stopped 10 minutes but during that time the men and women in the train were literally showered with samples of Pajaro Valley fruit. The Commercial League was behind the informal reception and after the feasting and laughter and talking was all over and the train was leaving, the platform of the rear car was crowded with men waving hats and cheering lustily for Watsonville, Pajaro Valley and the citizens that gave them a 10 minute round of solid pleasure. Those...who handed out the fruit...and welcomed the visitors were Messrs. E. A. Hall, J. A. Linscott, T. M. Wright, H. C. Peckham, James Sheehy, W. H. Benteen, R. G. Einfalt, C. M. Jackson, E. H. EP; 30 Jun 1910; article: “E. E. Luther, manager of the California Spray Chemical Company of this city has returned from a two month’s tour of the United States. Primarily the trip was a wedding tour, but Mr. Luther made it a point to visit most of the fruit districts and to observe conditions, particularly in relation to orchard pest control by spraying processes...”

“In summing up this short account of his observations, Mr. Luther said: ‘I am glad to say that the Pajaro Valley has the best facilities for packing and shipping of all places I have seen and more money has been spent here in the substantial and permanent betterment of the apple industry than in all of the other places combined. In most of the places I visited the sorting and packing is done in the fields, and even when handled through shipping houses it was with poor facilities. The exception to that rule is Hood River, where, on a smaller scale things are better than elsewhere, and where they have erected an ice plant and refrigerating storage...’”

Bettencourt alleges that last year he contracted with Mioceovich for all of the gravel in the latter's pit near Logan and that all of the gravel was not forthcoming. Mioceovich declares that he could not furnish all of the gravel in the pit because his lease of the place expired in November and also that backwater from the river rendered hauling impossible...a goodly portion of the time..."

EP; 11 Aug 1910; item: "Judge A. B. Hawkins has handed down a judgment where by Frank J. Bettencourt is awarded the amount of $12.90 from A. Mosevich [Mioceovich], whom he sued for $120 damages. The action was brought upon the allegation that the defendant had prohibited the plaintiff from hauling gravel from a certain pit near Logan although said plaintiff had entered into a contract with the defendant to haul the gravel. Mioceovich alleged that there were conflicting oral agreements, which were not embodied in the main contract."

EP; 11 Aug 1910; item: "Below is published a table of the apple production in the different States of the nation for the past five years, and a perusal of the figures will soon demonstrate the wonderfully important factor in this great business is the 16,000 acres of the Pajaro Valley devoted to apple growing..."

"The figures are for barrel production. It takes a little over 2¾ boxes of Pajaro Valley apples to make a barrel of the fruit. In the subjoined table California is credited last year with having produced 1,100,000 barrels of apples, about one-twentieth of the total in the United States, or about 3,200,000 boxes. Of the latter total the production of Watsonville and the Pajaro Valley was at least 2,800,000 boxes, the balance coming from principally the Sonoma district and a few others scattered throughout the State. So after all, the Pajaro Valley is 'some pumpkins' when it comes to apple production.

"The biggest producing apple section of the country is the old Empire State of New York, but there are many large apple districts therein and they are well distributed throughout the State and cover a wide expanse of territory...[table omitted]"

EP; 18 Aug 1910; article: "Austrian Packing Houses Take an Important Step in Shipping and Marketing of Apples. The Austrian-American Apple Packers' Association was organized on June 10th for the purpose of economizing on the heavy forwarding charges incurred at New York on European shipments of Newtowns. It comprises, with three or four exceptions, all the Austrian packers in the valley, the exceptions referred to preferring to market their shipments as heretofore.

"After a number of meetings at which details of their organization were discussed at length they finally came to an agreement and selected Mr. E. T. Fleming, who has for a number of years assisted them in transportation matters, as their traffic manager to make such arrangements and details as were necessary to carry out the plan agreed upon. Mr. Fleming has just returned from an eastern trip and reported at a meeting of the association...that all arrangements suggested by their plan had been accomplished and he was requested to take the matter fully in charge.

"His resignation has been filed with his company, the Chicago Great Western Railway, with which he had been employed for the past 10 years and on September 15th he will take up his duties with the association who will open their offices in New York and attend to all the details of forwarding to Europe their various shipments. Through an arrangement made with their European selling agents they will receive full market conditions weekly by cable, thus enabling the home market to be as fully informed as the New York brokers.

"The Austrian packers are exceedingly pleased over the results accomplished and look for a better condition of things in this particular branch of their business. They long since appreciated the necessity of combined action but so many difficulties were in the way to prevent such action that they are correspondingly jubilant that will permit each firm to control its individual business, at the same time sharing in the benefits of the organization and a central point of distribution at a minimum cost. Luke Scurich is president of the association, P. Stolich is secretary and F. P. Marinovich is treasurer."

EP; 6 Sep 1910; article: "B. Pista...Assaulted...in Office. Blas Pista, the well known Austrian fruit packer and shipper of this city, was the victim about 6 o'clock last night of an assault at the hands of half a dozen unknown 'fruit tramps' who were finally frightened away by the approach of a dozen or more of Pista's employees, who hearing the noise in the front office of the packing house on West Lake avenue, came into the building from the rear to aid Pista. The leader of the gang of assaulters...was a young man, who left Pista's employ last Saturday after a quarrel with his employer over wages due him.

"Pista was in his office...preparatory to closing up his day's business when his former employee and several friends entered the room. The attack was deliberate and practically minus the usual preliminaries. The men waded into Pista on all sides and after blacking one of his eyes and bruising his face in several places, the unknown men ceased fighting when they heard Pista's friends coming towards the office. The men escaped hurriedly from the building just in time to dodge a fusillade of rocks, bricks, sticks and shooks, which the Pista employees hurled at them as they ran up Lake avenue toward Main street.

"Besides breaking one of the doors leading into the office the men scattered papers, books and the office furniture all over the floor.

"This afternoon the four men who are Enert White, F. A. Richards, G. Schwan and Iva Sherman, were arrested by Chief of Police T. J. Albright, Constable John H. Corr and Officer Arthur Devine and each was released upon $10 bail. They all pleaded 'not guilty' and their cases will be heard before Judge Bridgwater next Tuesday... one of their number, Enert White, had Pista himself arrested for battery and as Pista pleaded not guilty he was released on his own recognizance and his trial set for next Wednesday morning...White alleges that Pista committed battery on him last Saturday night when he went to get from the latter his wages."

In the first place, I have sold my horse 'Babe' to Robert Mann, and secondly, I never had any intention of racing 'Babe' against the Castroville horse. But there will be a race next Sunday between my former horse, 'Babe' and Paul Alaga's horse, 'Little Pete' in which there is a $100 purse involved—same having been put up between Geo. Mann and Paul Alaga, and I will only receive $25 if 'Babe' wins. Trusting you will make the necessary correction, I remain, Yours very truly, NICK MORTIZIA."

EP; 1 Oct. 1910; article: "EARLY HISTORY OF PAJARO ORCHARDS. Apples From Trees Planted In Early '50s and '60s Will Be Exhibited at Apple Annual. In 1852, Jas. Watters, a pioneer resident of the Pajaro Valley, states that there was a bearing orchard on the Santa Cruz road, just beyond Freedom. There is no record as to who owned these trees, or whether they are still growing.

"Hon. Jesse D. Carr, in 1854 planted a family orchard in what is now known as the Silliman ranch, about 2 miles east of Watsonville, on the Salsipuedes road. A part of the original orchard was dug up a few years ago, but a number of the original trees planted in 1854 are still bearing. There are also apricot, peach and pear trees of the same age in this orchard.

"The first orchards planted for commercial use were planted by Jas. Watters, J. A. Blackburn and Isaac Williams, in 1861 and 1862. Jas. Watters planted 1500 trees on the place owned by him near the Kelly lake in 1861. The great flood the following year, carried his trees away and completely devastated his entire orchard. The same year J. A. Blackburn planted about 20 acres of orchard, a part of which is now within the city limits of Watsonville. Many of these trees are still in a splendid state of preservation and bearing good fruit. About the same time, Isaac Williams planted about 20 acres of apples on what is now known as the Redman ranch about 1½ miles east of Watsonville. This ranch was purchased by the late K. F. Redman in 1868, and his estate still owns the property. This orchard was removed a few years ago. There were small orchards planted the same year on what is now known as the Wiley and Vaughn ranches, adjoining.

"In 1867, the late K. F. Redman planted a family orchard on the Willoughby ranch east of town, which he owned at the time. Apples from all the above described orchards, will be on exhibition at the Apple Annual to be held here Oct. 10th to 15th."

The special train carrying over 125 Watsonvilleans left the local depot on schedule time at 7:30 o’clock this morning. The first stop was Santa Cruz, where the boosters disembarked and paraded through the streets behind the Watsonville city band. Stops were then made at Los Gatos and Palo and near the noon hour the boosting crowd entered the Golden Gate City. As the Pajaro Valleyites paraded up Third from Townsend to Market and down Market to the Palace Hotel each carried a basket of apples, which was empty in a short time. The noon hour found the crowd banqueting at the new Palace hotel, where Mayor McCarthy and other San Francisco dignitaries addressed them.

“After a stop of over two hours in the metropolis the crowd crossed the ferry and paraded through Oakland and Alameda. The next stop was San Jose, which the train will reach at 5:30 o’clock this evening. After a stop at Gilroy the boosters will return home and parade on Main street before disbanding.

EP; 6 Oct 1910; article: “BOOSTERS RETURNED AFTER GREAT TRIP. The Pajaro Valley Apple Annual boosters returned last night about 9 o’clock, a tired but happy band, after a great day’s siege of the big bay cities and other coast towns in the interests of Watsonville and the Apple Annual. Never before had Watsonville been so advertised as it was yesterday. As the local crowd of over 170 people marched through throbbing San Francisco and thriving Oakland and later beautiful San Jose the gospel of the apple was preached to everyone and in an interesting, forcible way. Thousands and thousands of people yesterday heard of or saw Watsonville apples and out of these thousands there will be hundreds here next week to visit the great Apple Annual. The boosters' trip paid in a potential way a dozen times over.

"Santa Cruz, Los [Gatos], Palo Alto and San Mateo were visited by the boosters yesterday before San Francisco was reached. Parades were held in Santa Cruz and Palo Alto before hundreds of people and at Los Gatos and San Mateo other hundreds were drawn to the depot by the strains of the music by the Watsonville band. It was past 12:30 o'clock when the boosters' special steamed into the Third and Townsend street depot in San Francisco, and after having their picture 'took' by several newspaper photographers the boosters rode in special streetcars to Fourth and Mission, where the parade began...

"Thousands and thousands of people lined the streets on all sides and as the boosters threw apples in all directions the great throng cheered lustily and heartily for Watsonville. The boosters made a great showing in the big city as they marched two abreast and far apart through the streets with pennants, flags and banners waving and the band playing snappy marches at intervals of three minutes.

"The luncheon at the Palace was delightful and came just at the right time for the almost famished boosters, and the hotel management tendered the crowd every possible convenience. President O. D. Stoesser of the Apple Annual officiated as toastmaster and short, enthusiastic and breezy speeches were made by Mayor P. H. McCarthy of San Francisco, President Mackie of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce and C. C. Moore of San Francisco. The luncheon over with, the boosters paraded down Market to the ferry which was crossed to Oakland.

"At Oakland President Mackie of the Chamber of Commerce...and other prominent Oakland boosters and businessmen took the boosters in hand and escorted them through the streets, which were lined with hundreds and hundreds of cheering Oaklanders. The Tribune and Enquirer newspaper offices were serenaded, a visit was paid to the fine and extensive exhibit of the Home Industrial League and the march continued.

"The showing made in Oakland was as great as that realized in San Francisco. Forty-five minutes was spent in Oakland and they were all used to good advantage, too.

"Once more the boosters boarded the train and about 6 o'clock San Jose was reached. Here the parade was headed by two automobiles carrying Mayor Davison, Police Judge Dougherty, President Stoesser, Secretary Lahan of the Police and Fire Commission and others.

"San Jose was reached at a poor hour, yet several hundreds came up town hurriedly upon hearing the music. A 45 minute stay was made in the Garden City after which the boosters departed for home and bed. A short band selection awakened the residents of Gilroy and then the great trip ended by all the boosters marching through Watsonville before their fellow townsmen last night.

"The good done by the boosters yesterday in all the cities visited and especially San Francisco, Oakland and San Jose cannot be gauged. The San Francisco, Oakland and San Jose newspapers had special reporters detailed on the boosters and today columns of boost writeups and photographs will be read by thousands more, who were not able to be with the thousands viewing the parades.

"In every town a lively interest was shown in the Apple Annual and the boosters received a spontaneous welcome all along the road. To F. R. Howe and R. W. Putsker of Santa Cruz and Horace Smith, B. F. Crews, H. C. Peckham and Luke Scurich of Watsonville is due special credit for the way they kept the paraders in line. The band boys worked hard and well and are also deserving of special mention. To the ladies among the boosters every masculine booster takes off his hat for their pluck and enthusiasm. The ladies made a big hit wherever they went and their power from a standpoint of endurance and boosting needs more than a passing comment."

EP; 7 Oct 1910; article: "TWO MEN KNIFED BY ENRAGED AUSTRIAN. John Rancovich [Roncevich], a driver for the Rilovich Brothers' packing concern, is in the city jail facing a charge of attempt to kill with a deadly weapon; Cyrus R. Bardmess, a millhand at the Hihn-Hammond lumber company yards, is lying at the Watsonville hospital in a precarious condition; Arthur Walker, an employee in the sugar company yards, is suffering from a severe gash in the shoulder, and George Rilovich, the packer, has a black eye. The above was all the result of a serious cutting affray, which took place late yesterday afternoon near the Walker street entrance to the old sugar company yards and which was caused by a petty quarrel between Rancovich, Edward Parker, Frank Silva and several other persons, who were in the yards.

"Frank Silva had a load of sugar beets on the lumber company's scales to be weighed and near him was Rancovich with a load of apples. The two men entered into a verbal quarrel over the matter of procedure on the scales and the wordy battle was aided and abetted by Edward Parker, a lumberyard employee, who it is alleged, urged Silva to fight Rancovich. Finally Rancovich waded in and proceeded to hammer Parker with his fists. By this time several of Rancovich's countrymen are alleged to have come to his aid and the crowd was augmented by Bardmess, Walker and a few others in a few moments.

"Rancovich, Walker, Parker, Bardmess and several others are said to have been beating in all directions with their fists when Rancovich sneaked off to return with a knife. One lunge with this weapon across the chest severed an artery in Bardmess' breast and he was hurried to the hospital in a critical condition. Walker kept on fighting until severely cut on the shoulder by the knife and then he capitulated. Rancovich was then supreme for a few moments until Chief of Police Albright arrived and the fighting Austrian was lodged in jail.

"He now faces a most serious charge as a result of his work with the knife and is even lucky that the charge is not even more serious. Attorney D. F. Maher and Geo. W. Smith have been retained to defend Rancovich..."

The autoes met California's distinguished son on the Castroville road and when the Pajaro river bridge was reached the band led the triumphal procession into town to the plaza, where Mr. Johnson addressed the crowds.

"Messrs. R. W. Eaton, J. Hart, I. H. Tuttle, T. S. Hudson, Luke Scurich, J. Williamson, H. C. Peckham and C. M. Neal in their autos which were all filled with other Republicans, met Mr. Johnson and party on the Castroville road and escorted him into town..."

EP; 14 Oct 1910; article: "Today was Watsonville's biggest day—biggest of the Apple Annual days, and biggest in all the history of Santa Cruz County...It was Apple Day. Apple was King, and ruled every action of his thousands of subjects.

"The day opened...with the reception to the Salinas, Castroville, Monterey and Pacific Grove contingents of visitors, and it is safe to say they numbered more than a thousand.

"Then came the regular train from Santa Cruz, followed by three sections of a special train. When Harvey Miller, county clerk, left Santa Cruz on the second section 4000 tickets had been sold for Watsonville, and another section of the train was due to leave with the unnumbered passengers. Whether or not the waiting crowds at Seabright, Twin Lakes, Capitola and Aptos succeeded in getting aboard later trains is not known.

"Main street, from end to end, was filled with people and the crowd overflowed into the side streets. Promptly at 11 o'clock the big whistle at the power company's plant blew, and the parade started..."

"Apples, apples, apples. Miles on miles of them. Some of the wagons were prepared for the parade, others just dropped into the line on their way from the orchards to the packing houses. In all there were 200 apple wagons, and each wagon carried from 120 to 200 boxes—altogether about 50 carloads, or two-thirds of a normal day's shipping from Pajaro Valley.

"And the apple men weren't stingy! Right and left they threw apples to the crowd, and with the special free distribution made by the Improved Order of Redmen, everyone that wanted an apple got one. It must have been so, for after the parade had passed, the gutters on either side of the street for five blocks were lined with apples that had been 'muffed' by the crowd or badly aimed by the busy drivers..."

"It is not in our province to name the best features of the parade. The judges will do that, but we want to compliment the Secondo Fruit company on the originality displayed in decorating one of its apple wagons. Horses, harness, wagon and even the driver, were bedecked with apples in pretty arrangement..."

"...[T]he members of the Watsonville Croatian society wound up [in the 2nd] division.

"Then came the last division, the greatest pageant ever witnessed in the world of a similar nature..."

"In the long line of wagons there were 65 wagons and trucks carrying loose apples in boxes. In the main these boxes were unbranded, and therefore no tally could be kept to record the owners names. The wagons and trucks so referred to evidently had come to the parade direct from the orchards without any preparation for display. The owners are entitled to credit for their efforts but we fail to see how they are going to get it.

"Those wagons carrying banners are accredited accordingly. They were: Aromas Fruit Growers Associa-

The saloons, cigar stores, public offices and business houses everywhere at the county seat closed their doors and today the City of the Holy Cross is dead as far as business is concerned. Man and Woman Pack Five Boxes of Newtons in Forty Minutes. [Special Dispatch to The Call] WATSONVILLE, Oct. 15.—Before a crowd which fairly jammed the immense Auditorium this morning, Mike Lazarich [Lazarevich] and Miss Alma Bradley, contestants at Watsonville’s apple annual, were officially declared the world’s champion apple packers.

“The awards were based upon points in speed, uniformity, alignment, bulge and height of the ends. Four tier Newtowns were used, and 40 minutes were given each contestant to pack five boxes. The judges were: J. E. Turner and C. E. Hotle of Sebastopol and C. E. Greison of Hood River, Ore., assistant editor of ‘Better Fruit.’

“The first prize was a gold watch for each of the victors and a silver watch was second prize. The women’s prizes were offered by the Pioneer roll paper company of Los Angeles, and the men’s prizes were given by the Northern California paper trade association of San Francisco.

“Miss Ida Stoffers was second with 101 and Miss Nellie Turney ranked third with 91. All three of the women were from the San Monte fruit company.

“In the men’s contest A. E. Metcalf of the San Monte company was second with 105½ points. Martin Prokurich [Prokuriza] of the Scurich company, tied with M. Jerinich for third place with 97 points.

“The other men contesting were: Manuel Rengol of MacDonald & Sons, William Bank [Buak] of Novacovich & Stolich, M. Scurich of Scurich & Makish [Mekis], Jack Resetar of Resetar Brothers, H. Sherman of Capitola and George Quinn of Fresno.

“There was an automobile parade on Main street...this afternoon. The gayly decorated machines were loudly applauded both in the slow march down Main street and the speed burst with which the parade was concluded on the return. The following automobile owners were represented: John H. Covell, H. C. Peckham, E. Steinhauser, M. Travers. Best decorated—R. W. Eaton, W. J. McGrath, Miss Helen Wilder, Daniel Regan, O. O. Eaton, Ole Christensen, Arthur Wilson, W. D. Gulick, Frank Brewington, Peter Storm, J. A. “This was Watsonville night and the men, women and children, who have been busy all week either with the details of the big display, entertaining visitors at home, or packing and shipping hundreds of cars of apples sent out as usual, have abandoned themselves to the festival spirit, and the auditorium, theaters, halls, park and streets were filled with merry makers. Noise, confetti and joviality were the gods of the occasion and they got due reverence...

Sergeant McGowan and Patrolman Dan Collins of the San Francisco police department, Sheriff H. V. Trafton and the local police have kept the town free from all possible criminal practices...”

EP; 17 Oct 1910; article: “Greatest Apple Show Ever Held in the World Closes until Next Year... Saturday night and yesterday afternoon witnessed the closing scenes in the life of the 1910 Apple Annual. On Saturday evening the city was a blaze of bright color and was fairly throbbing with merriment and fun. The carnival spirit of the mardi gras ran high from one end of the city to the other and Main street was one mass of moving humanity from 6 o’clock on to midnight. Confetti was everywhere in the air, it filled the eyes, mouth, ears, hair of everyone on the street and was thrown as cheerfully and gaily as it was received. Horns, bells, rattles, drums and many other noise producers were utilized by young America in general to make matters as far from peaceful as possible.

“Over at the pavilion the band was giving a promenade concert as the carnival went on downtown and after the concert the audience present heard brief but telling speeches from Judge George E. Rowe of Grand Rapids, Michigan, President Otto D. Stoesser of the Apple Annual, Chairman J. E. Gardner and W. I. Newcomb of Sebastopol.

“Judge Rowe in his short address pronounced the Apple Annual the greatest fruit show in every respect that he had ever seen in his life. When one considers that Mr. Rowe has attended or judged fruit shows for many years that assertion bears considerable weight.

“Following the speech making at the pavilion the crowds adjourned to the opera house and Odd Fellows’ halls where dancing was enjoyed until past midnight.

“A pie eating contest enlivened matters somewhat at the pavilion Saturday night. Laurier Vukich won the championship and $5 by consuming a big apple pie in five minutes...Miss Velma Waugaman won the $5 Coffee Club meal ticket by guessing within one ounce of the weight of the big pie exhibited by the Coffee Club and which was an exact fac-simile of the pie given Governor Gillett on Monday night. “Messrs. Hopkins and Bardmess followed Dr. Watters with detailed accounts of the fight in the sugar factory yards, which led up to the knifing. Both were positive that Rancovich was the knife wielder.

“...Rancovich was ordered held to answer before the superior court on a charge of attempt to murder and his bail was fixed at $1000. The attorneys for the defense sought to have the charge reduced to one of assault with a deadly weapon but the motion was denied and the felony charge ordered to remain.”

Pacific Rural Press; 22 Oct 1910 (Vol. 80, #17): “A SUGGESTION TO THE GROWERS. To the Editor: I was at Watsonville to the Apple Show and there was exhibited about 30 carloads of apples, as fine an exhibit as the State of California has ever produced. This is the first show of its kind held at Watsonville and no doubt is a forerunner of many to follow. The thing that impressed me most as a fruit grower was the loss of identity of the grower of Pajaro valley. Speaking in particular of the carload exhibits of which there were 16 full cars exhibited, the credit for the whole exhibit went entirely to the packing house who entered them. In the judging of these apples 75 points depended upon the quality of the fruit in the package. The remaining 25 points counted for the grade or sorting and packing of the fruit by the packer. By this method a packer might buy one small orchard or he might cull the largest orchard in the valley of one car of the best fruit and carry off the highest honor. The grower or growers represented in that car were absolutely unknown either to themselves or to the other packers in the valley. A suggestion that struck me most forcibly and one which would make it more competitive to the packer and more profitable to the grower would be this: Change the entries so that each packer exhibiting a car of a single variety must secure his apples from at least ten different orchards and each grower’s name must be shown on the exhibit, thus the selecting of one orchard for a special car would be eliminated and those growers who by the excellence of their fruit were able to be included in this car would establish a reputation that would make their fruit more in demand by the other packers. Many of the growers in the large sections like the Pajaro valley are not packers and do not wish to be. The exhibiting of fruit at any affair of this kind demands both quality and skill in showing. The packing houses exhibiting fruit are not responsible for the quality of the fruit, but are responsible for the culling, grading and packing. By dividing the honors of the grower and the packer the maximum good of a show of this kind could be obtained.

“(Mr. Hanna is known to our readers as a man of wisdom in fruit affairs and his suggestions as to greater undertakings by the powers themselves in future expositions will no doubt be regarded as both timely and pertinent. Mrs. Balanac has been divorced from the defendant for several years and when she secured her final decree she was given custody of a minor child, who is now 10 years old. Balanac has repeatedly tried to secure the child and last week it is alleged he threatened to kill his former wife unless she delivered the child to him before today (Monday). This Mrs. Balanac would not do and to protect herself she had her former husband arrested. Judge Hawkins informed Balanac of his rights and in default of $2000 bonds, he was remanded to the city prison...[A] futile effort was made to secure the necessary bonds...[T]omorrow Balanac must either furnish the nec-

EP; 4 Nov 1910; article: "The Commercial League and the Apple Annual will not be amalgamated. At least there is not much likelihood of these two big commercial bodies merging into one big association at any very early date if at all. The directors of the Commercial League, who met in regular monthly session last night at the pavilion, talked the proposed amalgamation over and President Edward A. Hall appeared to be almost alone in favor of the union. J. E. Gardner and Otto D. Stoesser opposed the union.

"The matter was finally shelved and while no definite action was taken upon the matter of consolidation it would doubtless have been voted down last night if a vote had been taken.

"President Hall broached the subject of consolidation shortly after the meeting had been convened. He said there was not room in this city for two commercial organizations and as the Apple Annual was the strongest body he favored the coalition of the league with the Apple Annual, Director W. H. Benteen seconded the sentiments expressed by Mr. Hall and said experience had taught the lesson of the uselessness of two commercial bodies here.

"Director Gardner was directly opposed to the union. The Apple Annual is an incorporated body and to take up the league work would be going beyond the purpose specified in the articles of incorporation and technically the union would not be legal, he said in arguing that the amalgamation would be illegal. He said the union would overload the Apple Annual until its usefulness would be seriously impaired. The two bodies if separate could work well together and he favored the two mutually agreeing upon a way to divide the expense of publicity and clerical work between the various annual apple shows.

"Director Stoesser said Gardner's sentiments were his also. He said the Commercial League should increase its membership and he could see no reason why that body should not have 400 members. He believed that the issue before the Commercial League was not amalgamation, but more members. Shortly after Stoesser's talk the discussion was dropped...

Throughout these events and continuing on to the end of WWI, they were able to demonstrate their leadership and influence and, as a result, gained much respect within the community.

Luke Scurich, Mateo Lettunich and M. N. Lettunich were on the board of directors of the Apple Annual. The Alaga Brothers won the Sweepstakes Prize 3 years running. Anna Farlin (sister-in-law of Mateo Lettunich) was the assistant secretary for the first 3 years, and secretary for the 4th year of the event. Anna was also secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce.

Anna Farlin was the model for this souvenir program cover (left) and poster of the 1912 Apple Annual (see entries for 11 April and 3 Aug. 1912). In 1915 she married Otto D. Stoesser, the Director of the Apple Annual.

This was the keynote so enthusiastically personified at the annual meeting held last night at the municipal pavilion and later at the I.O.O.F. hall of the members of the Watsonville Apple Annual association...Pure enthusiasm of the undiluted variety was uncorked last night throughout the busy session, which lasted five hours and which was attended by nearly three score and ten business men of the city and valley and of outside cities and vales. Unselfish pride in the success achieved by the 1910 apple show and bright, crimson hope for greater attainment in 1911 were expressed on all sides by every speaker...

"...Agrarian pursuits were not represented alone. Conservative business rubbed elbows with the legal bar, the humble vocation of the rural life mixed readily with the throbbing life of the city, public officials met private citizens and so the list goes on. Almost every profession and vocation commonly known was represented at the gathering and all united on one common plane and gathered together for one united purpose, the boosting of the Apple Annual in 1911 particularly, and the boosting of apple shows in years to come as well...Other session have been held here for purposes almost similar but none aroused as strong enthusiasm as did last evening's assembly..."

"Watsonville, Cal., Jan. 10, 1911. To the Editor of the Evening 'Pajaronian.'

"Dear Sir:

"Knowing your worthy publication stands first and above all things for enlightenment of your readers, for the progress and harmony of people of Watsonville, I believe that you will do me the honor of inserting the following paper:

"Last evening, or to be correct, this morning, while returning from a sumptuous feast given by the Apple Annual association of this city, and to which I was honored in being invited by the energetic president of the association, I walked behind two gentlemen both of whom I have seen on several occasions but have never had the pleasure of making their acquaintance.

"The eldest, a gentleman over whose brow 50 summers have passed, inquired of his younger companion, a young man about 30 years of age, 'Who are the Croations [sic] anyway? I heard the toastmaster, Mr. Gardner, introduce that man from the city as the publisher of the Croation [sic] newspaper.'

"The young man readily answered in the expressive western vernacular, 'Search me.'

"Just at the moment we were nearing a corner and our places of repose which took us to opposite directions.

"As a representative Croation [sic] I feel it my duty and in fact owe it to our people to enlighten the citizens of Pajaro valley, in that which these two men, through no fault of their own, did not know.

"Croations [sic] are one of the Slavonic nationalities ruled and governed by the Austro-Hungarian Empire, but due to the subjugation of the mentioned government of Croatian people, and the lack of public schools in the years gone by, to the strong suppression of everything Croatian by the Austrian government, many of our people left home without knowing their real nationality, as it meant incarceration and oftentimes worst to assert it.

"Young men serving (compulsory) in army or navy, were prohibited by most stringent military rules from ever referring to the Croatians as of a nationality—they being simply Austro-Hungarian subjects.

"So in coming to America men whose ancestors for nearly 16 centuries had been Croatians by language and nationality, not knowing any better simply took the race as a nationality called themselves Slavonians, or accepted the term forced upon them by their oppressors and called themselves Austrians. However, recent years have brought great changes for the better in the Croatian provinces namely: Croatia, Slavonia [sic], Istria and Dalmacia.

"Croatian schools are springing up throughout our fatherland thanks to the untiring efforts of unflinching workers and patriots in the named provinces, even though the government does not support all of them. Every mother's son, as soon as he learns to speak, knows his nationality and asserts it. Therefore, the time is not far off when our people will pride themselves in being known by that which they are: Croatians and nothing else.

"In conclusion, I most heartily approve, in fact to urge Croatians to become American citizens, whenever possible, and by doing so they can be just as true to their ancestry and mother tongue. —M. N. COSULICH."

Co. has no legal franchise for even a single broad gauge track) in this city are some of the big improvements promised for the Pajaro valley before the opening of the 1911 fruit season, according to statements made this morning to local citizens by Thomas Ahearn, superintendent of the coast division for the Southern Pacific..."

City Attorney Sheehy then wanted the city to have the plat referred back to the commissioners for correction. But Sans said he would not urge that technical point but asked the board to hear his objections against the report first and then refer the whole matter back to the commissioners for readjustment. He won his point.

“The commissioners allowed Grizich \$5297.50 for a strip of land $49\frac{3}{4} \times 300$, which he deems too low, his price being \$7500. In cutting up the land for the street a strip 15×300 feet is left and Grizich alleged that this narrow strip would be worthless...The sum of \$1840 is allowed Grizich for improvements while Grizich wants \$2500. Grizich testified that he valued the land at \$100 per front foot and Attorney G. W. Smith testified that once Grizich had refused to sell the property for \$6800... Mr. Grizich will thus have a chance to protest directly to the commissioners before the report is returned...”

"Mr. DeHart opposed the triple track system and favored the construction of one main line and one siding on either side of the street. Ahern told him that the triple track system would give added facilities equally to both sides of the street and would mean a clear main line at all times. The triple track system would lessen the danger of the many frogs and switches and as the tracks would be plumb with the street no damage or danger would result to wagon traffic. That was Ahern's argument. DeHart said some room should be left on the street for wagon traffic and to allow the farmers and growers to more easily reach the packing houses..."

A disastrous fire, which is believed to have been of an incendiary origin, early this morning destroyed the packing house owned by Louis P. The fire was first noticed about 2 o’clock this morning by officer John Whalen while patrolling his beat, and he immediately hastened to the engine house and the alarm was turned in by Whalen and George Hrepich. The firemen responded quickly but the fire had secured too much headway and the inflammable buildings were soon reduced to burning embers.

“The loss is estimated to be $12,000 by Mr. Cikuth and insurance for only $1600 is carried. The packing house and residence were entirely destroyed, 10,000 fruit boxes were destroyed, shook material for about 6000 more boxes were burned and a buggy, several fruit trucks, a spraying outfit and all the fruit wagons on the premises were wiped out. The fire is believed to have originated in the front office and swept towards the rear. An incendiary is thought to have caused the fire for a year ago an attempt was made to burn the packing house, the attempt being frustrated.

“The packing house and residence were formerly owned by the J. P. Miovich company, who sold the property to Mr. Cikuth. Coming as it did at this time of the year, the fire will cripple Mr. Cikuth. Mr. Cikuth intends to immediately rebuild and be open by the time the fruit season commences.

“The firemen put up a brave but losing battle against the flames and they succeeded in keeping the flames within the Cikuth property and in protecting the nearby residences and packing houses.”

“But the decision was not unanimous. Alderman P. A. Callaghan of the second ward alone voted in the negative and his fight for those in the audience who sought recognition on the floor and were choked off until after the passage of the ordinance, was one of the most dramatic scenes ever enacted at a council meeting here in this city. The vote on the ordinance was 7 to 1...”

“The meeting last night was one of intense excitement and dramatic interest. Before the aldermen convened... the council chambers were almost packed to suffocation by citizens from all parts of the city, who had gathered there to witness what they expected would be an intense scene. Even after the board had assembled and was transacting minor business before taking up the franchise ordinance did the citizens continue to pack the small room and to choke the entrance thereto and the stairs.

“When the ordinance finally came up[,] fully two score and ten citizens of all classes were present. A batch of small business was handled first before City Attorney instructed City Clerk Coffman to read the franchise ordinance...”

“In the excitement City Clerk Coffman had neglected to bring in the ordinance from his office and while he was securing the document... Chief of Police and Tax Collector Albright was granted the floor. Albright wanted information. He stated that City Attorney Sheehy had instructed him to collect the local corporation taxes and he had with the exception of three. These were the Southern Pacific for $150, the Pacific States Telephone and Telegraph company for $40 and the Wells Fargo Express company for $40. He had approached the representatives of each of these corporations and all had refused to pay the tax. What was he to do? The mayor instructed him to see the city attorney again.

“In the meantime Clerk Coffman had returned with the ordinance and amid a hush on the part of the audience, he read the document in full.

“There was a momentary stillness, an instant’s holding of breath and then as in each other case ‘Boss’ Horgan moving the passage of the ordinance. Understudy Covell was right at the heels of the motion with his usual second.

“Immediately three citizens arose in the audience and addressed the chair. Stephen Scurich was one, Charles Taylor was another and the third was Joe DeHart. But Mayor Watters interrupted them by stating the motion. Again the three addressed the chair and sought to speak. In every parliamentary body, even if conducted by inmates of an insane asylum, the question is always called for before the vote is taken and after the motion has been stated.

“But there was nothing like that last night. To call the question means to open the matter under consideration for debate and so Mayor Watters entirely ignored this golden rule of parliamentary law and told the clerk to call the roll.

“But Callaghan did not propose to allow such steam-roller methods to pass unnoticed and he declared: ‘Mr. Mayor, there are several gentlemen here who wish to speak.’ But the mayor rudely interrupted him by saying, ‘This is a meeting of the board and not of the citizens. Clerk call the roll.’

“The roll was called. Horgan, Covell, Prettyman, Fowler, Peterson, Palmtag and Freiermuth voted ‘yes,’ and Callaghan alone voted ‘no.’

“The air was surcharged with suppressed emotion of a forceful nature. There was a lull for a second or two before Stephen Scurich arose again to speak and this time he was allowed the floor.

“‘As a citizen and a property owner,’ declared Mr. Scurich, ‘I have a kick coming and I am going to tell what it is to this board. You all know that Central avenue was opened a year ago from Union street to Main. The credit for the opening of Central avenue gentlemen, is due to Stephen Scurich and Mr. W. Johnson. They paid two-thirds of the cost of opening the street and why? Because they wanted to remove an eyesore from the city and rid the town of the dirty Chinese laundry, which stood on Main street. We turned the contract for fixing the street over to the Granite Rock company and they said they would do it for us.

“‘But no work at all was done. Since then I inquired of the company why the street was not fixed. They said it was up to the board. I then talked to several of my best friends on the board and they said the board could do nothing because it did not have the money. You are now ready to open more streets and not ready to fix those you have already got. You are ready to give away a franchise, a valuable franchise on a valuable street, for nothing when you could have $15,000 or $20,000 for use in improving your streets. The chief of police said just now that the telephone company, the express company and the railroad company had refused to pay their taxes. Why?’

“Here Mayor Watters interrupted to state ‘There has been a new law passed.’

“Yes,’ continued Mr. Scurich, ‘the telephone, telegraph and railroad companies damage our property and do not pay. What right has the telephone company to dig up some of our concrete sidewalk and then refused to replace it? But I ask any of you to come down on Central avenue and try to travel over it in an automobile or any other vehicle. You can’t do it. The flood came and deposited some sand on Central avenue near Main street and helped fill the street for us. What did you do? You hauled away that sand to fill some other street and left our street as bad as ever. The flood deposited sand on Union street, too. What did you do there? You hauled that away too. Gentlemen, I stand for justice and my rights. I pay my taxes and expect justice in return. I am of foreign birth but I am just as good an American citizen as any man here.’ Here Mr. Scurich’s words were drowned in tumultuous applause, which threatened to rock the very walls and which came spontaneously from all parts of the audience.

“‘Has a citizen not the right to speak here?’ inquired Callaghan.

“‘If a majority of the board says so,’ vouchsafed City Attorney Sheehy.

“‘It is indeed unfortunate,’ said Mr. Callaghan then and he arose to his feet to address the board, ‘that we do not have a man in the chair, who is larger than you, Mr. Mayor,’ and he turned to Mayor Watters in indignation, ‘who will recognize the rights of the people.’ Here the audience thundered out its applause again and the acclaim came not from a few but from the majority of those present. ‘It shows that we have a dishrag in the chair.’ Again the audience broke into wild applause.

“‘This is a meeting of the board,’ interrupted Mayor Watters weakly as Boss Horgan stared at the table.

“‘But this did not hush the indignant Callaghan, who proceeded again to tell just what he thought of the greased railroading tactics of the board’s executive, ‘I would expect more of a gentleman than the attempted smothering of any member. We don’t own the town. The railroad does own the town as is evident here tonight. (More applause.)

“‘Ahern told us that we would be extended several privileges and he misrepresented the facts. The railroad always misrepresents facts. That is why we had to create a Johnson, whom they can’t rule (great applause again). We have some in Watsonville that they can’t rule and we will have more.’ Again the audience wildly cheered and applauded. The railroad has an agreement with the shippers and packers and they think that that extends to those patrons in the yard. Well, it doesn’t.’

“‘Mayor Watters had evidently borrowed some of Horgan’s composure by this time and he answered, ‘I have never asked for dictation and have never taken any. I have often asked for advice. You say that every citizen has not had a chance to speak. They have. All had their say. Both sides were heard and we met here to do business tonight. I claim that I called for the question.’ The mayor did not, however.

“‘It is plain smothering,’ continued Callaghan, ‘but you can’t smother me. I am for equal rights and we will get them (again the applause). I am thankful that your term will soon be over.’

“As the applause, which greeted Callaghan as he seated himself again, had subsided, Mayor Watters was heard to say, ‘So am I.’

“Mr. Charles E. Taylor next arose to speak and said: ‘It looks like a hopeless proposition, as the vote has already been taken. The only thing left that I can see is to convince the mayor not to sign it (laughter and applause). It seems most ridiculous to grant the Southern Pacific this valuable franchise for 50 years for nothing. I would not be surprised at other towns doing it, but I am at Watsonville. When the Southern Pacific first came through it assessed all the towns along the line. Watsonville did not feel like paying all of it and the Southern Pacific said it would start a city at Pajaro and makes the grass grow on the streets of Watsonville. But the Southern Pacific has its ear to the ground and it is taking note of what is doing in Watsonville now. Watsonville is not on the map of the southern Pacific. Several years after the railroad went through one had to go to Pajaro to take a train for Santa Cruz.’

“Mr. Taylor here related an incident of a Californian in New York, who wished to go to Watsonville. He was informed that there was no such place but he could get a ticket for Pajaro or Aptos.

“‘Here we are,’ continued Mr. Taylor, ‘giving them a 50 year franchise after all that has been done by them. The Southern Pacific should pay for that franchise. Walker street is a railroad street and is valuable to the railroad hence it should pay. But this is uphill business unless we can influence the mayor.’

“Here the mayor thought he would be cute and he did cut a pretty figure by waving the ordinance above his head and declaring twice, ‘I have already signed it, Mr. Taylor.’

“‘All right then, good-bye,’ said Mr. Taylor as he sank into his seat. The audience commenced to silently leave the room just as a motion to adjourn was passed. But several stopped at Callaghan’s seat to enthusiastically pat him on the back and to shake his hand and they were not all from the second ward either. The tension was lessened, the steamroller had passed on, the whistle of the Espee had been heard and answered by seven aldermen and one mayor and they sat silently in their seats as Callaghan responded to the enthusiastic acclaim of the many citizens...

Weeks and last night in Weeks' office the two men and Mateo Lettunich of this city held a conference relative to the construction of a new Mansion House in this city. This morning several rumors were afloat on the street to the effect that the hotel was to be started at once and that work would commence soon. In order to confirm or deny these rumors an effort was made by the 'Pajaronian' to locate either Mateo Lettunich or Martin Lettunich. The latter was located this afternoon and while he did not deny that the construction of the new hotel was thought of yet he did deny that any definite steps had been taken either way.

"It is believed that the Mansion House will soon be a thing of the past as far as the present building is concerned. That the Lettunich people intend to do something in regard to this structure is evident from the facts at hand. The plans for the new hotel at the Mansion House site are completed outside of a few changes."

EP; 19 Apr 1911; article: "NEW MANSION HOUSE TO BE ERECTED SOON. M. N. Lettunich's petition for a permit to move the present Mansion House, was granted by the board of aldermen last evening. It is proposed to move the building upon the ground now housing the Mansion House livery stable, Geo. W. Still, T. J. Horgan, the Watsonville Water company, and Jno. F. Kane. The old structure will be brought out flush to the sidewalk, and upon the vacant lot will be erected a new Mansion House, to which the old house will be annexed. The new portion of the hotel will contain 75 rooms with 27 baths, while the old house will have 48 rooms. The old house will be used by the help principally, except in emergencies when guests will be accommodated therein. All the lower portion of the two buildings will be the same, containing a number of stores, and probably a bank on the corner. This first story is to be in Utah white stone.

"The main entrance will be in the center of the new building facing Main street. A lobby 64 feet long will extend directly from the lobby leading to the dining room. This is to be under glass, as the building is to be in 'U' shape. The alleyway between Burland Bros. and the hotel will be left open and all trunks, provisions, etc. will be delivered in the rear. An electric elevator is to be provided, and all modern conveniences (including telephone) will be provided in every room.

"It is intended that the building which will cost over $130,000, will be a credit in every respect to the town. Italian marble will be liberally used while the lobby is to be in Spanish tiling. The cornice is to be in Spanish style. The columns in the front are to be carved, apple and strawberries being the motif.

"Mr. Lettunich states that it is the intention to rush the building to completion at once, so that it will be ready to receive guests at the next apple annual."

“Mr. Speers will be pleasantly remembered by our citizens as the minister who relieved Rev. Mr. Winning for a short time during the latter’s indisposition some two years ago.

“* * *There is one thing I want to write you about, and I wish for the sake of Watsonville and the future apple market of that section you would call attention to some facts I will write here:

“This London market is open to the world, and the whole earth is competing for the trade of the 8 million souls in and around this city.

“I made up my mind to have a pleasant evening recently in the church I was a member of, and gave a lantern lecture with many views of Santa Cruz county. Of course, I was willing to go to the limit to make it a success as it was in connection with a literary club. So I went down to Covent Garden where the fruit is sold and selected a box of the choicest Newtown Pippins I could get and paid 12 shillings (about $3) for them to a wholesale dealer, to whose address they were sent. These were to be given to our distinguished audience of about 100 people.

“When we opened the box there were so many inferior apples, also wormy ones, that I was ashamed. The top row was beautiful, of course. I took them to my own flat from the store, and have not done much bragging about Newtown Pippins since.

“I asked the dealer afterwards, down at the wholesale gardens, if he found all apples packed that way. He replied “No; the California fruit was no doubt the choicest, but was packed more dishonest than either the Oregon or Canadian fruit, and the peddlers already know this. But the California fruit will keep better than any others. Get after your packers for their own sake.””

“Supplementing the above: We were informed, the other day, by a Watsonville woman, that being over at a San Joaquin town, recently, she, passing a fruit store, asked for some apples. The dealer passed her for her purchase the worst lot of wormy, shriveled-up apples she had ever seen. She refused to take them, and asked where they came from. ‘Watsonville!’ On doubting this statement the dealer up-ended the box and thereon was pasted the label of one of our prominent packers. In answer to queries this dealer told the chagrined woman that it was almost impossible to get a decent box of apples from Watsonville; that our pack was dishonest—fair on top, bad beneath; and that he never purchased Watsonville apples if he could get Oregon or Colorado packs!

“Comment on the two instances above is unnecessary!”

These cities attended last year’s Apple Annual in splendid fashion and the league members thought it no more than right that the Watsonville people should reciprocate. Both Santa Cruz and Hollister are arranging gala celebrations of the nation’s birthday and the league will bend every effort to have them supported locally.

EP; 25 May 1911; article: “GET BUSY. T. F. Wohler, the gentleman who opened the dry goods store, The Fair, at 251 Main street, a few weeks ago, finding that the location was not suitable to attract the class of trade he desired to cater to has closed up the store, boxed up his stock, and is waiting to secure another location for which he is now negotiating further up on Main street.

“The action of Mr. Wohler possesses great significance for the property owners between Second and First streets. Unless they get a move on and take steps to improve that section of Main street, ere long they might just as well hand it over to the Japs. Upper Main street is steadily advancing, and were it not for the city plaza would before long become the business centre of town. Some of those old shacks between First and Second streets should be replaced with modern buildings, electroliers should grace the sidewalks, and as soon as the matter of the extension of Central avenue is settled—one way or another—a strong effort should be made to have the John T. Porter Co. improve the Hoffman House property. The burning down of the Hoffman House was a great calamity to that section of Main street. If the rest of the property-owners in that block showed the same enterprise and faith in Watsonville’s future that Steve Scurich, the owner of the Central hotel does, the block would be one of the busiest and finest blocks in town.”

EP; 25 May 1911; article: “Big Conference Last Night Results in Unanimous Arraignment of Filthy and Inefficient Water Supply Here. The present chemically filtered rotten filth and disease-breeding water furnished by the Watsonville water company and the inefficient, dangerous and cheap fire protection guaranteed by the same corporation received a bitter arraignment and a severe castigation...at the conference held with the water committee of the board of aldermen by the committee of 12 appointed...by Mayor Hall to investigate the poor water and fire service of the city of Watsonville. There was not one dissenting voice raised against the unanimous cry for ‘purer water and higher pressure at any cost,’ which slogan ran through the utterances of each and every speaker heard last night.

“It was a remarkable conference in several ways. Many different walks of life were represented at the conference...from the laboring class up to the professional ranks and all were united in the demand for decent service. Not one speaker even attempted to make excuses for the private corporation now furnishing chemically-cleaned filth for water and a weak fire pressure. The water company and its feelings in the matter were not considered. The matter of moment, which was of more vital importance than the feelings of a greedy, soulless corporation, was the protection of the lives of the people here from the disease ridden water and the protection from fire other than from present service. Unanimously the conference went on record as demanding a first-class water service here and the financial cost of the undertaking was cast aside as but of minor importance.

“Alderman P. A. Callaghan, chairman of the water committee of the city council, presided over the meeting in the absence of Mayor Hall and the following citizens were present: Aldermen B. A. Osborn, J. R. Uren, H. P. Kane, and Rev. D. F. Stafford, Dr. S. C. Rodgers, Otto D. Stoesser, F. P. Marinovich, Luke Scurich, Charles Rowe, Jas. I. King, A. N. Judd, Julius A. Schanbacher, J. A. Casady, Manfred Schwab, O. A. W. Shuchard, Otto Schuchard, Hugh W. Judd, J. M. Herbert, William DeHart, G. A. Morehead and J. D. Robinson. Of the above Messrs. King, Stoesser, Scurich, Morehead, Rodgers, Stafford, DeHart and Rowe were members of the water committee appointed by the mayor..."

W. Bridgewater were completely destroyed by fire early this morning as well as nearly all the contents of the three buildings. The flames were first noticed about 1:30 [a.m.] and the fire department responded immediately. But the fire had gained too much headway and the three buildings were doomed when the firemen arrived on the spot...The heavy fog, which fell like a drizzling rain, aided in keeping the flames from spreading.

"The fire had its origin in the packing house leased by the John Ivancovich company from Joseph Secondo, but how it had its origin is not known. The incendiary theory is as usual advanced..."

picnic at the popular resort yesterday and the event was also one of the most successful ever held at the beach and even in the valley as a whole. The Watsonville Railway & Navigation company operated cars hourly to the beach and the Pullmans were crowded and jammed with pleasure seekers all day long. The crowd was immense and to estimate the number would be a difficult undertaking. Two thousand people seems a reasonable approximation and there may have been more for it was certainly not less than that figure.

“The dance hall at the pavilion fairly sagged with terpsichorean enthusiasts and the number of couples on the floor never was larger in the history of the beach. Watsonville band furnished the music and everybody enjoyed the dancing from first to last and the final round of whirling pleasure found the crowd not yet ready to adjourn. The beach was thronged with people and the sand dunes, the pier, the neighboring hills and glens were black with people. All day long the crowd surged back and forth along the shore and were invigorated and refreshed by the sharp ocean breezes, which swept in across the waves and billows from the Pacific.

“The weather was the only disagreeable feature of the entire occasion. The brand of climate presented to the valley yesterday could hardly have been worse. Cutting breezes chilled the people through and through and a misty, high fog clung to the atmosphere with digged obstinacy. But the cold weather could not chill the warm enthusiasm of the crowd and all present tried to forget the clammy climate and have a jolly time.

“The members of Sokol lodge, the local Croatian society, deserve merited praise for the success of the event. The Watsonville Railway & Navigation company is also deserving of credit for its excellent car service and in fact everybody connected with the affair is to be mentioned in the general commendation. The Sokol lodge will do well to duplicate yesterday’s success next year.”

An employe of the Lettunich company, luckily was passing a stack of cleats on the outside of the building when he chanced to notice the flames. Three bundles of cleats were destroyed hence the damage was but nominal.

“The Lettunich company is now the fourth victim of an unknown fire. L. P. Cikuth, M. Grizich and John Ivanovich are the other losers and the losses in all will total over $13,000. The origin in each case has been mysterious and the entire proposition has a most suspicious aspect. It seems that the Austrian packers have been singled out in each case and the fire-bug theory is gaining more ground each day. What particular malice anyone bears towards the Austrians is not understood hence the mystery. Chief of Police Sylvester Whitsitt, who is a live booster for the excursion, addressed the Apple Annual directors last night on the matter and the Apple Annualites approved heartily of the scheme. He told of the three band plan, the special train and the other plans thought of in connection with the big excursion to the county seat. EP; 30 Jun 1911; article: "An Interesting Case Involving the Ownership of a Crop of Apples in San Miguel Canyon. A suit involving the ownership of a crop of apples growing in San Miguel canyon, the determination of which will be of considerable interest to landlords and tenants in the Pajaro and Prunedale sections, was filed in the superior court this afternoon by George W. Smith, a member of the legal firm of Hall & Smith, Watsonville. The plaintiffs are N. Lucich and John Ivancovich, Watsonville apple packers, and the defendants are John Doe Waring and C. F. Langley, the former being the tenant and the latter the owner of the land upon which the crop grew or is growing.

"A. M. Starkey was formerly the tenant, and during his tenancy he sold the crop to Lucich and Ivancovich. Later, it is said, Langley dispossessed him owing to some reason not stated. Waring next took possession of the land, and he and Langley refuse to deliver to Lucich and Ivancovich the apples they purchased from Starkey. Waring and Langley claimed the apples belong to and go with the land and the apple men claim the apples belong to them for the reason that they bought them and paid for them.

"Lucich and Ivancovich therefore are suing for the crop or the value of the same, $500.—Salinas Index."

L. Fisher of Aromas, whose husband last night swore to two complaints against the three in Judge Rohrback’s court at Pajaro. The three defendants will be arraigned this afternoon.

“The arrest of the Ivancovichs and Stetta are the result of a quarrel between the Fisher family and the defendants, which has been of long duration. The defendants have leased a portion of the Fisher place and ever since[,] the war has been on in full blast. Several months ago Mrs. Fisher and her son were accused by Stetta of battery but both were acquitted by jurys in Judge Rohrback’s court. “The meeting did not lack enthusiasm and spirit for every speaker boosted the coming show high to the skies and every citizen present promised to get into the fight and aid in making the Annual a successful affair. About every industry of importance in the valley was represented last night...”

“Those present were President O. D. Stoesser, Secretary C. G. Redman, Treasurer E. A. Hall, Directors Geo. W. Sill, J. A. Linscott, R. H. Goodchild, E. Steinhauer, J. H. Thompson, Luke Scurich and J. “John J. Morey, a member of the Apple Annual finance committee, submitted a scheme which seemed to suit everybody. This was to divide the work of the campaign between sub-committees, who would each represent one particular line of business. These committees would visit the various industries and ask them to contribute their pro rata of the whole and all the subcommittees will be under the jurisdiction of the parent association body. He believed the fruit interests should contribute the major portion of the needed sum.

“Supervisor Samuel C. Marcus...intimated that the county supervisors might aid the Apple Annual later...”

“Martin N. Lettunich favored the Morey scheme and he believed that the 51 packers who had not contributed to the fund last year, would pay their portion this year.

“James D. Rickard believed that the 1910 show had increased business here fully 60 per cent...”

“Geo. W. Byrd promised to boost and work and said the show was a great boost for the fruit industry. He did not believe, that the fruit industry should meet most of the expense for everybody had made profits.

“Director Luke Scurich said he always stood ready with cash and work. He said that money was not all but the earnest support of every citizen was also needed.

“Ernest H. Haack was of the opinion that some scheme should be derived this year whereby the finances could be put on a permanent basis. He believed that one show should carry the next as yearly contributions would be too big a drain on the people...”

“Director Elliott Steinhauer said this was an age of advertising and last year this valley had received over $10,000 in advertising on the outside. The Apple Annual advertises the apple and thus better prices and a bigger market are secured...”

“Treasurer E. A. Hall brought up the fact that the opening of the Panama Canal in 1915 meant wider markets and more opportunity and he believed that the valley should be ready for the event...”

EP; 13 Jul 1911; article: “Charles Fisher Place Is Battlefield for Myriad of Conflicting Stories. The battle of profanity, blows, lanterns and heated words on the Charles Fisher ranch near Prunedale assumed a fresh aspect late yesterday afternoon when Christian Clausen, a 16-year-old employee of the Fishers, was arrested by Constable Cano of Pajaro on a charge of displaying a loaded rifle and a threatening manner, which allegation was made by Nick Koprivica, who had been working on the ranch for only a few days. The boy was released upon payment of $100 bail by Mr. Fisher and the date of the trial will be set next Saturday when District Attorney F. W. Sargent is expected over from Salinas. Attorney George W. Smith of this city has been retained as special prosecutor.

“A report reached the Pajaronian office just about press time yesterday to the effect that a young boy was terrorizing the Ivancovich and Stetta families who have the Fisher place leased that he had fired several shots with a rifle, that Mrs. Ivancovich had fainted and was suffering seriously from shock and that the two families had been driven off the ranch. About an hour later Koprivica had sworn out a complaint for young Clausen’s arrest and the young man was arrested here in town...”

“Koprivica’s story in substance is as follows: The Clausen boy secured a hand mirror early in the afternoon and annoyed the Ivancovich and Stetta families and Koprivica by flashing the reflected light through the windows of the Ivancovich house. The inmates asked him to stop and the boy left them, entered the Fisher house and soon came out with a loaded rifle. He pointed the gun at the complainants, who shut the door in his face. The boy then shot the gun in the air several times and departed.

“But the Clausen boy tells an entirely different story. The Fishers had gone to Salinas on business and left him home alone. He worked all morning and up to 1 o’clock in the afternoon in the orchard. At 1 o’clock he came to the house, ate a light meal and hitched up the surrey team preparatory to coming to Watsonville to return with the Fishers. As he was leaving Ivancovich accosted him and wanted to know why he had insulted his wife. The boy says he did not insult Mrs. Ivancovich, did not see her all day and says he told the man so. The boy denied having ever used the gun or the mirror and he charges the Fisher lessees with battery of the most severe nature. His story of the beating, kicking, slapping and inhuman treatment he is alleged to have undergone from the Ivancovich and Stetta people is blood curdling. Mr. and Mrs. Fisher corroborate the lad’s story.

“Constable Cano visited the Fisher place later in the afternoon to secure evidence and he found a strange state of affairs. The Ivancovichs and Stettas refused to tell him anything, the looking glass, which is said to have been used, was found in the house in Mrs. Fisher’s room where she had left it in the morning, the rifle was loaded but had not been shot for many weeks and Mrs. Ivancovich, who was said to have fainted, was the picture of good health. The case is teeming with conflicting evidence and that ‘somebody lied’ is certainly evident.”

EP; 14 Jul 1911; article: “Prunedale Folks Will Have Their Hearing....Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ivancovich and John Stetta, the Prunedale residents who are accused of using vulgar, profane and indecent language in the presence of Mrs. Charles Fisher, their neighbor, had their arraignment this morning...before Judge Rohrback at Pajaro and their cases were set for hearing on Tuesday morning next at 10[,] and in the afternoon at 2 o'clock. Stetta will be heard first and the Ivancoviches will appear in the afternoon. None of the defendants were represented by counsel this morning nor were there any representatives of the prosecution present.

"Attorney Peter E. Zabala of Salinas, has been retained to represent the three defendants and a hard fight will likely be waged. The young Clausen boy, who was arrested a few days ago on a charge of terrorizing the Fisher place by shooting a gun in front of the Stettas, the Ivancoviches and the rest of the inhabitants of the place, was up before Judge Rohrback this afternoon but nothing was done in his case up to press time..."

"Attorney Geo. W. Smith of this city, who is the special prosecutor of the Clausen boy, says that he intends to show up the whole Fisher family and he charges the Fishers with trumping up charges against their lessees in order that other parties may secure the ranch. He claims that a local real estate agent has already received the first payment from the new lessees but the ranch cannot be turned over until the Stettas and the Ivancoviches vacate, which they refuse to do. Smith says the Fishers are therefore faking false charges in order to harass, annoy, pester and otherwise cause the tenants to pack up and leave, and he states that the published item that his clients are endeavoring to have Constable Cano removed is doing them an injustice."

EP; 14 Jul 1911; item: "They Plead Tomorrow. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ivancovich and John Stetta of Prunedale, who are accused by Charles Fisher of the vicinity of using vulgar and profane language in the presence of his wife, will appear before Judge Rohrback at Pajaro tomorrow morning to plead. Eureka Herald; 16 Jul 1911; article [2 photos]: "WILL DEVELOP FRUIT INDUSTRY IN HUMBOLDT. Among the many ex-Humboldters who have achieved success in other parts of the state are two former Arcata residents who have become noted in the apple industry at Watsonville, and who are said at this time to be contemplating investment in Humboldt property very shortly for the purpose of branching out in the same industry here—M. N. Lettunich and Mateo Lettunich.

"The firm of M. N. Lettunich & Company, growers, packers and shippers of fancy apples, was established at Watsonville in 1887, after the Lettunich brothers [sic they were 1st cousins once removed] had saved from their earnings in Humboldt sufficient to acquire property in the wonderful Pajaro valley.

"Having succeeded in amassing plenty of this world's goods, the Lettunich brothers [cousins] are now in a position to invest in Humboldt $100,000 for the development of the fruit industry of this county. It is reported that the railroad people are now encouraging them in thoughts of entering Humboldt to commence work in the fruitful line.

"At the present time M. N. Lettunich & Company employ during the fruit season 500 people, and the Lettunich brothers [cousins] are rated at $500,000. They have branch houses in San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Lettunich orchards sell for a season at a rate of $1200 per acre.

"About 30 years ago, Mateo and M. N. Lettunich, then boys of 15 and 18 years respectively [sic they were 7 years apart] came from their native land, far away Austria, to Arcata.

"Handicapped by a new language and new customs and unaided by anything except health, ability, honesty and a determination to be successful and useful citizens, they climbed to the top of the ladder. From proprietors of a small restaurant, located near where the Bank of Arcata now stands, to the apple kings and capitalists of these western states, has been their course and they have been partners ever since they came to America.

"After saving a few thousand dollars in Humboldt, they settled in Watsonville, situated in one of the most productive valleys in our state, 'The Pajaro Valley,' Santa Cruz county, where they are extensively engaged in the food business, maintaining their headquarters amid their orchards. They export to all the markets of the world and as far away as Norway, South Africa and Scotland.

"Mr. Lettunich [M. N.] was the first man to open and make known the Pajaro valley as an apple producing section. In 1887 he shipped the first carload to London, England, which was catalogued and sold at public auction, and the first carload to pass over the Rocky Mountains was shipped to Colorado in 1887. He is about 43 years of age [47] and is known as the apple king of this state.

"He was one of the prime movers in the erection of a mammoth pavilion that was constructed in Watsonville for the exhibition of California's apples, and his products won many medals. He and his brother [cousin] are holders of valuable properties in various cities of this state and are interested in many outside enterprises. In brief, they have become wealthy, progressive and useful citizens, constituting examples of industry and honesty that excite the admiration and emulation of many other men who desire to make themselves worthy of the respect of their fellow men.

“They are held in great respect by the people of the community in which they live, and their word is as good as their bond. An attorney from Eureka recently returned from a visit to Watsonville and he remarked to the writer that the ‘Lettunich boys have the same standing in Watsonville as Mr. Carson has in Eureka.’

“Mateo Lettunich married Miss Farlin, a very handsome and beautiful girl at Arcata, and although he suffered the loss of his wife, there are two boys, Nicholas and Louis, aged 16 and 14 years, and his household is under the able management of his mother-in-law and sister-in-law, who make his home very pleasant.

“Mr. Lettunich says that his chief object in life now is to do all that he can to make good and honorable men and citizens out of his sons. He has already sent his oldest boy on a tour of the world for the purpose of giving him a broad view of people and affairs and make him more able to understand and cope with problems which will confront him when he takes up his father’s work where his father has left it off.

“The inspiration of Mr. Lettunich’s success is probably expressed by him in these words: ‘When I was a young man I was one day sitting in the plaza in Arcata, when my attention was attracted to a number of working men passing by on their way to John Vance’s mills and logging camps, carrying their blankets on their backs, and I noticed that some of them were old and gray and I then resolved that I would so live and work that when I became old as many of these men were, I would not be obliged to carry my bed upon my back,’ and he has made good.

“‘Tell all the young men of my old home that the first principle in man or woman to be successful is honesty; and honesty combined with industry and perseverance and a thorough knowledge of some occupation will ensure at least reasonable success to any one of ordinary ability.’ As a final test he says ‘Young men should commence to save early in life; the first $1000 is the hardest; never live beyond your income; set aside something every month in a savings bank, if it is only a few dollars. Start out with at least a knowledge of the three R’s; though more education the better, and work hard. The orchardist who plants his trees, and then sits down to watch them grow, and calmly awaits the appearance of the buyer, will not succeed in Watsonville or any other place.’

“Mr. Lettunich was very much interested in Humboldt’s prosperity, and often asks after many of its citizens. His opinion is that the railroad will so develop Humboldt that it will become one of the leading fruit counties of our state.

“Mr. M. N. Lettunich resides in the select portion of the metropolis; is a man of similar characteristics as those of Mateo and his success has closely followed the rules of Mateo. They never have any disagreements. M. N. Lettunich attends to the selling of fruits, and watches the markets of the different countries; keeps many traveling men selling throughout the United States.

“His wife is a native of his own country and is a highly educated and beautiful woman, speaking several languages. They are blessed with a boy and a girl who are receiving every advantage in educational lines.”

“The deceased was a native of Konavle in Dalmatia and was aged 27 years, 9 months and 4 days. She had resided here for over six years and is survived by a husband and two children. During her residence here she won a host of friends with her charming personality and unassuming character and her death robs the community of a good woman. As a wife, mother and friend she was exemplary and there are many here left to mourn her death.”

EP; 25 Sep 1911; article: “ATTEMPTED MURDER CHARGE. As the result of a fight alleged to have taken place in the city plaza here last Saturday afternoon, one Bazo Maslach, a local fruit laborer, is in the city jail charged with assault with intent to commit murder and his alleged victim, Vido Kuraiza, is nursing a painful injury in the back of his head where he alleges that he was struck by a rock. The case will come up this afternoon before Judge Hawkins in the justice court when District Attorney Knight is expected over from Santa Cruz to examine into the facts of the case and to set a time for the preliminary hearing.

“The facts alleged in the case are that Maslach and Kuraiza, who are both young and who both work in the fruit here, were in the park late last Saturday afternoon and they had a serious quarrel over some matter.

“It is alleged that harsh words flew back and forth for quite a time until finally Maslach is alleged to have picked up a good-sized rock from the ground and to have struck Kuraiza a terrific blow behind the ear. The case promises to be quite exciting as both men are said to have witnesses, whose evidence is apt to be conflicting.”

EP; 26 Sep 1911; article: “STEPHEN SCURICH ARRESTED. Stephen Scurich, the well known fruit grower and shipper, was arrested by Constable Corr late yesterday on a charge of battery preferred by one Tony Tillich, a fruit packer, who alleged that Scurich had committed battery upon the latter’s person. Mr. Scurich appeared this morning before Judge Hawkins and entered a plea of not guilty and demanded a trial. He was represented by Attorney George W. Smith. The date of the trial will be set on Friday next when District Attorney Knight will be here.

“Tillich had a contract with Scurich to pick the latter’s fruit and had left [the] job to go to Hollister. His absence caused Scurich to hire another man and when Tillich returned he waxed wroth to think that another man had succeeded him. Tillich alleges that Scurich hit him twice on the face, but the defendant denies that he even touched the complainant.”

The reports of the religious census made here last Saturday by the representatives of the local churches have just been tabulated and the results are of an interesting nature. There were 43 men and women engaged in taking the census, which was made only within the limits of the city, and each of the committee members spent about 3 or 4 hours in gathering the statistics wanted...

“In all there were 1233 houses visited, which includes almost every residence in the city. The following memberships or preferences were reported, the figures being for families and not for individuals: Catholic, 315; Presbyterian, 202; Christian, 172; Methodist, 145; Episcopal, 76; no preferences, 66; Danish Lutheran, 23; miscellaneous creeds, 19; refused information, 11; not at home, 204.”

EP; 29 Sep 1911; article: “Bazo Maslach, the local fruit laborer, who is charged with slugging one Vido Kuraiza of this city in the back of the head with a rock wrapped in a handkerchief several nights ago in the plaza, was this afternoon ordered held to answer before the superior court by Justice Hawkins, bail being fixed at $500, which two of the defendant’s friends furnished. The preliminary hearing was held this afternoon in the justice court before Judge Hawkins. District Attorney B. K. Knight representing the prosecution and the defendant being represented by Attorney George W. Smith.

“The witnesses examined were Peter Maslach, father of the defendant, for the defense, and the following for the prosecution: Vido Kuraiza, Jack Bolarin [Balarin], Mitchell V. Lettunich, Miss Mabel Reed, Mrs. Thomas B. Lettunich and Constable J. H. Corr. The facts as related by the prosecution are as follows:

“Kuraiza, Bolarin, Lettunich and the two ladies had attended a show at the opera house and after the show had gathered to talk on the corner of the plaza opposite the theater. While they were there talking along comes Maslach and before he could be stopped he had struck

Kuraiza behind the ear with a rock tied up in a handkerchief. As he hit him Maslach said, 'Take that.' Maslach then walked away from the rest while the injured man was taken to the hospital after he had recovered from his daze following the blow.

"The defense put on no testimony beyond the fact that the defendant was not yet twenty years of age."

"State of California, Executive Office, Sacramento, Oct. 6, 1911. Stephen Scurich, Esq., Watsonville, Cal. My Dear Sir: —I am directed by Governor Johnson to convey to you his warmest thanks for the three splendid boxes of apples which arrived here yesterday. EP; 11 Oct 1911; article: "The grand industrial parade was held here this morning in the presence of several thousand people lining and packing the sidewalks and streets and the pageant of apple wagons was a success. This morning's parade, however, was not the equal of the industrial parade held here last year either in the quality of the lineup and but a score or less of the eighty packers of this city and valley were represented. The parade was two miles long and was a long time in passing but there was entirely too much sameness to the affair to make it interesting. To the stranger it was made interesting, however, by the fact that seldom are so many apple wagons seen at one time nor is it often that an insight into the immensity of the apple industry here can be had such as was afforded by the parade this morning. Apple wagons and apples are too common here to be exciting but to the visitor within our gates the sight of the parade this morning must have appealed successfully.

"There were 69 wagons in line and 19 known different brands of apples advertised to the crowds on the street. The parade was headed by Marshal P. J. Thompson and his aides, F. W. Ruppert, Robert Mann and Jess P. Neilson. Following these came Manager J. A. Linscott; Director Luke Scurich and J. D. Rickard on foot while the Oakland Croatian band came in behind these three footmen. Ahead of Stephen Scurich and party in an automobile was wheeled a baby carriage containing the pretty Kalich twins, the little vehicle being decorated with American flags and yellow crepe paper. A comic float put in by a party of local Austrians was also in this division. Behind the Scurich auto came a decorated carriage containing Dr. Goricar, the Austrian consul at San Francisco, and other distinguished Austrians of the metropolis.

"Then came the apple wagons along in single file and stretching for over two miles out onto the Santa Cruz road. There was the Golden Gate brand, the Bear brand, the Golden Eagle, Valley Rose, Golden Rule, Alaga Brothers, Lion, Justice, Ramona, El Rey, O-R, M.M., Sunblest and others that could not be learned. Among the packers and growers represented in line were Alaga Brothers, Stephen Scurich, United Apple Growers, M. L. Kalich, R. H. Goodchild, Frank Radovan, Otto Raphael, Battinich & Laptalo, G. W. Bird, Peter Mengol, Loma Fruit Company, Earl Fruit Company, Don Brahnsen, A. A. Scurich and F. P. Marinovich..."

the guest of Stephen Scurich. Mr. Goricar will remain here for several days and meet as many of his countrymen here as he can. We acknowledge the courtesy of a pleasant call from the gentleman accompanied by Mark Cosulich of 'Jadran'.

"That Croatian band that arrived last night and was heard today is the only one of its kind on the Pacific Coast and is certainly a credit to the nationality it represents. It can play good music and made quite a hit here.

"A feature of the week so far has been the small number of arrests of dangerous characters and drunks, who usually float into any town giving any kind of a show. Not only has Chief of Police Whitsitt provided extra police protection but two detectives from the San Francisco Police Department are here and they have already ousted several known crooks from the city.

"George Withrow has been appointed special officer by Mayor Jas. A. Hall for Apple Annual week and his beat includes the pavilion and the 'Lane'. This was a good step taken by Mayor Hall for the protection of young people and unescorted girls and ladies that would naturally gather at these places. Mayor Hall deserves a great deal of praise for this step taken by him for the protection of these people.

"The pie room at the pavilion is paying every day. The room is crowded almost every minute in the afternoon and evening with hungry visitors all anxious to sample the delicious pies made from Pajaro valley apples. The ladies in charge are willing and obliging as waitresses and good service is being given. The ladies in the pastry department cannot receive too much praise...

"There was only one fault to find and that was that the hall was too small to accommodate the crowd, which overflowed and packed the dance floor and flowed out into the corridors. The Croatian band of Oakland, the only band of its kind in the State, rendered the dance music in delightful fashion and the dance was enjoyable throughout." [see Fig. 4-14]

The appointment is an excellent one as Mr. Chagal, aside from his standing as a citizen, possesses peculiar qualifications for the position, inasmuch as he speaks several foreign languages fluently, and will be of great assistance to the chief in that respect. Mr. Chagal's ability is freely conceded in Stockton, his former home, where for 2 years he was superintendent of the courthouse grounds and engineer of the courthouse in that city. He points with pride to his record in that city where he received high endorsements from the press and public."

"The first train arrived at 9:10 o'clock this morning and each special was 10 minutes behind the other. The Santa Cruzans were met at the Watsonville depot by the Croatian band of Oakland, the local Moose band and the Watsonville City band and a larger number of the Apple Annual officials. The score out of a possible 1000 points was 938, an exceedingly high average and one that certainly reflects great credit upon the business of the winners. The Alaga boys won the sweepstakes prize last year as well and the fact that they have now won that coveted honor in two successive years is indeed worthy of the highest EP; 12 Oct 1911; article: "Frank Radovan merits hearty thanks for generously filling in vacancies on the display racks in the Apple Annual pavilion which would likely not otherwise have been filled. Several people who had signed up for space on the display racks, failing to place their exhibits, left the bare racks to the gaze of the visitors, until upon a call for aid from the Apple Annual directors, Mr. Radovan brought several hundred boxes of apples and placed them in the breach. Several other packers' offers of aid were appreciated as it shows the spirit held by the apple men toward the show.

"Because they declared that business was greatly hurt by the charging of admission at the main gate of the 'Lane,' the various concessions closed their doors yesterday, or rather their canvass flaps, and refused to do business unless there was no charge at the main gate, as a result entrance to the 'Lane' will be free to all hereafter..."

EP; 14 Oct 1911; article: "While we have all been enjoying the time of our lives this week and throwing dull care to the four winds that we might plunge into the maelstrom of pleasure around and about us we haven't forgotten those hard-working, zealous, unselfish men and women behind the big show, who have made all this fun possible for us and who have spent restless days and sleepless nights in order that we might have a jolly week of it. The thirteen Apple Annual directors really deserve more than a few feeble words of credit and praise for their endeavor, for words are but poor nourishment to an overworked energy. Those directors are all busy men of affairs here, they have each their private business interests to foster and they have families to think of, yet all these things have been temporarily abandoned and thrown aside for several weeks past and more especially in the past week in order that the Apple Annual be a success. They have spent their own money to further boost the show, they have been in consultation night after night until a late hour when their tired bodies were needing rest, they have neglected their private business to attend to the wants of the Apple Annual and all they are to receive is a bit of empty honor.

"Every Watsonville citizen should rejoice in the success of the Apple Annual and should rejoice that the directors have not labored in vain. The show has been unprecedented in every way anywhere in the State and to the hard-working Apple Annual directors is due the major credit. Our congratulations go out to these men. May they reap their reward as they deserve, our heartfelt appreciation of their efforts for Watsonville and its premier industry, the apple business, is theirs. Watsonville is proud of the work accomplished by the Board of Apple Annual Directors: Otto D. Stoesser, A. W. Cox, James A. Linscott, Edward A. Hall, Elliott Steinhauer, Henry C. Peckham, R. H. Goodchild, George W. Sill, J. E. Gardner, John H. Thompson, Luke Scurich, C. H. Rodgers and Mateo Lettunich.

"But we must not forget the faithful employees of the show, who by their efficiency have done much to make the show the success that it is. C. G. Redman, the secretary, has been a tireless worker for the show, Miss Anna M. Farlin, the assistant secretary, has been an earnest faithful worker at all times..."

The organization of such a band has long been discussed by the Slavonians here but no definite action was taken until last night. E. A. Ball was chosen director of the band and will conduct the new organization. His reputation as bandmaster is too well known here for he was the originator of the Lady Hussars, the Golden West Boys’ band and the Moose band. Nicholas Strazicich was elected president, Peter Secondo was made secretary and John Jagich was chosen as treasurer.

“The members of the new band are E. H. Strazicich, Joe Maskovich, J. Resetar, N. Scurich, J. Jagich, B. Radovich, J. Braica, J. P. Zar, B. Rosich, T. Frolich[?], T. M. Kussich [Kissich], M. EP; 25 Nov 1911; article: "OUR APPLE PACK. The recent agitation regarding the apple pack of this valley has created much discussion, and a large number of our packers are up in arms against the strictures passed upon them. They claim to be blameless in the matter; that the fault lies with the orchardists who do not take proper care of their orchards.

"In conversation yesterday with Messrs. Nick Alaga and Jas. Sheehy, both gentlemen took decided exceptions to the recent criticisms passed upon the packers of this valley. 'Quote me as saying,' said Mr. Sheehy, 'that the entire blame for any poor pack sent out of this valley lies with the orchardists, alone. The packer contracts for the apples in the orchard, the orchardist pockets his money and then lets the crop take care of itself. I can take anyone out through the valley and demonstrate the truth of this statement by showing the unkempt, uncared for condition of orchard after orchard. What can the packer do when he receives his crop worm-infested or showing the ravages of San Jose scale. His money has been paid over for the crop; he relied upon the honesty of the orchardist that the latter would look after the crop as was expected, and by spraying, and care, and attention, keep the crop free from insect infestation. The packer is up against it. It is either reject the crop, and suffer great expense in a law suit, or else do the best he can by care in sorting out the damaged apples, and endeavor to get his money back.'

"Mr Alaga was equally emphatic. He pointed out that there was no excuse for a poor pack leaving this valley if the orchardists did their duty and took proper care of their fruit trees. That this was not impossible was shown by the successful achievements of Mr. Alaga's firm in carrying off the big prizes at the two apple annual exhibitions with fruit grown in orchards under their personal care and inspection.

"There is no question but what the present agitation and 'roasting' of the apple pack of this valley by the Daily Register has, to a great extent, negated much of the good accomplished by our two recent Annual Annuals. We see the articles reprinted in other papers from all sections of the State, and the journals published in opposition apple-growing districts have eagerly seized them and pushed them along to the great discredit of this valley. As one packer expressed himself to us: 'After the hard work and expense we undertook, and the magnificent success achieved at the recent apple annual it is tough luck to have it all undone by a series of articles that give us a black eye, is calculated to destroy our markets, and render all our past advertising useless. There is certainly not much inducement, in treatment like this, to exhibit at any future apple annual. Why does not the blame be put where it rightfully belongs? If there are dishonest packers in our ranks why not single them out and hold them up to scorn? Why blacken the valley's industry, as a whole? There are good packs going out of this valley, and it is unjust to class us all as a lot of crooks!'

"The Pajaronian agrees with Messrs. Sheehy and Alaga's contentions. The orchardist is to blame. Years ago, in season and out, week in and week out, this paper preached the doctrine of a better pack, but endeavored to do its missionary work among the orchardists. 'Spray! Spray!' was our slogan, day after day, until its reiteration was most tiresome. Finally, mainly through this paper's efforts an entomologist was secured to teach our orchardists better methods. That conditions have improved over former years no one can deny. Voick has returned his salary over and over again in valuable pointers to our fruit-growers. The tendency is upward, but there is still room for improvement. More work must be done, better methods adopted, greater care exercised on growing crops. If our orchardists produce good clean fruit a first-class pack will go out of this valley—but not otherwise."

Thanksgiving Dinner

G. VUKONICH, Chef

EP; 29 Nov 1911; article: “Ed. Pajaronian: Relative to the Register’s criticism of article which appeared in the Pajaronian a few evenings ago which gave the correct and only solution of the manner in which we are to improve our apple pack, I desire to state that instead of the Pajaronian being disloyal to the community and slandering the apple packers I charge this slandering and disloyalty to the Register, and I am persuaded that nine-tenths of the packers and fruit growers of this community will bear me out.

“The Register should be ashamed of the articles which it has written relative to the fruit produced here and the packing and marketing of same. If it is not ashamed of these articles the community certainly is...

“It is quite true that at least 80% of the orchards are sold on the trees to the packers, and right here I want to say to you that the packers who purchased these orchards have no control over the orchard from the time the apples were picked the previous season until they purchased the fruit during the months of March and July. The majority of these orchards have not been properly pruned and three-fourths of them have not been winter sprayed, while at the same time a large percentage of them are covered with scale, and in addition to that the first summer spraying (which is the most effective of any) has been neglected, and usually by the time the packer gets hold of the orchard it is too late to give it a thorough summer spraying, as the eggs of the codlin moth have already been laid in the blossom end of the apple. It is impossible to destroy this egg after it is once laid in that particular spot of the apple, therefor whatever apples have been effected [sic] in that manner are entirely gone, but if the trees were sprayed at the proper time, there would be no fear of the codlin moth affecting the fruit, and I contend that when an orchardist grows fruit he should grow clean fruit or none. Right here is where the horticultural commissioners or inspectors should be appointed with full power to go into any man’s orchard and spray it at the proper time both winter and summer if he does not do it himself, and in addition to that destroy any trees that are badly affected with the San Jose scale. If they would pursue this course, and it is the only proper remedy, they will find that they will have no complaint to make of a dishonest pack going out of the city of Watsonville. Until they do this it is impossible to pack clean fruit out of here for the reason that fruit affected with codlin moth can be sorted over and looks to be and is apparently free from worms, but after it is packed, say one-half day, the worms develop, and by the time the food reaches its destination it is not fit for market. This is the reason I advocate the appointment of a horticultural commissioner or inspector to compel every orchardist to spray his fruit both winter and summer, and at the proper time. This agitation of appointing inspectors in the different packing houses during the packing season is not the proper course to pursue, and if you had 100 inspectors you could never have a clean pack until the fruit is brought in clean from the orchards to the packing houses.

“Among the best cared for orchards, and the cleanest fruit produced here, you will find have been leased for a term of years by the Slavonian packers among them some of the following and the lessees of same: The Misses Murphy’s Vega orchard, leased to Scurich & Gerinich; Henry Wiley’s orchard on the Salsipuedes road, leased to Stolich Bros.; the Cassin orchards, leased by the Pista Bros.; the Fred Hiscox orchard, leased by Antone Balich; the Tuttle orchard, leased by Peter Resetar; the Baldwin and Ollason orchard, leased by Novacovich & Stolich in the Amesti district; and the Martinelli orchard leased by Scurich Bros. Now if Mr. Haack or any of his friends, will go and inspect these orchards they will find them as well kept as any orchards in the United States, and the fruit produced from these orchards is as clean as it is possible to get it. I do not mean to say that these are the only well kept orchards in the valley, as there are several orchardists who take pride in taking care of their own orchards, and they are equally as well kept as these mentioned, but the reason for mentioning this is to contradict the article which appeared in the Register.

“We have spent thousands of dollars here in the last two years getting up our apple show, and the Register has reaped more financial benefit from it than any other individual firm here, and the articles which they have published have done more damage and have been more of a financial loss than all the money we have expended in getting up our apple shows. What would the daily Register and the directors of the Apple Annual do if the packers here refused to exhibit more apples? How would they conduct their show? If they continue to publish these articles slandering the packers and the community they are liable to have a very difficult time another year to get sufficient apples to make a decent exhibit. These articles have been to the majority of the people here slanderous instead of the purpose for which they claim they are intended, to improve the pack...

“The Register asks the question: ‘Are we going to lose ground by allowing the news to get out that we are going to do scientific thinning?’ In reply to this, it is impossible to do scientific thinning in 80% of the orchards here for the reason that the majority of them have not been sold to the packer until too late to properly thin them. Occasionally it is the case that apples should be thinned a month or six weeks earlier than when they are thinned for the reason that the majority of the orchardists do not thin or spray as that costs money but they are holding out for the highest price they can get, and when they sell their fruit they get the packer to do that.

“The buyers in all the large cities and towns in this State usually ask for a certain pack, and if there are any bad packers here they know them as well as we.

“The Register asks the question: ‘Shall we be looked upon with disfavor if we declare our intention to standardize our pack?’ What is the good of standardizing the pack until you first compel your orchardists to properly spray the fruit, so it can be delivered to the packing houses free from scale, fungus, and other insects? Even though they place an inspector in every individual packing house in this town, it will not improve conditions until they first start at the root of the evil, and remedy that by compelling the orchardist to take care of his fruit.

“They also mention that the purchaser here reserves the right to thin and spray the orchards. He does reserve the right to thin, but usually the owners of the orchards reserve the right to do the spraying, that is to say, he will spray the orchard a certain number of times during the season, but I want to say to you right here that the experience of the packers has been that the average orchardist does not care what he sprays with, or how he sprays as long as he goes through the performance. In other words he wants to do it as cheap as he possibly can...

“They also mention that when the packer buys there should be a clause in the contract that the fruit should meet the requirements of the inspector when it reaches the packing houses. Right here I want to say that there is not one grower in a thousand who would sign a contract of this kind.

“They say that the Register’s policy has been to boost the valley. I want to say that its knocks have injured it more through the slanderous and untruthful articles which they have published about the fruit packers and fruit industry of this valley...

Paj; 30 Nov 1911; article: “BOZO MASLACH GETS OUT OF TROUBLE EASY. Is Fined Only Fifty Dollars—Petition For Probation Carries Great Weight. Santa Cruz, Nov. 24— In the superior court this forenoon Bozo Maslach, the young Slavonian convicted of assaulting Vido Kuraica, with a rock in a handkerchief in Watsonville a short time ago was fined by Judge Smith the sum of $50, or to serve imprisonment in the county jail for 25 days. A numerously-signed petition, asking the court to admit Maslach to probation was presented to Judge Smith, and taking this into consideration, along with statements made by the District Attorney and Probation Officer, induced his honor to deal leniently with the young fellow.

“The sentence was imposed by Judge Smith after a careful consideration of the facts of the case. The defendant entered a plea of guilty to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, and at the same time, through his attorney, Geo. W. Smith, made a motion that he be released on probation. Judge Smith referred the matter to probation officer Williams, who recommended that a county jail sentence or fine be imposed, owing to the previous good character of the defendant. Judge Smith in passing sentence stated that he had gone over the matter very thoroughly, and that while the defendant perhaps didn’t realize the enormity of the offense he had committed, yet the act was a serious one, and merited some punishment by way of example; but that owing to the defendant's excellent reputation and youth the ends of justice would be best if subserved by imposing a fine. The fine was paid."

EP; 30 Dec 1911; article: "SALOON MEN ON THE CARPET LAST NIGHT. The very foundation of the Royal Arch seemingly rocked a bit last night while the Aldermen were in adjourned session for the purpose of granting the new retail liquor licenses for the coming year and the excitement predominant at the meeting was the highest for years in local municipal circles. But all of the applicants for 1912 licenses received permission to operate thirst bazaars again with one exception and that was K. Kitaje, the lower Main street Japanese. Two others, John Bosia and Ceschi & Petrinovich received their licenses conditionally, but it is understood that now no complaints will be made against these places.

"But some of the rest received bad scares and these scares left several white faces in the ranks of the saloon men, aroused the oratory of three attorneys, caused a bit of repartee among the board members, served up the ire of Mayor Hall and made the session a lively one for the room full of spectators. These other places that caused all the trouble were John Bottini, the White House, S. Hildreth, Frank Farlin and Stanley Sliter. These were all granted licenses in the end, but matters looked dubious for a time.

"In the first place Mayor Hall and the eight aldermen convened in the presence of one of the largest audiences ever in the city hall. Every owner of a saloon in town was present and the crowd packed the council room almost to suffocation, surged out into the stair hallway and standing room was at a premium. Mayor Hall opened the session by reading those sections of the liquor ordinance pertinent to the occasion. He then proceeded to read off the complaints against certain of the local saloons with recommendations as to the disposition of these cases. These cases and the charges made by the mayor were: John Bottini: roughhouse on many occasions and officers called to quell disturbances, frequent brawls, recommended no license to be given; K. Kitaje: arrested for operating saloon after hours and acquitted yet he broke the law, recommended no license be issued; John Bosia: roughhouse place, allowed gambling, allowed lewd women in place, recommended no license; White House: allowed gambling and roughhouse, recommended censure; Stanley Sliter: roughhouse place, allowed women of ill-fame in house, allowed other lewd characters in saloon, recommended no license; Ceschi & Petrinovich: allowed gambling and roughhouse, recommended no license; Frank Farlin, sold liquor to drunkards; Sol Hildreth, ran a roughhouse and sold liquor to drunkards; recommended censure in Farlin and Hildreth cases...

"...The licenses of the Mansion House, Andrew Schopp, E. E. Fritz, W. J. Heckard, Peterson & Leddy, Pajaro Valley Mercantile Company, Miller & Leddy, A. Faustino, and the City Grocery were granted...

"Miner & Jones were next given a license and then came the name of John Bosia. Attorney J. E. Gardner spoke in behalf of Bosia in the absence of the latter's attorney and he asked that Bosia be given further time to answer the charge. Gardner stated that Bosia was entirely ignorant of any charges to be made against his place and Gardner believed it only fair that Bosia be given an opportunity to defend himself. Alderman Horgan moved that the license be granted conditionally, a time be set for the hearing of the charges and that if they were proven then the license would be revoked...

"Next came the license of Ceschi & Petrinovich. Palmtag moved that the license be granted conditionally and that were charges proven the license could be revoked. Attorney Smith spoke for Ceschi and asked for time to disprove the charges and that the latter be in writing. Callaghan then asked Ceschi if he allowed gambling. Ceschi answered that he had not, that his trade was a quiet one and that he permitted no such work...

"Mayor Hall declared that personally he was friendly to Mr. Ceschi and to the rest of the saloon men present. He had no personal feeling in the matter, but it was his duty to bring out these charges. He had heard that there had been gambling in Ceschi's place and that one night there had been $300 on the table...Horgan moved that the license be granted, but conditionally...Horgan's motion was carried.

"M. S. Machado, J. P. Knudsen and the Central Grocery had no trouble landing their licenses...

"F. J. Bettencourt, S. Castro, A. Riboni, A. J. Mattos and S. Strazicich had no trouble getting their licenses...

"N. H. Lovering, R. Delholm, J. L. Costa, J. M. Rvason, Frank Farlin, John Jalevica [Jalovica], and Hrepich & Wells were granted licenses unanimously..."

EP; 5 Jan 1912; article: “ARTHUR ANDREWS IS GUILTY OF FORGERY. After working for weeks on a case and employing the assistance of such men as Theodore Kytka, the hand writing expert of San Francisco, Sheriff Trafton yesterday afternoon at 5 o’clock arrested Arthur Andrews, a well-known young man of this city, for forgery, and took him to the county jail at Santa Cruz, where he confessed his guilt. At the same time Andrews was arrested Nick Volich [Violich], who was arrested several months ago charged with passing forged checks, was released, the officers having determined he was innocent.

“The crimes of young Andrews are among the most sensational in the history of the county. So perfect were the forged signatures that one of the men whose signatures he signed actually told the sheriff and the district attorney that they were his own and it was only after being shown a defect in the plate used in printing the check and being closely questioned as to why he made out certain checks, that he realized they were not his own.

“Andrews admits having forged eight checks and securing $220 from them. Two were on Tony Kosich [Kissich] for $34.15 and $13.50, two on Nick Volich for $20 and $15, one on Perovich and Harvat [Horvat] for $17.50 and two on Nevakovich & Dregna [Novakovich & Derganc] for $23 and $20. The checks were all drawn on the local bank and were so perfect that even the bank officials thought them bona fide and would hardly believe their owners when they claimed them forged.

“Andrews has been employed as assistant bookkeeper for the Central Grocery company for some time past. He has always borne a good reputation and was considered a quiet, studious lad who was too good for such work as that committed. By many, however, he has never been considered a boy of strong mental power and was looked upon as a weakling.

“He is a graduate of a local high school and has held positions with R. P. Quinn, Alaga Brothers and the Independent Lumber Yard. He comes of a well-known family and one of the sad features of the affair is that he has been supporting his aged father ever since he finished school.

“In pleading guilty to the officers yesterday he threw himself on the mercy of the court and is now awaiting his sentence.

“The young man was arraigned before Justice Hawkins this morning and a complaint signed by Sheriff H. V. Trafton, charging him with forgery was issued. The prisoner waived time and the preliminary examination was held this morning. Under oath he admitted having forged the checks and was bound over to answer before the Superior Court. Andrews seems to want to have the matter settled as soon as possible and is willing to ‘take his medicine.’ As he is only 20 years of age, a question arises as to the punishment to be dealt him. His bonds are fixed at $500, but he did not try to secure any bondsmen.

EP; 20 Jan 1912; article: "CENTRAL GROCERY MUST PAY AMOUNTS. The Central Grocery Company has been notified by Sheriff Trafton that it is to make good the amounts of the checks forged by Arthur A. Andrews, the former assistant bookkeeper of the concern, who will be sentenced for the crime later in the month or early in February. The total amount that must be returned to the victims of the young forger is $188.20. Andrews confessed to forging ten checks in all. Three were drawn on Nick Violich, who was incarcerated first on suspicion of being the forger, and the amount due him from the Central Grocery Company is $51.55. The sum of $17.50 on one check is due Perovich & Horvat, the sum of $43 on two checks is coming to Novacovich & Dergance, $47.65 is due Tony Kissick on two checks, $17.50 is due N. Shocko & Sons on one check and $10 is due M. V. Pista on another check. All of these victims of Andrews are being paid back their money by the Central Grocery Company as fast as they present their claims.

"Andrews has confessed all to District Attorney Knight and Sheriff Trafton and his case will come up shortly for sentence. Whether or not he will be granted clemency is not known, but in view of the fact that the Central Grocery Company is 'stung' for the money that young Andrews made as the result of his frenzied finance, it is not believed that the officials of that concern will be recommending any mercy. The youngster showed such cleverness in his rascality that not much sympathy is shown towards him, although everyone feels bad for his grief-stricken relatives."

EP; 23 Jan 1912; article: "COSMOPOLITAN CROWD ENDORSES 3d ANNUAL. Good fellowship reigned supreme last night, a unanimity of good feeling locally reached its apex and the acme of boosting was reached last evening when 150, and over, stockholders and invited guests of the Watsonville Apple Annual association convened in annual session. Discord was shown the door and told in no mild terms to leave and forever remain outside the threshold..."

"It was one of the greatest cosmopolitan gatherings ever witnessed in this city. Every line of activity, every profession in the city, practically every field of labor in the community was represented in full force last night and that signally aided in the wonderful manifestation of good feeling that swept all else before it and made the crowd almost leap to its feet at intervals and threaten to bring down the roof on the heads of the cheering, applauding, boosting crowd of Apple Annual enthusiasts and Pajaro Valley citizens. There was the legal profession, the medical profession, the newspaper profession, the mercantile lines, the mechanical field, the fruit growing world, the fruit shipping lines, the fruit packing interests, the commission house field and all the rest of the human endeavors in common were represented there last night. They one and all were imbued with the same purpose, their thoughts as expressed publicly by several, ran through the same channel and their cheers were non-partisan, non-sectional and free from restraint..."

"First the members of the association and their guests convened in the auditorium to transact whatever business was to be done at the annual meeting of the association..."

"...Otto D. Stoesser, president of the Association, presided over the Auditorium meeting and Secretary C. G. Redman occupied the seat of the scribe as usual. It was reported upon roll-call that 3420 shares were represented at the meeting, a working majority, and then the business began to grind. The first important business of the evening was the report of Financial Secretary T. M. Wright, a complete, comprehensive compilation of figures showing that the Apple Annual Association is as far from bankruptcy as John D. Rockefeller or the trusts..."

"Next was the report of Treasurer E. A. Hall read by Secretary Redman. This report showed that there was a present balance in the treasury of $4744.71, a prosperous showing for an organization that last night observed its third birthday."

"Next came the feature of the business session, the election of the new board of directors of the association, and here the pentup enthusiasm of the crowd found a loophole of escape in cheers and deafening applause in recognition and due appreciation of the selfish [sic?] and unstinted efforts of the 1911 board to make the 1911 Apple Annual a success, no better testimonial of the worth of the old board needed than the last Apple Annual itself, the greatest exposition of the apple product ever known. When nominations were placed in order Stephen Scurich was on his feet with a motion that the 1911 board of directors be re-elected. There was a unanimous cry from all over the audience of 'second the motion,' and despite the effort of President Stoesser to stem the tide of appreciation that the audience felt for himself and his co-workers among the directors his objections as well as the objections of other directors were swept aside as so much chaff before the wind and the old board was returned to office amid huzzahs, hurrahs and thunderous applause from all parts of the house. Roscoe Taylor moved that a unanimous ballot be cast, which motion was also carried by storm, and when President Stoesser endeavored to express his personal thanks and the thanks of his fellow-directors he was drowned by the applause that arose unchecked from everywhere and made the scene a veritable bedlam of enthusiasm."

"The directors chosen were O. D. Stoesser, A. W. Cox, E. A. Hall, W. R. Porter, F. A. Hihn, J. E. Gardner, Geo. W. Sill, H. C. Peckham, J. H. Thompson, R. H. Goodchild, C. H. Rodgers, Mateo Lettunich, Luke Scurich, E. Steinhauser and J. A. Linscott..."

"...Then President Stoesser read his annual report, a voluminous but intensely interesting document, which the Pajaronian regrets that lack of space will not permit publication of..."

"After T. J. Horgan had moved that a rising vote of thanks be given the directors, which vote of thanks was readily and vociferously responded to, the gathering was declared adjourned in order that all might repair to the I.O.O.F. hall to partake of the good things to eat that Stephen Jarrett and his corp of able assistants had prepared there. As the diners filed into the hall they were greeted with sweet strains of music by the McEwen orchestra of five pieces, which gave a number of other excellent selections during the progress of the feast. The music added materially to the gayety of the occasion and was highly appreciated by all present...[It] was not long before the appetites of all had been appeased, before the last gulp of wine or coffee had washed down the last remaining mouthful and before the creeping hands of the clock neared what is known as a seasonable hour for mental food to be digested atop the physical victual served."

"Director J. E. Gardner had the honor of holding the rather thankless office of toastmaster, but he acquitted himself admirably throughout..."

"The first speaker introduced was Robert Newton Lynch of San Francisco, vice president of the California Development Board. He opened by congratulating the Apple Annual Association upon its enterprise and said that it had done much to wipe out sectionalism in the State, which was the keynote of the recent Development Board meeting at Los Angeles. Mr. Lynch styled the Apple Annual 'the greatest single contribution towards the development of California,' and he said the local show had challenged the attention not only of the State but of the entire nation. On behalf of the Development Board he then complimented the association officers for their united efforts, and he pledged the association more cordial support than it had in the past from that body."

"Mr. Lynch said there were a number of things bringing California to the front now. One of these was the opening of the Panama Canal and the other was the immigration here from all parts of the world. President Taft upon the occasion of his visit to San Francisco last October stated that California would be more profoundly af-fectured by the opening of the Panama Canal than any other State in the Union, and that therefore it was wise that San Francisco should have had the 1915 fair. Mr. Lynch then went on to state of his recent visit to the various countries of continental Europe to study the immigration question for the Development Board. He declared positively that the European immigration was good for California and that these people made the best farmers. When the canal was opened this tide of European immigration would flow into California. The Panama Canal in 1915 would call the attention of the world to the west and the San Francisco International Exposition would draw the attention of the world to California. But there would be a greater exposition in the State and the fair was a magnificent opportunity for the Pajaro valley to secure the right kind of new settlers. He said that the people here were training themselves through the Apple Annual to properly impress these visitors with the advantages of this section...

"Toastmaster Gardner next proceeded to publicly thank the Southern Pacific Company for its remarkable work in behalf of the Apple Annual and he then introduced Traffic Manager Charles S. Fee of that corporation. Mr. Fee said that the boosting done by the railroad towards the Apple Annual was but part of a boosting campaign that the Southern Pacific Company is carrying on throughout the world to draw the attention of the world to the West. He said the railroad was not going at this work in any brass band fashion but was steadily working at all times to boost the entire west and to develop all parts of this section of the United States. He said all other railroads were doing the same for their respective localities, but none on as extensive a scale as the Southern Pacific...He went on to declare then that not one thing in California had been more timely than the Apple Annual. He had visited many apple shows throughout the country, but none were in a class with the Apple Annual. He advised the people here that they could not do better than continue the annual apple show...

"Next on the program was Secretary A. A. Dennison of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce. He said at the outset that he liked to meet men that had made good and the men here had certainly made good for they had put Watsonville and the Pajaro valley on the map. He said that on behalf of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce he brought the approval and the congratulations of every member of that body. He spoke of the Apple Annual as a permanent asset of this locality and it demonstrated the possibility of the soil and the ability of California to maintain a population. He declared that the surface of California had barely been scratched as yet. This State, he remarked, had a population at present of only about 3,000,000, while it could easily support 30,000,000. In view of this fact he deemed it absurd for anybody to talk of sectionalism or jealousy. He went on to say that the cities looked for their greater development to the country. He said to get together was a good policy, but that was not all, for the people should grow together. 'Boost for California, there is room for millions more,' was his slogan...

"Alf. Kelly, the genial commission man of the metropolis of San Francisco, was next called upon and he delivered an address that was fervently heart and soul for this valley. He said he had visited many apple shows in the West but none could surpass the Apple Annual. In other places he had seen two or three nice apples on a plate while here he saw carload after carload. He said that the future of this valley had a great magnitude and the Apple Annual had certainly served its purpose. Before it was started this valley was unknown while today it is known all over the nation. He said that lands that are selling here for $500 to $700 per acre and always sure to produce a crop each year were selling in the northwest for from $1500 to $2000 per acre, and there they were never sure of a crop. Here in the Pajaro valley there had never been a failure. He challenged any country in the union to make a similar record. He declared that the people here did not themselves know the possibilities of their own valley and did not realize the future that was before them. 'The day is coming when the Pajaro valley will be the Paradise of America.'...

"Then came the momentous question of whether or not a 1912 Apple Annual should be held. Toastmaster Gardner said that he wanted an expression of opinion, and a frank expression at that, from every line of business represented...He said the Association must have financial assistance this year again and it was for the people to decide what the directors should do. The general opinion of those present was that the growers should contribute mostly to the finances of the show. They were the ones more directly interested than anyone else, they made the most out of the work of the Apple Annual in the end, and it seemed to be generally the idea last night that the growers should bear the burden of the finances this year and hereafter. So said some of the speakers and so thought most of the rest present...

"State Senator J. B. Holohan followed...with a short but pithy talk. He expressed his appreciation at the presence of so many visitors from the outside and he praised the directors for their unselfish work in behalf of the community. He said it would be the height of nonsense to stop now and not give another Apple Annual. He advised above all things that the growers and shippers here unite in sending out a good fruit pack with the proper labels and not send out an inferior pack with a first-class label.

"George W. Bird said he was personally in favor of another Apple Annual. He said that this year there should be less talk and more work and he urged the orchardists to contribute largely to the show instead of the packers as heretofore. He declared that the growers should get together and make the show greater than ever this year.

"Iowa A. Tuttle said that individually he was in favor of holding another show and that he would pay his share of the cost.

“Steven Scurich thought the growers should contribute more than the packers because they were more directly benefited than were the latter. He favored better picking and packing methods here unless the people here wanted competing districts to outclass this valley...”

“George W. Smith made a witty speech of his experiences as manager of ‘The Lane,’ during the recent show but he would undergo the same torture again for the good of the cause if he had to...”

“T. E. Shoemaker said he was heartily in favor of another show and he said these shows should be held as long as there were apples grown here...”

“With a few words of good cheer, felicitation and general congratulation from Toastmaster Gardner the annual session of the members of the Apple Annual association closed and went down in history as the greatest get-together meeting ever held here and one that will long linger in the minds of each and every man present.”

The sum of five dollars and the price of a new hat turned the trick in the end but the judicial decorum was not adjusted until late in the afternoon. Bart came in town breathless, moneyless and hatless with a tale of woe a foot long. He claimed that he had contracted with Resetar to clear some land out in the valley and that if the contract, which was for $10 proved too steep for Bart the latter was to receive $1.50 per day. Bart claimed that when he came to get his money he was not only turned down by Resetar but was kicked off the ranch without any hat. He wanted justice.

"He told the judge and Corr in boasting tones that if he could not get justice from them he would have the German consul in San Francisco bring all the pressure of the German nation to bear to see that he got what was coming to him and also that he had thousands of dollars to spend in the courts in order to get his $10. What he was howling about was the principle although his seedy appearance made things look as if the $10 would have accomplished more good than all the principle he was after. Anyhow Judge Hawkins issued the warrant, Resetar was arrested by Corr and finally Resetar agreed to pay $5 to Bart and also buy him a new hat. Thus endeth what might have been an international dispute.”

Kalich & Co. and others, but which has come down to a case against the Coast Counties Light & Power Co. alone, the other defendants having been eliminated, has occupied the attention of the jury in the Superior court the past two days.

"The defendants rested their case Tuesday after several witnesses had been examined during the two days including the plaintiff, Julius Schanbacher, Peter Barjacich and Robert L. Cardiff, the latter giving expert testimony.

"After a short morning session on a stipulation made by the attorneys of both sides, the jury was given into the keeping of Deputy Sheriff Enoch Alzina, and was driven to the ranch of Eva E. Rowe, near Pajaro, where they could review the tree and the electric wire running through it, where the plaintiff alleges the accident took place.

"The jury were instructed that they could have their liberty as soon as they had reviewed the scene, but were requested to appear in court at 10 o'clock this morning for the continuance of the trial. — Santa Cruz Sentinel."

EP; 16 Mar 1912; article: "WILD SHOOTING AT THE DEPOT TODAY. The vicinity of Frank Farlin's saloon on Walker street nearly opposite the Southern Pacific depot was the scene of a near riot this morning...when Charles Wittner in attempting to kill a dog owned by Farlin shot four shots wildly and nearly killed an innocent bystander, over a dozen others in the group being also endangered by the wild shooting of Wittner. The shooting was done with a revolver and was unexpected, Wittner coming around the corner into Walker street from Third street and commencing his firing without giving those near the dog an opportunity to get to a place of safety.

"Wittner claimed that the dog, which was a common fox terrier and formerly the property of the late Mitchell Kalich and cared for by Frank Farlin, had taken several bites out of his leg three days ago and he wanted revenge. The dog was quietly standing in the gutter in front of the saloon while over a dozen men were standing on the sidewalk just a few feet away. Wittner and three boys came around the corner without any warning and stepping up in front of the men, Wittner aimed at the dog and the men's feet and fired once. The bullet went wild and missed one of the men by less than two feet, the bullet whizzing by several others and embedding itself in the ground a few feet behind the men on the side of the saloon. The dog started to run with Wittner after it. The dog ran into an alley owned by Farlin alongside the saloon and Wittner fired again. Just as Frank Farlin was about to come around the corner from the rear into the alley to learn why the shooting was being done the bullet whizzed a few feet ahead of him. The dog ran into the rear and came out in F. P. Krough's lot on the corner of Walker and Third streets. Here Wittner shot twice again but missed the dog each time. Wittner then left for uptown.

"Chief of Police Whitsitt was on the spot a few minutes later but Farlin would not have Wittner arrested hence nothing was done. It is possible, however, that Wittner may be arrested for shooting firearms promiscuously within the city limits and for carrying a gun without a permit."

EP; 18 Mar 1912; article: "Claims He Did Not Endanger Anybody by His Shooting. Mr. Charles H. Wittner has a grievance, inasmuch as he claims that the published items regarding his shooting at Frank Farlin's dog, on last Saturday were erroneous, and calculated to do him an injustice. His grievance takes the form of a written account, the purport of which is to show that he was bit by a dog reported to belong to Mr. Farlin. Upon inquiry Mr. Farlin disclaimed the ownership of the dog (although now it appears it did belong to him) and said the dog merely stopped around his place. Mr. Wittner demanded of Farlin that he either kill the dog, or else let him (Wittner) kill the animal, and Farlin gave him permission to kill the dog.

"Mr. Wittner claims that he endangered no people in his shooting either out in the street...or in the vacant alley, as the dog was out in the street when the first shot was fired with no buildings or persons beyond the animal.

"He claims that the dog richly deserves death, having bitten a number of other people viz: Sidney Allender, Geo. Demovich [prob. Dujmovich], Chris Rilovich, and Philip Nicholas.

"The dog was shot and killed and thrown in the river this morning by Wittner. Thus endeth the whole doggone business."

Voivodich were destroyed by fire early yesterday morning, and the fire has all the indications of being of an incendiary origin. The fire was discovered and the alarm turned in by Mr. Voivodich himself, who stated that when he first saw the blaze his packing house was a mass of flames. The firemen came to the spot promptly as usual and but for the fact that the firemen performed heroic work and that the buildings were constructed of redwood the fire might have been much more disastrous. The blaze leaped across an alley to the A. Balich packing house and to the packing house of N. Ducich nearby, but neither of these latter two structures were badly damaged.

"The Voivodich packing house was almost completely destroyed as was the barn in the rear and the total loss is estimated at $1100, which is nearly all covered by insurance. One horse in the barn was burned as were also a large number of box shooks in the yard. The total loss above applies to the property of Voivodich, but Secondo is unable to estimate the loss to his buildings.

"That the fire is of an incendiary origin is practically a certainty as all indications point that way. The firebrand is not known and no clues can be found that would reveal his identity. The police are working on the case, however, but as there have been other fires here of incendiary origin without any trace found of the firebrands there is but little hope that any arrests will follow yesterday's fire."

Deduct the cost of freight, cold storage and charges for selling in Liverpool, and you will find there is not much left for the packer.

"Why such apples should be shipped to England is best known to the parties concerned. If they had known their business as to the actual requirements of the England market, they would never have shipped such goods to England. On the other hand, we would like to tell your growers through yourselves that the sooner they stop growing Spitzenburgs and Red Pearmains in the neighborhood of Watsonville, the more profitable the apple business will be for them, because neither of these sorts should be grown in your districts, and anyone growing these sorts, (if they would take my advice) should cut back these trees and regraft them to better paying sorts. EP; 5 Apr 1912; article: "A New Addition to the Town to Be Put on the Market. The Farm & Forest Realty Co. again report the sale of the Waters' tract to L. P. Cikuth.

They sold it last fall to Mr. R. W. Eaton and have now sold it again at a substantial advance. This splendid property is situated partly inside the city limits, having a frontage on East Lake avenue, Madison street, and Fifth street and Callahan street run up to the property.

"We are informed that the Farm & Forest Realty company have secured the exclusive agency for selling a portion of this property in lots and propose to make it one of the finest residential districts in the city. Callahan street or Palm ave., as it is now called, is considered one of the most fashionable streets in Watsonville and the home of Mayor James A. Hall, Prof. T. S. MacQuiddy, W. H. White, F. W. Biebrach, Elliott Steinhauser, Hammond Weeks, Henry Crowley and others are in the block adjoining the Waters' tract.

"We understand that it will be subdivided immediately and anyone desiring choice locations in this subdivision can make reservations now, and as this property will be in much demand and as only a limited number of lots will be put on the market, it will doubtless be sold in a very short time. All deeds to the lots will have building restrictions, providing that no packing houses or driers can be erected on the lots and there will be a minimum limit to the cost of the residences. This will insure it being one of the best residential districts in Watsonville.

"Mr. Cikuth is to be commended for his business acumen and foresight in picking up one of the best pieces of property in the Pajaro Valley. The Farm & Forest Realty Company have shown this property to some of the foremost fruit growers of the northwest and they have pronounced it the best buy in the Pajaro Valley. The following letter from one of the prominent Oregon apple growers is an evidence of the value of this property.

"Farm & Forest Realty Co., Watsonville, Cal.: Gentlemen—I wish to thank you for the courteous treatment received from you while in Watsonville, and especially for the sight-seeing trip you gave us when you took us up to and through the Corralitos valley. We arrived home safely and found very favorable weather for pruning in our orchards.

"In all my trip south the past winter the thing that appealed to me the strongest as an investment lies in Watsonville. First Mr. Cikuth was offered $1500 per acre and he refused this offer. Then he was asked to place a price on his land, which he refused to do. Finally he was asked if you would accept $1800 per acre and this was also turned down. Cikuth has a valuable piece of property in the Waters tract and when he refuses an increase of $550 per acre for 15 acres it shows that he realizes what a good buy he made."

It shows a girl standing on a hilltop under an apple tree, one arm supporting a basket of apples and the other arm stretched over the valley beneath, which is drawn from a photograph of the Pajaro Valley near the hills. EP; 25 May 1912; article: "CROATIAN TROUBLES BOTHERING AUSTRIA. The suspension of the constitution in Croatia and the rigorous repressive measures inaugurated there by the Austrian government, has had the usual contrary effect of adding to the unrest, agitation and discontent of the Croatians, instead of whipping them into a more obedient frame of mind. The Croatians insist that they were strictly within their personal constitutional rights in giving vent to their dissatisfaction with the Imperial government out of which grew the action which resulted in the suspension of the constitution and inaugurating a military regime. The restlessness in Croatia threatens to spread to other parts of the empire which may but intensify the already precarious situation that confronts the so-called 'dual monarchy' of Austria-Hungary."

"Emperor Franz Joseph is having a difficult time in his old days maintaining his imperial authority among the 26 nationalities that make up the 'dual monarchy.' Even his alleged threat to abdicate has failed to placate Hungary. Three minister-presidents have so far failed to bring about a settlement of the difficulties between the two countries. The principal bone of contention is the insistence of Hungary that in order to call out the Hungarian reserve, which in a measure corresponds to the American National Guard, the emperor of Austria who also is king of Hungary, must have the consent of the Hungarian parliament. Emperor Franz Joseph declares that would be taking him from one of his royal prerogatives as king and insists upon his right to call out the reserve regardless of the wishes of the representatives of the Hungarian people."

"Aside from the fact that the emperor of Austria is king of Hungary, that the two countries have a common minister of war and that Austria represents Hungary in all foreign affairs, Hungary has its own district government, cabinet and parliament. The minister-president, appointed by the emperor of Austria, is the link between the Hungarian and Austrian governments.

“With a sharp increase in the army and navy of Germany, it has been intimated to Austria, that as a member of the Triple Alliance, it ought to follow suit and strengthen its military forces. This has been another question over which Austria and Hungary have been unable to come to an agreement.

“The newly appointed Hungarian minister-president, von Lukacs, has rebuilt the Hungarian cabinet and has made some progress in smoothing out the differences between the governments in Budapest and Vienna. The Kossuth Party or, as they are fond of being called the ‘Kossuth Patriots,’ have dreams of Hungary again becoming a kingdom quite independent of Austria. The Vienna press, on the other hand, point out that the moment Hungary separates from Austria, it becomes nothing but a ‘semi-independent Balkan State.’”

EP; 12 Jun 1912; article: “Aldermen...Refuse Application for Spur Track from Fourth Street to Slough. By a vote of 5 to 3 on two motions...the members of the board of aldermen knocked the Walker street franchise to smithereens despite all the eloquence and pressure that was brought to bear by the standing of the petitioners in the community, by the oratory of Attorney George P. Burke for the petitioners and despite the assertion of the morning Register several months ago that the aldermen decided to push through the franchise for the industry spur on Upper Walker. It was a hot fight while it lasted... and there is no doubt but what it left bitterness rankling in some hearts.

“The Walker street matter was first opened by Alderman Kane, who reported from the ordinance committee that it had received the suggested ordinance submitted by Attorney R. H. Hudson for the petitioners and could not recommend any action thereon. Then came a petition from the residents of the San Andreas district and others in the western section of the valley protesting against the franchise and asking that it not be granted. This petition brought out the facts that Walker street was the main route of travel for the farmers and other residents of that section and that the railroad on Walker street would be an injury and detriment to their traffic on that street. The ordinance was then read by the city clerk in its entirety and without any debate or argument that matter was brought to a vote of the board. Horgan moved that the ordinance pass its first reading and Freiermuth seconded the motion. Those that voted in favor of the ordinance and for the track on Walker street were Freiermuth, Horgan and Palmtag. Those voting against it were Callaghan, Kane, King, Osborn and Uren.

“Alderman Kane then moved that Geo. Novacovich be granted a permit to build a spur track on Walker street to his property on that street. Horgan arose to debate this motion and declared that it would be a waste of time to pass that motion as it would do the petitioners no good. He said it would give the petitioners no understanding as to how long the track would be allowed on the street and he would not vote for the motion. Then Attorney George P. Burke, attorney for the petitioners, arose to make the speech of the evening. Burke said he was not speaking as an individual and not as an attorney and he made a lengthy impassioned speech that fairly bristled with fiery eloquence. He said he was astonished that the ordinance had not passed and had received the consideration that it had. He declared that there was no reason why the application should not be granted and there was no justification for the action of the board. He called attention to the fact that the only petition read against the franchise was signed by a number of farmers, who were non-residents of the city and who paid no taxes into the city treasury. He said that the men presenting the application for the track needed the spur track. He declared that the board had not treated the petitioners fairly by laying the matter on the table and voting it down without advancing a reason why such action was taken. He said the petitioners deserved to know at least why the application had not been granted.

“Attorney Burke then entered into an extended eulogy of the Austrian race here in this city. He brought out the fact that without the assistance of the Slavonians here there would be no occasion for the spur nor would there be any occasion for the packing houses here. He said the Slavonians were today paying taxes that entitled them to some consideration and more respect than had been showed them. He remarked that the Southern Pacific was not before the board now and that when the other franchise on Lower Walker was before the board Attorney Gardner, who now represented the Hihn-Hammond company and other opponents of the franchise, was advancing the same arguments for the tracks that he (Burke) was now bringing out. Mr. Burke wanted to know where this city would be without the apple industry and where would the apple industry be were it not for the Slavonians. Burke called attention to the fact that Walker street is the center today of the apple industry. Yet the board in the estimation of Mr. Burke had thrown down these people without giving one reason for so doing. He demanded a public announcement of the reasons why the petitioners had been refused the application.

“Attorney Gardner arose to correct Mr. Burke by saying that he had always opposed the applications for tracks on the Walker street. He called the attention of Mr. Burke to the fact that he had represented the Hihn-Hammond company on both occasions and had always bitterly fought the franchise applications. Mr. Burke acknowledged the slip of the tongue.

“Alderman Callaghan said that he did not want any man in this city to misunderstand him. He had no intention of discriminating between races and all were good citizens in his estimation whether Slavonians or anything else. But he was on the same side, he said, now that he had been on the lower Walker street matter. He was against giving away franchises for nothing when the city could receive a sum of money for the same and he called attention to the fact that the city could have received at least $50,000 for that grant. He favored relief on upper

Walker street for the packers but did not favor a 50-year franchise. He also stated that he was in favor of an industrial spur on Walker street provided it was under city supervision and city control for no longer term than 20 years.

“Attorney E. J. Kelly, representing the petitioners of the San Andreas district, said that there were two objections to the spur track on Walker street. There was danger to the teams from locomotives and cars and also the tracks made hard hauling for the wagons passing over them.

“Attorney Burke spoke again and said that there would be no harm if the tracks only went to Ford street. Attorney Kelly called attention to the fact that there would be danger as the depot was the objective point. He said that while he had high regard for the Slavonians yet they were entitled to no more consideration than the farmers. He stated that if anyone was to receive consideration the farmers should have it as they were the ones back of the community and they contributed as much if not more than anyone else.

“Attorney Burke answered this argument in another fiery talk and said that the apple industry here was but in its infancy. He said the petitioners would be fools therefore to accept a 20 year franchise.

“Stephen Scurich said he owned property on Sixth and Ford streets and he was in favor of the track on Walker street. He called attention to the fact that Lower Walker street was one of the best streets in the city since the railroad had macadamized it and that Upper Walker street would be the same.

“Alderman King said he did not want the petitioners to understand that he was against the ordinance because some of them were Slavonians for some of these were his best friends. He did not care whether a man was a Slavonian, an Irishman or German but he was against a 50 year franchise and furthermore he did not favor running the spur to the slough. Besides he thought Walker street too narrow for a railroad track.

“Alderman Kane thought the matter could be adjusted and said he was perfectly willing to give the petitioners another hearing. Alderman Horgan then brought the matter to a crisis again by moving for a reconsideration of the former vote. This motion was seconded by Freiermuth.

“Uren said he was not in favor of a 50 year franchise although he favored industry spurs on Walker street and he wanted it understood that he, too, had the highest respect and regard for the Slavonians. Callaghan again argued that he did not favor giving away a franchise that would exclude competing lines over its route. Osborn said that it was not a question of race as insinuated by Attorney Burke. All were American citizens and one race was as good as the other and he was against the ordinance because he did not favor giving any steam railroad the right of way over a city street. He said it was useless to reconsider the matter and he could not be intimidated or encouraged to vote for anything against his conscience.

“Mr. Stephen Scurich said there was no reason why his race should be classed as Slavonians when all were law abiding citizens, who were trying to do the right thing and who should be punished if they did not.

“Then came the vote on reconsidering the question. The same vote was cast as on the first occasion...Osborn said the board wanted to do the right thing by all the people and he suggested that an informal meeting be held some night soon when all interested parties should be present to informally discuss the matter. It was the sense of the board that such a meeting be held and it was decided that next Friday night would be the meeting night...”

Kripp of Los Angeles is in the county jail at Salinas and Mrs. John Roncovich [Roncovich] and child of this city are suffering from serious and painful bruises as a result of the collision that occurred late yesterday afternoon on the San Juan road near Brooklyn between an automobile driven by the prisoner and the buggy occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Roncovich and their child and John Mortizia, a cousin of Mr. Mortizia of this city. After the collision, which almost wrecked the buggy and threw the occupants out in the road, the automobilist speeded his car away, and was arrested last night in San Juan by Constable Zanetta. In default of $200 cash bail or $500 bond, which amounts were fixed by Judge Rohrback of Pajaro last night, the automobile driver and a lady friend, who was with him, were both locked up in the county jail at Salinas.

"Mr. and Mrs. Roncovich, their child and Mr. Mortizia were driving into Watsonville on the San Juan road from their ranch when the automobile came up from behind the vehicle and without warning crashed into the rear of the rig. The rear wheels were wrecked and the buggy was overturned, the occupants being thrown heavily into the road. Instead of stopping the automobilist kept on going at even a faster clip and was soon out of sight. The number of his machine, however, was caught as was also a fair description of the two in the car and Constable Cano notified the officers in all directions to watch out for the pair. Later a message was received from San Juan to the effect that they had been arrested there. Undersheriff Davis and Deputy Sheriff Nesbitt took the couple to Salinas and they are in the jail there today with charges of non-assistance to injured persons against them.

"Mrs. Roncovich and her child were seriously and painfully bruised (Mrs. Roncovich severely injured in the head) and the other occupants of the buggy badly shaken up. The automobilists will be brought over for trial in a day or so before Judge Rohrback.

"We learn that after the crash a demand was made upon the autoists to accompany the injured parties back to town and settle the damages. The man was willing to do so, but his female companion urged him to 'beat it' which he proceeded to do."

EP; 15 Jun 1912; article: "INFORMAL SESSION TO DISCUSS SPURS. Nearly twoscore men and women citizens appeared...at the informal session at the city hall to discuss the advisability of constructing a spur track on upper Walker street from Third street to the western city limits or even to Ford street and the session was controlled over 3 to 1 by the opponents of the spur. Alderman P. A. Callaghan called the meeting to order and briefly outlined the object of the session...

"Callaghan called first for those to speak that wanted the spur and after a long wait there was no one in the room that seemed willing to talk. Then Callaghan called for those that were against the spur and after a long wait there was still no argument forthcoming. Seeing that those present were evidently a bit bashful to talk Callaghan took the liberty to ask certain ones present for their views and Luke Scurich was the first one called. Mr. Scurich said the packers were entitled to a spur on Walker street as it would beautify the town to have the packing houses removed from the residence section to Walker street. Speaking for himself he said he would move his packing house onto Walker street if a spur was built as would all the rest uptown. He called attention to the argument that Walker street is the only street for packing houses as the lower end of the street is already all built up with packing houses and so would the upper end if the spur was put in. He asked for a square deal in the matter.

"Julius Schanbacher said he represented his mother, Mrs. F. Kuchnis, who was one of the largest individual property owners on upper Walker and who favored the spur. He said that the property was worth nothing now as residence property as dryers and packing houses were being built on every side of the residence and the business interests were moving that way. Walker street was the only street for these interests in his estimation and unless the spur was built it would be no more advantageous for packing houses than for residences. He could see no reason why the spur application was not granted.

"Mr. Dickson of the San Andreas said that if the spur was built to the city limits it would be crowding the country people hard.

"Attorney E. J. Kelly made a strong plea for the farmers of the western end of the valley and called attention to three strong arguments against the granting of the spur. One of these was the danger to teams from having railroad trains on the street, another was the difficulty of hauling over tracks and the other was the danger to lives. He called attention to the fact that the government was looking into the availability of establishing a rural free delivery route in the San Andreas section and if a railroad track was constructed on upper Walker it would work against this plan and the chances of securing the rural route would be lessened. Mr. Kelly brought out the fact that the city is dependent for its revenue upon the farmers. The farmers should be shown the greatest consideration for without the farmers the packing houses would not exist...The objective point of the farmers was the depot and with a track on Walker street it would be a constant menace as well as a nuisance to farmers.

"Mr. Lancaster of the San Andreas district said he seriously objected to a railroad on Walker street because of its danger. He had children coming to school here as well as other neighbors of his and they came in town on Walker street on foot or in vehicles. He measured the street yesterday and found that it was but 34 feet wide. As a railroad track would take up at least 10 feet[,] that left but 12 feet on each side for a driveway, which he thought was not enough for safety. If a spur track was built it would necessitate the construction of auxiliary spurs to every packing house on the street and as a result the street would be blocked many times during the day by cars and engines. He finished by saying that if all the aldermen lived in his part of the valley none of them would favor the granting of the franchise.

"Mrs. E. J. Walters addressed the meeting in favor of the spur and said she owned property on Walker street, which she could neither sell or rent. The board had allowed packing houses and dryers to be built on the street on all sides of her property and she thought the board should now provide some remedy. In speaking of the danger she said that she could get away from the trains and cars as easily as she could from the automobiles that speeded around her corner at Ford and Walker streets.

"Mrs. Fowler also addressed the meeting in favor of the spur and she pooh-poohed the danger argument. She said that the danger involved by having a track on Walker street was no argument against the granting of the franchise as nobody had ever been killed here yet by the trains...

"Mr. Luke Scurich spoke again and said that he would never have been in favor of asking for the spur if he thought there would be any danger but he could see no risk. He said the packers were moving in and out of that section all the day long with four and six horse teams and if there was no danger to them there would not be to anyone else. He declared that all the switching would be done at night anyhow and for only a few months of the year. He said the packers could not have everything all their own way all the time and neither could the farmers and he thought the two could get together. He felt sure that the tracks would not interfere and besides on lower Walker there were more tracks and nobody had been hurt there yet.

"Mr. Schanbacher said that the street would be better with the track for it would then be macadamized. The street today was very poor and in a bad condition.

"Attorney Kelly, who knows a thing or two about horses, said that there was a lot of difference between the horses that the farmers drove and those used by the packers. He said that many of the farmers broke their own horses and that these young animals could not go along a street with a train. Besides a young horse is hard to get over tracks as anyone knows that has been on a ranch with horses. He then took up the statements of those that had spoken in favor of the spur and ripped them up and down in clear and clean-cut style. He called attention to the fact that all those that had spoken for the franchise had frankly admitted that the construction of the spur would enhance the value of their property...He was of the opinion that the objections to the franchise on lower Walker street were not one half as strong as those advanced against the spur on the upper end and that if the lower end was worth $50,000 why not the upper end? Besides it was not fair for the rest of the city to pay for the benefit of a few on one part of one street and if the people on the upper Walker wanted the spur they ought to pay all the cost themselves. Attorney Kelly laid down these arguments in convincing style and at times injected fiery eloquence into his remarks that went straight home and to the point...

"The feature of the evening and the closing address of the session was the brilliant argument of Attorney J. E. Gardner against the spur as the legal representative of the Hihn-Hammond Lumber Company. Mr. Gardner delivered an address that was one of the finest ever heard in the council chambers and it went home with the power of conviction that silenced all those present and made the arguments of those in favor of the spur most woefully weak. He did not indulge in any pyrotechnic eloquence nor did he indulge in any ranting or oratorical flourishes but delivered his address in a calm, deliberate manner that made everybody listen attentively whether they wanted to or not...

"First he attacked the argument that Walker street was the logical street for packing houses and that a spur track was necessary there. He said that there were only 11 packing houses on the upper Walker street from Third to the city limits, which was a distance and length of between 2500 and 3000 feet. Very little fruit is packed by any of these establishments and there is only one large packing house on the street, which is the house of Novacovich & Stolich. The rest are but small concerns. If the city should allow a railroad on upper Walker for the purpose of obliging the few small packers there why not have the city also put spurs on other streets...that had packing houses, which were even larger and of more importance than those on upper Walker. On West Lake avenue there are seven packing houses between Walker and Main streets, two lumber yards and one bottling works, all of which call for the service of a railroad. On Kearney street there are four packing houses, on Fifth there are two, on Sixth there are five and on Ford there are four, making 29 in all off Walker street...

"In answer to the argument that Walker street was the logical street for the packing houses Mr. Gardner said that if such was the case one should expect to see all the packing houses on that street when such is not the case. There are packing houses all over the town on the residence streets. On West Lake avenue alone there are more packing houses on more valuable property than on all of upper Walker. A frontage on a railroad is a natural location for a packing house. Those packers on upper Walker had the opportunity to buy on lower Walker by paying more but they bought cheap sites and erected packing houses and now they ask the city to increase the value of their property for nothing. If there is any discrimination as alleged by the packers...it would be shown by granting the upper Walker street franchise according to Mr. Gardner.

"After Mr. Gardner had concluded there was nothing more to be said. His argument had been so convincing and his address so forcible that none of the spur advocates felt equal to the occasion of responding so there was nothing left to do but for Alderman Callaghan to declare the meeting adjourned."

“Ed. Pajaronian:—Under the heading ‘S.S.I. Society case settled out of court’ this morning’s Watsonville Register makes the following misstatement:

“‘Demand was made in February on Mrs. Scurich for certain money, badges, books, etc., by certain members of the Society but as the photograph of the Pope was claimed as the private property of Mrs. Scurich, Mr. Scurich later placed all the disputed property in the hands of Father Judenich and Rev. Father Hassett. The settlement included the return of the disputed photograph to Mrs. Scurich, the petitioners paying the costs of the suit.’

“The real facts are as stated in ‘The Pajaronian’ of last evening. A demand was made by the Society, through its duly elected officers, for the return of the articles in question, and the demand being refused, a law suit became necessary and was instituted in the Superior Court of this County, against several of the former officers and Mr. Luke Scurich, and yesterday the case was settled, the defendants paying all the costs and returning to the Society all the property demanded except a small picture of the Pope which Mrs. Scurich claimed was a present to her individually by Father Cattini.

"But Dame Fortune is reputed to be blind, and how could her professional interpreters be expected to have good eyesight in the matter of foreseeing coming events.

"Their finish came about this way. Mate Vezerac, whose name suggests the kind of mark fortune tellers are looking for[,] visited last Saturday one of the loudly attired females, who had her stand in the old Star Theater building to have his fortune told. She demanded that he hand over to her all the money he had with him and Vezerac obeyed by handing her over $50, which he had drawn to send to his wife in Austria.

"The gypsy took the money and placed it in her hair after making some mystic passes and mumbling an incantation asked the man whether he preferred money or health. He chose health and the Gypsy promptly handed him a green powder, which she declared represented health and told him his money had vanished. Her client complained at [the] disappearance of his wealth and the only consolation she gave him was to rub his head in oil and gave him a drink which made his head dizzy.

"Vezerac returned to Davenport with all the health, but none of the money he brought to town and told his troubles to a friend, who advised him to get the help of Andy Balich to recover his coin. Mr. Balich, who speaks the gypsy language came to aid and calling on the woman accompanied by Officer Plum, compelled the fortune-teller to return the man his money.

"Later Commissioner Howe and Chief Jones arrested the entire band of fakers, whose case was disposed of in the police court this morning.

"The woman, Mary Stevenson was placed in jail with her bail fixed at $250, but was released Friday evening on the pleadings of Attorney Harry Rhys Davids.

EP; 26 Jul 1912; article: "At a meeting held last night of the local packers and shippers at the auditorium[,] plans were laid for a visit early next week of a committee of twenty local shippers to President William Sproule of the Southern Pacific in San Francisco in an effort to secure emergency rates from this valley so that this section can better compete with the northwest, which has secured a big reduction in rates from that section to this State. This committee will leave for the metropolis probably next Monday and it will lay all the facts in the case before President Sproule so that this valley can secure the lowered rates that it is entitled to. Rates of 75c to Missouri valley points and 85c to Mississippi valley and Atlantic seaboard points will be requested.

"The committee from Watsonville that will interview President Sproule consists of Messrs. James Holohan, Luke Scurich, T. J. Horgan, Otto D. Stoesser, Nick Alaga, M. N. Lettunich, G. W. Sill, W. H. Says the Salinas Journal: ‘Yesterday a laborer in an orchard out near Spence Switch came in and swore out a complaint against Cosmos Gospodnetich, his employer, charging him with battery. The laborer had labored as long as he wanted to for Mr. Gospodnetich, but not as long as Mr. Gospodnetich wanted him. He needed laborers but this man thought he knew when he had enough. He said when he told his employer he was going to quit the man got mad, grabbed him by his clothes and slung him contemptuously and violently to the ground. Mr. Gospodnetich is a 240-pounder and the other man is rather small and his feeling and dignity were hurt as well as his physical body. A warrant was issued for Mr. Gospodnetich’s arrest.’”

“The feature of the new poster is the facsimile of Miss Anna M. Farlin, the popular assistant secretary of the Apple Annual, which adorns the poster. It is a full length portrait of Miss Farlin and is wonderfully true to life. While the picture is almost a perfect likeness yet it does not do Miss Farlin full justice at that. To be thus honored is certainly a compliment that is well deserved by the charming and hard working assistant secretary of the past two apple shows and for her likeness to thus adorn these posters is an honor that any girl might desire. The picture shows Miss Farlin standing on a tree-studded hill in the midst of apples and as she holds a basket of beautiful looking apples in one hand she is pointing with the other hand to the beauties of the Pajaro Valley beneath her. Even the College lakes are to be seen in the distance and the poster is really a faithful reproduction and panoramic view of the Pajaro Valley.” [see Fig. 4-1]

Three months ago Mr. Jokovich bought two fine specimens of horse flesh at King City to add to the two other good animals that he had out on pasture. While coming home with the two horses he had the misfortune to arrive at Spence Switch below Salinas as a train approached. One of the horses shied and ran over a cattle guard. The fall broke the animal's leg and the horse was shot.

"A few weeks later he visited the pasture where he kept his horses and discovered that one of the horses had died in his absence. This left two horses and last Sunday one of these kicked the other in the leg and the injured horse had to be killed. To thus lose three horses in as many months is hard luck to say the least and now Mr. Jokovich is unable to determine whether he is the victim of a jinx or not."

EP; 5 Aug 1912; article: Freight Traffic Manager G. W. Luce of the Southern Pacific Railroad yesterday afternoon entertained the committee from the Pajaro Valley Packers' & Shippers' Association that came before him to request that the Southern Pacific grant this section emergency rates to the Mississippi and Missouri Valley points and to the Atlantic seaboard...

"Attorney J. E. Gardner was the spokesman for the local committee... Besides Mr. Gardner those present yesterday from Watsonville were M. N. Lettunich, George W. Sill, Stephen Scurich, T. J. Horgan, P. M. Resetar, C. H. Baker, Nicholas Alaga, F. P. Marinovich, Peter Stolich, Andrew Zar, Senator James B. Holohan, F. L. W. MacDonald, W. H. Benteen, O. D. Stoesser, Otto Raphael and E. H. Haack.

"In presenting his argument to Mr. Luce Mr. Gardner explained that the local packers desired a 75c rate to Mississippi and Missouri Valley points and 85c to the Atlantic seaboard and that these rates were necessary and essential in view of the recent sweeping reduction made by the Northern Pacific from Washington to California points. Mr. Gardner said that the rates from other sections were lower than the local rates and that therefore our markets in Texas, Montana and other points formerly shipped to were practically gone. Mr. Gardner pointed out that the reduction asked for would be a great benefit to the railroad as fruit now sent to the dryers and canneries or sold in the State at lower prices would be shipped to points all over the country if the new rates asked for were granted."

EP; 28 Aug 1912; article: “The inevitable, necessary and much-needed union of the fruit men of the Pajaro Valley seems to be here at last. Last Monday night the local shippers and packers met and decided to route all shipments hereafter and show the Southern Pacific that they are independent and together here. Last night the fruit men held another enthusiastic meeting and after considerable discussion decided to quote an official minimum price on all Bellefleurs shipped out for the next thirty days. Tomorrow night the fruit men will meet again to take up the matter of the price of all culls for evaporating purposes. Closer and closer is the union growing among the local fruit men and the community should rejoice at last that the growers, the brokers, the shippers, the packers and the rest engaged in the fruit industry have united on a common basis for their own good and for mutual protection.

“The meeting held last night at the auditorium was a hummer and enthusiasm ran high. The rooms were packed to suffocation and fifty or more of the packers and fruit dealers being in attendance. President C. H. Baker of the Pajaro Valley Packers’ and Shippers’ Association presided over the meeting with James Sheehy officiating as secretary and the meeting was a lively one, lasting two hours. The question of establishing a minimum price on Bellefleurs between this date and September 31st was chiefly considered and a price was set. After the price had been set thirty-seven packers and shippers signed the agreement and signed to stick to each other in this hour of protection and need.

“From today on until September 31st no packer, broker or grower in the new association can sell Bellefleurs for less than 70c per box to any other member of the local association while none of the members of the association can sell for less than 75c per fancy, four-tier stock to outside brokers and dealers. This holds if 75 per cent of the [apple shippers] of this valley sign the agreement within three days and there is no question as to that number being secured. A committee composed of Messrs. Nicholas Alaga, F. L. W. MacDonald, James Sheehy, George A. Sill, Paul Melladin [Milladin] and A. Zar was appointed to personally visit all the rest of the packers and have them sign the agreement before the three days are up. The question of the minimum price on Bellefleurs was discussed at length and there was no opposition to it as all present last night realized that if the apples are to move this season there must be no cut throat policy in the matter and all the fruit men must stand together for their own protection. In addition to the minimum price as fixed last night a brokerage charge of 2½c per box was decided upon to be charged all foreign brokers not in the local association. Watsonville and Pajaro are not alone included in the new agreement but Aromas, Castroville, Prunedale, Aptos, Corralitos, San Andreas and other adjoining sections are liable under the new agreement, for which there is a fine of $100 for any violation.

“The minimum price resolution was introduced by a committee that had been appointed at the Monday night meeting for that purpose. On this committee were Messrs. C. H. Baker, L. P. Cikuth, W. H. Benteen, F. L. W. MacDonald and Nicholas Alaga and their suggestions were unanimously adopted and their resolution adopted with but few changes.

“The question of having a car sold for a less price than the agreement calls for on consignment was covered by the members when they arranged last night with the Los Angeles Produce Exchange to have an arbitration board appointed in the southland, the chief market for Bellefleurs, which board will handle all such cases. The commission and produce men of Los Angeles have pledged themselves to heartily aid the local shippers on every occasion and the interests of the people here will be fostered whenever necessary.

“Tonight the packers and shippers will meet again to fix a scale on culls. A price is desired that will be satisfactory to both the seller and the evaporating people and a committee was appointed to look into the matter, to see the evaporating people and get together on a just price. On this committee are Nicholas Alaga, Stephen Scurich, B. Pista, E. B. Lettunich, L. Pulich and C. H. Baker.

“It was decided that the packers and shippers and all other parties interested in the local fruit industry would meet hereafter on every Saturday night in the auditorium to talk over matters that arise from time to time...”

“The funeral of Samuel Borovich was held Monday and was largely attended. Many of the countrymen of the dead boy’s parents were present from Watsonville and also several were here from Santa Cruz, to render what aid and sympathy they might in the hour of bereavement.

"There were fully seventy-five carriages in the procession, which extended over two blocks.

"The services were conducted by Father Brady of this parish and his brother from San Bernardino parish, and the body was interred in the Catholic cemetery.

"Anton Gospodnetich of Watsonville addressed the mourners in their own language, deploring the horror of the tragedy, but pointing out that it was an unavoidable occurrence and advising them to forgive its unfortunate author whom, he said, 'is present and weeping with us.'

"The pallbearers were N. Matulich, M. Gutunich, J. Matulich, P. Gospodnetich, A. Matulich and T. Matulich of this city and Watsonville."

EP; 29 Aug 1912; article: "[photo of team] Tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock the Watsonville Giants baseball team and party will leave in five automobiles for their nine-day tour of the San Joaquin valley. The party will assemble at 7:30 o'clock at W.R. & N. office and will go out Main street to Bridge street and on to San Jose through Gilroy. Modesto will be the first stopping place on Friday night, Bakersfield will be the stopping place on Saturday, Sunday and Monday nights, Hanford will be the resting place on Tuesday night, Fresno on Wednesday night, Los Banos or Newman on Thursday night and Modesto on Friday night. Saturday night the boys will be home in their own beds.

"Apples will be expressed on to all the towns visited, 30 boxes in all to be used, and these will be picked up a town ahead so that the fruit can be thrown to the crowds in the next town from the automobiles. Besides the apples there will be loads of posters, stickers, advance information booklets, cutout apples, boosting cards and other stuff sent ahead to throw all over the towns visited in boosting the California Apple Show. In every town the press representative with the baseball crowd will visit each newspaper office and tell the papers all about the trip and all about the apple show so that the Pajaro valley will be known from one end of the valley to the other before the trip is over..."

EP; 29 Aug 1912; article: "At a crowded meeting of the Packers' and Shippers' Association held in the auditorium last evening the Southern Pacific[,] through vice president and general freight agent, C. W. Luce[,] definitely refused to grant the emergency rates on apple shipments, sought by the Association. He withheld information regarding the reason for this decision on the part of the railroad company and stated that he and his associates had given the most liberal terms possible.

"After the transaction of routine business President Baker called on the representative of the railroad for an expression of his views on the subject and he responded as follows:

"I am here at the invitation of your president. I am here single handed except with the assistance of our local agent, Mr. Davis, and am not fortified with 21 members of our company as your committee was on a recent visit to my office in San Francisco. However, we will do the best we can. I believe the get-together spirit displayed by the members of your organization is a good one. There is no doubt that the organization of this association to govern the handling of apples will work to an immense advantage of the industry in this district. In the north many thousands of cars of fruit are handled to a greater advantage than ever before under a system similar to the one now being advanced here. I am glad to learn that all the packers and shippers here are getting together and so that you will stick together and I recommend the adoption of the resolution of providing for the appointment of a transportation committee as offered by Mr. Benteen.

"I have taken up the matter of cars and have ordered a large number from the east shipped empty by special train for the opening of the season September 1. Since your committee visited me recently I have made a trip through the north to investigate conditions there. I find that in that section a large part of the crop will be marketed at home this year as the shippers do not feel like confronting the difficulties of marketing their crop in the east and for this reason we expect better car service this year. We will keep in close touch with the situation and exert every effort to prevent a shortage of cars.

"I find that Watsonville is shipping a larger percentage of its output east every year. In 1910 about 50% was shipped east of Chicago, while last year nearly 66.6% went to eastern markets.

"Regarding freight rates, we have done the best we could, except to give you what you wanted. The rates you have had have put the industry where it is today and have encouraged land owners to plant an increased acreage of apples until this year we expect the total output, including bi-products to reach nearly 7500 cars. When we have done the best we can we do not want any bad feeling, but we can give no other rate. We do not want the people to kick us when we are down.'

"...At the conclusion of Mr. Luce's speech President Baker called on J. E. Gardner, who characterized the appointment of the transportation committee to attend to the routing of all cars as the best step ever taken toward advancing the interests of the apple industry, and expressed the hope that it would develop in a still more extensive system in the future.

"Following is the resolution concerning the contract to be signed by shippers in regard to the routing of cars, introduced by Mr. Benteen and adopted unanimously:

"Whereas, the shippers of apples from this section have in past years been unable at different times during the shipping season to secure a sufficient number of cars from the Southern Pacific Company to move the crop in a satisfactory manner and

"Whereas, at different times during the shipping season

the railroads transporting the crop of this section to the various markets have not given the expedited service which the perishable fruit industry demands, therefore be it

“Resolved, That the Shippers’ and Packers’ Association of Watsonville does hereby recommend that the shippers and packers of the Pajaro valley at once enter into a binding contract whereby each of them shall agree that the routing of each car of apples shipped by him for the season of 1912 be in accord with the instructions and advice of the transportation committee of this association, consisting of five members appointed by the president, and be it further

“Resolved that in order to properly attend to this matter the said committee be authorized to employ a suitable person whose duties shall be to interview each shipper weekly or as more frequently as may be necessary in order to ascertain the number of cars required for the movement of the fruit so that the railroad companies may be advised early enough for them to supply the necessary equipment...”

“A clause providing for a penalty of $100 for violation of the shippers’ agreement proposed by Attorney Gardner was adopted unanimously and inserted in the agreement.

“The question whether an emergency car of apples, sold at auction for less than the minimum price fixed by the agreement[,] would be considered a violation of the rules was brought up by L. Cikuth. Discussion of the matter resulted in the passage of a resolution proposed by Mr. Benteen providing for the appointment of a committee to handle such cases. President Baker appointed George Martin, H. P. Kane and T. H. Horgan to consider the question and render a report at the meeting to be held Friday evening; also to report on the matter of the Association obtaining a membership in the Produce Reporter Company of Chicago for the benefit of small local shippers who are not subscribers to that organization.

“Mr. Cikuth illustrated his point by citing a case of two cars of apples shipped to a Chicago dealer, who might find after the arrival of the first car that the market would not stand a second car at that time, and therefore desired the second car auctioned at St. Louis, to prevent a reduction of price in Chicago. It was agreed that all such cases would properly come within the province of the adjustment committee.

“Nick Alaga, chairman of the committee obtaining signatures of packers to the minimum price agreement reported that about 90% had already signed and that the list would be completed in another day...”

EP; 31 Aug 1912; article: “PACKERS AND SHIPPERS DRAW UP AGREEMENT. The meeting held by the Packers’ and Shippers’ Association, last evening, drew a large attendance to the auditorium and a spirit of harmony and enthusiasm was evident among the members present in regard to the work of completing their organization. The fact appeared to be generally realized that the agreement relating to the routing drawn up by the transportation committee of which W. H. Benteen is chairman and G. W. Sill, M. N. Lettunich and Steve Scurich are the members[,] which has been signed by virtually all the members of the association, will mark a new era in the local apple shipping business, since hereafter transportation companies will have to deal with a strong organization instead of, as hitherto, with a number of individuals. The change of heart that has already been shown by the officials of the Southern Pacific is considered to furnish sufficient proof of the desirable effect to be expected from the new arrangement in the future. The only objection that arose to signing was voiced by F. L. W. MacDonald on the part of the renters of Southern Pacific land who inquired if the routing of cars by the transportation committee would not conflict with a clause in the leases requiring preferences for the Southern Pacific in the matter of shipments. This was met by an opinion expressed by Attorney Gardner, the Association’s legal adviser, to the effect that such a provision in a lease would be illegal and could not be enforced, besides rendering the railroad company liable to be heavily fined by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Mr. Gardner remarked that he did not believe that the Southern Pacific people, who were well-informed on such points[,] would wish to stir up serious trouble for themselves by attempting to enforce such a clause...

"...W. H. Benteen, the chairman, read the following agreement...

"That whereas, the undersigned packers and shippers of apples, doing business in the Pajaro Valley have in past years been unable to obtain a sufficient number of cars for the expeditious handling of their product; and

"Whereas, it appears to them that it will be for their mutual benefit and profit that the matter of arranging for the obtaining of cars and other means of transportation and the routing of cars shipped be handled by them through a central organization or committee; and

"Whereas, it will also be to their mutual benefit that accurate statistics be accumulated for their use showing the quantities and varieties of apples shipped from day to day into the various markets; and

"Whereas, a transportation committee, now consisting of W. H. Benteen, M. N. Lettunich, James Sheehy, Stephen Scurich and George W. Sill, has been appointed by the president of the Shippers' and Packers' Association of Watsonville;

"Now therefore, the undersigned do severally promise and agree, one with another and each with all of the others:

"1. That each carload of apples of the crop of 1912, shipped by them shall be routed over such line or lines as may be specified by the said transportation committee and in accordance with the instructions and advice of said committee; and for the purpose of routing the carloads of apples of the 1912 crop that may be shipped by the undersigned, said committee and the successors in office of the present members thereof who may be appointed by the president of the said Shippers' and Packers' Association, and any officer of said committee whom the other members of the committee may appoint for the purpose, are hereby constituted and appointed attorneys in fact of each of the undersigned, with full power and authority to route such cars as directed by said committee.

"2. That said committee is hereby authorized to employ an assistant or assistants for the purpose of obtaining from the undersigned, weekly or more frequently, information as to their requirements of cars, to inspect all bills of lading prior to shipment of cars, for the purpose of ascertaining that the routing is in accordance with the committee's instructions, and to obtain from each bill of lading the destination and contents of each car shipped, such information to be compiled by said committee and reported weekly at the regular meetings of said association.

"3. That the undersigned will promptly, and as early as practicable, furnish to said committee or its assistants, information as to cars required with dates, and having ordered a car or cars will be responsible for such order.

"4. That the undersigned will each pay to the said committee or its assistants the sum of 25 cents for each carload of apples shipped, payment to be made at time bill of lading is inspected; that said committee shall pay all such funds to the treasurer of the Shippers' and Packers' Association and they shall be used for the purpose of paying the expenses incurred by the committee for assistance, stationery, postage, etc.; and that if said sum be not sufficient to meet such expenses, the amount may be increased from time to time, not to exceed $1 per car, by a majority vote of those present at a regular meeting of said Association.

"5. That if any one of the undersigned shall at any time fail, neglect or refuse to route any carload of fruit over the lines directed by and in accordance with the instructions and advice of said committee, as herein agreed, or shall fail, neglect or refuse to keep or perform any other of his or its promises or agreements herein contained, then on demand such party shall pay to the secretary of said Shippers' and Packers' Association the sum of $100 for each such breach of this contract; and any moneys so received by said secretary shall be placed in the treasury of said association and be available for the payment of the expenses incurred by said committee or any other obligation of the association.

"6. That the members of said committee agree to devote such time as may be necessary properly to attend to the duties imposed upon them, making no charge for their services, and that they will report shipments weekly at the regular meetings of said association.

"Dated, August 29, 1912."

"Attorney Gardner and Chairman Benteen explained that the transportation committee would study the interests of members in every way in regard to routing; and that the funds provided by the assessment of a small sum on each car would be used to protect the shipper in every way. Mr. Benteen explained in reply to a case submitted by Mr. Zar, where he had occasion to ship two cars to a point in Texas; that where only one railroad touched a city that there was no choice of routes; but in other cases that the committee would select the route most advantageous for the shipper.

"L. Pulich, chairman of a committee appointed to investigate the alleged evaporator trust reported that it has been found that the Chinese dryer operators are organized and have an agreement to pay no more than $5 per ton for apples. Mr. Pulich recommended that the association take measures for self protection against this combination by demanding that the Chinese dissolve their trust and buy culls as individuals. He urged after some discussion that if the Chinese refused to disorganize, no apples should hereafter be sold to them. The matter was referred back to the committee, which was directed to submit a further report at tonight's meeting..."

EP; 2 Sep 1912; article: "Fresno, Saturday Night. Today was a hard luck day for the Giant crew from start to finish. Shortly after leaving Modesto this morning Gabriel's auto blew out a tire and that caused a delay near Turlock. Then Dave Graves' machine broke a gearing sleeve at Merced and he was forced to lay over there for repairs until Sunday afternoon when he joins the rest of us at Bakersfield. The players in his machine were bundled into a rented car at Merced and dumped in Madera. At Berenda this machine blew a tire and that meant more delay. Then to top off the agony Watsonville lost to Madera.

"The score was 5 to 3 and was all the fault of Luke Glavenich. In the first inning he walked four men, made three wild pitches, one balk and allowed four runs before Sid Hatch could be called to the rescue..."

"...The boys put up a scrappy game even if they were all in from the rough 70 mile ride today from Modesto. The boys were tired from the long ride, but full of pep at that. They deserve praise for the showing they made.

"The ride today from Modesto was of the bumpety bump variety nearly all of the way over the poorest roads yet traveled. In Modesto and Madera apples were thrown to the townspeople by the gang and the Watsonville crowd made a big hit in both cities. The trip has been a big boost for Watsonville and the apple show and all over the valley folks are talking about us.

"Today we are laying over at Fresno. At 5 in the morning we hit the 120 mile trail for far off Bakersfield in three of the autos. Hatch, Snowden, Milford and Glavenich going by train. E. H. LORENSON."

EP; 3 Sep 1912; article: "MANY NOVEL FEATURES FOR APPLE ANNUAL. President Stoesser, J. A. Linscott, C. H. Baker, Luke Scurich, George W. Sill, J. S. Gardner, M. N. Lettunich, H. C. Peckham, General Manager Perkins and Secretary Redman were present and took part in last night's meeting of the directors of the Apple Annual, at which much business of importance toward assuring the success of the show was transacted. A number of new and valuable features, calculated to add materially to its attractiveness were proposed, discussed and planned for. President Stoesser appointed the following committee for 'Button Day,' which will be held on Saturday, September 7th: Roscoe Taylor, chairman; E. L. Andrews, E. E. Lewis, R. W. Cooper, Fred Wilson, Mrs. Mary Zmudowski, Mrs. R. H. Hudson, Mrs. E. H. Nohrden, Mrs. E. B. Lettunich, Mrs. R. W. Cooper and Miss Frances Thompson.

"The committee will select 20 girls to sell Apple Annual buttons and will offer four prizes of $10, $7.50, $5 and $2.50 for those selling the largest number. All the sales ladies will also be served with lunch.

"The question of providing bands for show week received close consideration. Bids have been submitted by the Watsonville City band, the Croatian band, the College band, Gregory's Royal Marine band, and the band of the 12th U.S. Infantry. The prices asked range from a nominal sum to $1050, the figure asked by the Royal Marine band for its services. A decision may be made today after a committee consisting of President Stoesser, Mayor Hall, Luke Scurich, W. H. Benteen and H. C. Peckham have conferred with Colonel Bowen of the 12th U.S. Infantry stationed at Monterey in regard to the sending of a battalion of his regiment and the band to this city for show week. An effort will be made to have the City band on call during the day show week and also accompany the San Francisco booster trip, while the Royal Marine band will be engaged for concert work during the evenings of the show. Besides providing music for all occasions, the directors will arrange for a band to meet all trains during the annual. Henry Pearson will have charge of all the cider booths at the show, and sweet cider will be sold. General Manager Perkins is designing an original working model of an old fashioned cider mill, which will make cider in plain sight of the spectators.

"An aerial experience will be provided for such as desire to make an ascension in a captive balloon, and during the week four parachute descents will be made by the aeronaut from a height of 1800 feet. The balloon will be anchored in the Porter lot behind the post office and on the last day of the show will carry four passengers to Salinas...

"The date for the San Francisco booster trip was set on Wednesday, October 2, and the committee will make arrangements and secure the special train for that day..."

"The boys won the first game against Bakersfield yesterday before a good sized crowd. The score was 8 to 2 with Luke Glavenich in the 'come back' role. Luke was all tired out the day before and lost the game for us at Madera in the first inning by his awful wildness but he pitched one of the best games I have seen this year against Bakersfield yesterday...Glavenich twirled wonderful ball, wonderful for one reason because he was so wild the day before. In the eight innings that he pitched he struck out 17 Bakersfield men, allowed five scattered hits, walked four and allowed only one run..."

EP; 7 Sep 1912; article: “To meet and cope with a situation which seriously menaces the trade interests if not the business existence of local apple handlers, the packers and shippers at their meeting in the auditorium last evening decided to send a committee of eight to Los Angeles to combat the trouble and take measures to avert damaging results. C. H. Baker, president of the association, James Sheehy, Stephen Scurich, F. L. W. MacDonald, W. H. Benteen, George W. Sill, T. J. Horgan and M. N. Lettunich will form the committee to represent Watsonville’s interests in the southern trade centre.

“The double-headed difficulty which has to be dealt with is this: It has developed that the Los Angeles wholesale dealers are discriminating against Pajaro Valley fruit, and that the Salt Lake route, which is controlled by the Southern Pacific company has reduced its freight rate on fruit between Salt Lake City and Los Angeles from 65c to 56 cents per hundred pounds, the same to go into effect September 26. The hostile combination now apparent is particularly injurious to local apple interests from the fact Salt Lake City apples are a strong factor in competition with Watsonville fruit in Los Angeles, which is one of the principal markets for the local crop. The action of the Salt Lake railroad lowering freight rates on apples at this time has the appearance of retaliation on the part of the Southern Pacific for the recent organization of the local shippers, and it is considered probable that the Los Angeles middlemen, are acting in concert with the railroad company in the matter. In any case the fact that the city attorney of Los Angeles has started an investigation concerning the existence of a combination of wholesalers to control prices will strengthen the position and facilitate the work of this city’s representatives.

“If the local representation fails to obtain a satisfactory understanding and fair treatment from the Los Angeles wholesalers, an agency will be established in the southern city to sell the entire local Bellefleur crop direct to the retailers. Funds will be provided by the Packers’ and Shippers’ Association to make an effective fight and it was officially announced last night that the local apple handlers were financially able to meet all their current expenses for several weeks. Whatever may be the outcome of the contest now on[,] in other respects it is considered certain that the packers’ and shippers’ expedition to Los Angeles will have the effect of extending the fame of Watsonville and the Pajaro valley to a remarkable extent.

“...A resolution favoring the use of ventilator cars instead of refrigerator cars for State shipments to prevent a shortage of the last named cars was adopted at the recommendation of the transportation committee...”

A complaint was sworn to under the new traffic ordinance and Mr. Lettunich appeared before Judge Bridgewater this morning. He pleaded ignorance of the law, and also stated that he was unable to tie his rig in the legal way as it would have been in the way of the Tuttle Meat Co.'s wagons, and that he had left orders with an employee to take the horse to his barn. Judge Bridgewater thought a five dollar fine would fix the matter and the same was paid."

EP; 4 Oct 1912; article: "That certain local shippers and packers are violating the minimum rate agreement passed by the Packers' & Shippers' Association of the Pajaro Valley by selling their Bellefleur apples in Los Angeles for less than 75c per box and that the packers selling according to the agreement are losing out in the southern markets as a result of the cut-throat policy followed by the few local packers that are violating the agreement are facts alleged by Nicholas V. Lettunich, the well-known local grower, shipper and packer, who returned this morning from Los Angeles...Mr. Lettunich states that some of the Watsonville packers are laying themselves open to a $100 fine for violating the minimum rate clause of the packer's agreement according to evidence seen with his own eyes while in the southern metropolis.

"In the first place if the minimum price of 75c was followed by all packers here and all commission men in the south the lowest price that would prevail for Bellefleurs in the south would be at least 90c[,] for the freight from Watsonville to Los Angeles is 11 ½ c, which added to the 75c worth make a total per box of 86 ½ c. Mr. Lettunich found instances while south where commission houses were selling Pajaro Valley Bellefleurs for not only 85c but for as low as 80c and 75c. Therefore if a commission man sells for 85c he must buy the apples here at Watsonville for at least 73 ½ c in order to be even with the freight or at less than 73 ½ c in order to get any profit at all. This conclusively shows that some packers in this city and members of the Packers' & Shippers' Association are violating the rules of the game and should be investigated.

"...Last night a San Diego man told Mr. Lettunich that he had bought five cars of Bellefleurs this week for 75c, which means that the Watsonville packer sold the fruit at a figure in the 60's. Mr. Lettunich also saw 75 boxes sold this week by the South Pacific Fruit Company for 85c and he was present while S. M. Miloslavich sold 40 Watsonville Bellefleur boxes at 80c. In this case he also saw the bill in the peddler's hand...

"Mr. Lettunich reports that some of the Los Angeles commission men are indignant at the turn affairs have taken for while they are buying apples here in Watsonville at the minimum price of 75c from packers that are living up to the agreement they are being undersold by the commission men that are dealing with Watsonville packers who are violating the agreement.

"The Pajaro Valley Packers' & Shippers' Association should investigate the charges made by Mr. Lettunich immediately. If any members of the Association are violating the agreement they should be fined and held up as examples..."

EP; 15 Oct 1912; article: “Ten Thousand May Answer Call to Battle—Talk of War is Getting Them Excited...The European fear of international complications which might involve the whole of the continent in armed conflict is being fanned by the discovery that there recently has been organized in the western part of the United States a Croatian League, similar to the Irish League, in which 40,000 Croatsians, naturalized citizens of the United States or subjects of the Austro-Hungarian empire, have bound themselves to return to their native country at the opportune time and begin a war for independence from the Austrian throne. The opportune time, it has been declared by officers of the league in San Francisco, will be the minute war is declared between Turkey and the other Balkan provinces.

“The number of Croatsians in San Francisco is well above 10,000. They far outnumber the Servians, who differ from the Croatsians only in their allegiance to a king of their own and in their religion. The Croatsians, who come from the province of Croatia, in the heart of Hungary, are Roman Catholics, while the Servians usually are members of the Greek Catholic church. The difference of religion will be forgotten, it is said, when Serbia goes to arms against Turkey and Croatia against Austria.

“M. M. Cosulich, editor of Jadran, a Croatian paper published in San Francisco, is one of the moving spirits of the Croatian League. It is principally through his efforts that the league was able to recruit so extensively in San Francisco.

“It is stated in the foreign quarter today that fully 500 Servians, Greeks and Bulgarians will leave this port for home within the next few days unless the war clouds clear. There are 5000 Servians in the city and all of this number that are able-bodied men will leave. Of the 2000 Bulgarians in the city, fully half will answer their country’s call.

“It is hard to estimate how many Croatsians will return to take part in the contemplated revolt, as there are more than 40,000 in the State, and it is thought the majority will return.—San Francisco Post.”

EP; 21 Oct 1912; obit: “Annie Gluhan, a native of Dalmacia, Austria, aged 18 years, died this morning...at the Watsonville Hospital, from spinal meningitis.

“The death of the young woman is peculiarly sad. She arrived here, to rejoin her sisters, on October 9th, and leaving her mother, father and one brother and sister in far-off Austria, journeyed to California with pleasant anticipation of rejoining loved relatives, and beginning life anew in a land of golden promise. Last week she was taken ill, and her ailment not yielding readily to medical treatment, she was removed to the hospital where she passed away this morning.

“Her death comes as a great shock to relatives and friends. Besides the relatives (noted above) that she leaves in Austria, she leaves three sisters in this section, viz: Mrs. Mitchell Perovich of Watsonville, Mrs. Martin Perovich of Gilroy, and Mrs. Peter Kulish of San Jose...Interment at Catholic cemetery.”

EP; 21 Oct 1912; article: “HIT BY AUTOMOBILE. George Vucinich, a local fruit laborer, had a narrow escape from serious injury if not death...this morning as the result of being struck by an automobile, owner unknown, at the lower end of Main street. The automobile was proceeding the opposite way from Vucinich, who was on a bicycle, and the two vehicles collided head-on. Vucinich was hurled headfirst through the wind shield of the automobile, which was shattered, and he landed in the automobile. The bicycle was thrown to one side and badly dented. Vucinich dislocated one shoulder and suffered several severe contusions and cuts on the forehead and cheek but sustained nothing of a serious nature. He was given medical treatment and while suffering pain from the injuries yet he is still able to move about."

The property in all is valued at over $50 so the charge against Nicich is grand larceny. Nicich had been employed on the Sarich ranch at Aromas and he departed yesterday morning for parts unknown while the owners were at work. The robbery was reported to Constable Cano yesterday afternoon. The missing man is described as being 25 years of age, 5 feet, 10 inches in height, weighing about 140 pounds and smooth shaven."

EP; 26 Oct 1912; article: "Tomorrow's game will be noteworthy for several reasons. In the first place it will be the crucial game in the contest for the championship of the county as the Giants have won the first two games of the five game series. If the Giants win tomorrow there will be no more games with Santa Cruz, but if the Giants lose[,] the next game will be played at the county seat..."

"Luke McGlucke Glavenich will go on the mound again tomorrow and will try to show Santa Cruz that he can fool them. Luke has been out of form in the last few games but he says he feels fine for tomorrow and when Luke is right[,] there are few clubs that can touch his curves and fast balls."

EP; 28 Oct 1912; article: "With the score 3 to 1 against them in the eighth inning with chances to win the game looking as slim as a toothpick the Giants came from behind yesterday afternoon at Beach Park, hammered Pitcher Walker almost to a pulp and drove in not only the runs needed to win the game but made on extra for good measure. The score was 5 to 3 when the hammering was over with and poor Santa Cruz was helpless before Sid Hatch after that. Five times this season has Santa Cruz tried to beat Watsonville and five times have they failed so it now begins to look as if the county seat ball team is far outclassed by this town.

"In the first place Luke Glavenich had another of his wild days...In the first inning Luke walked two men, made two wild pitches while Milford made two passed balls and the county seaters came across with two runs..."

"The Santa Cruz gang kept pecking away at Glavenich and in the seventh he had the bases filled and two down. He looked at the situation and one look was enough. He walked out of the box and Sid Hatch, the life-saver and chief of the rescue crew, came to the front. Hatch pulled out of the hole without damage and Santa Cruz lost a brilliant opportunity to put the game on ice.

"In the eighth the Giants came out in front with a rush that took away the breath of all present...[W]hen the inning was over the score was 5 to 3 with the locals on the long end..."

EP; 30 Oct 1912; article: “AN ODD DOCUMENT FILED IN DIVORCE CASE. All the way from Gruda, in the province of Dalmacia, Austria, has come to the county clerk’s office in Santa Cruz a document of much import in the future happiness of Lucy Rajla [Relja], the wife of John Rajla of Watsonville. With its advent in the clerk’s office points of fascinating interest to lawyer and layman bearing on divorce suits where the principals are thousands of miles apart, are introduced for the first time.

“John Rajla, through his attorney, George W. Smith of Watsonville, filed a divorce complaint in the superior court on August 26, alleging that his wife, Lucy, to whom he was married in Gruda, Dalmacia, in 1895, had deserted him in September, 1898, while they were living in New York city. It was further alleged that there was no living issue of their union and a legal separation was prayed for on the ground of desertion. The usual legal formalities of notification to the wife of the complaint were carried out and nothing was heard from the defendant wife until the early part of this week, when the mail-carrier deposited with County Clerk Miller an enormous envelope bearing the postmark of the Austrian town.

“It was the wife’s answer in cross-complaint in the suit and included also at its end a ‘proposition’ to the superior court here. The document is carefully written by an attorney in longhand on great lengths of heavy paper and contains several odd expressions never heard or used in the American courts.

“There is revealed on the pages to the husband now living in Watsonville that he can not hope for the dissolution of the bonds of matrimony for the reason that ‘the civil law of the Austrian monarchy in connection with the church law of the Roman Catholic church’ does not permit an absolute divorce. ‘Only such reasons as adultery, blows and improper conduct of one party toward the other’ is sufficient grounds ‘to ask a separation of table and bed’ the document goes on to state, although the parties are allowed to live apart, but forbidden to ever marry again. Objection is raised to the jurisdiction of the Santa Cruz county court on the ground of validity of the Austrian law under which the couple were married.

“The surprising revelation in the wife’s answer is the assertion that at the time she left New York she had hopes of becoming a mother and that in March, 1899, a tiny daughter blessed her loneliness. This child, now fourteen years old, she named Marija. She alleges that her husband knew of the child’s birth and sent her money for the expenses attendant upon the birth.

“Allegations are also made accusing the husband of cruelty toward the defendant before her departure and that since her arrival in Austria she has been forced at times to depend ‘on relatives to keep from starving.’

“The document finally ends with the remarkable ‘proposition’ that the judge of the superior court here appoint a lawyer to defend her on account of her being poor and unable to provide for her legal defense. The appointment of attorneys to defend parties in civil suits is not practiced in the California courts.

“On account of the document not being in the proper form it will not be filed by County Clerk Miller.

“Attorney Smith for the husband told a News man today that he was inclined to allow the wife’s answer to be presented in court, but on account of the document not being technically correct as an answer or a cross-complaint he did not know what the attitude of the court toward it might be.—Santa Cruz Evening News.”

EP; 22 Nov 1912; article: "WARRANT OUT FOR DEFAULTING PACKER. It is rumored that a number of our orchardists are likely to lose large sums of money by the failure of orchard buyers to make good on their contracts. It is reported on the street this morning that one of our prominent growers got a $200 check on a $1400 contract; that the check when presented, was marked 'no funds,' and that the whereabouts of the apple buyer cannot now be ascertained.

"A warrant for petty larceny was sworn out in Judge Rohrback's court at Pajaro, by L. Panigot against J. Dujmovich, a packer at 832 Walker street, in this city, and the officers are now searching for him, his whereabouts being unknown for several days past. His packing house was found stripped clean, only a sick horse in the veterinary hospital of Dr. Ramsey belonging to him, being found, and against which Dr. Ramsey holds a claim of $40. Dujmovich's arrest is being sought for the theft of a small amount of hay alleged to have been stolen last July. Apparently the charge is merely lodged against him to get hold of him and bring him back here to answer certain transactions. It is alleged that his shortage to growers and laborers in this valley will total close to $3000. He has been in the packing business here for the past three or four years, and had no trouble in getting credit for anything he wanted."

EP; 26 Nov 1912; article: "TWO PACKERS SUED IN JUSTICE COURT. Through Attorney J. E. Gardner the transportation committee of the Pajaro Valley Packers and Shippers Association this afternoon filed civil suits in Judge A. B. Hawkins' justice court against Frank Radovan and E. B. Lettunich, two of the leading fruit packers and shippers of the city, the charge being that these two violated the signed agreement entered into several months ago by all the packers. The members of the transportation committee, who are bringing the suit, are W. H. Benteen (chairman), George W. Sill, M. N. Lettunich, Stephen Scurich and James Sheehy. The defendants are charged with not paying their share of the cost of conducting the transportation this season on a business-like and organized basis and they are but two out of a large number that are to be sued unless they pay up.

"In August of this year the shippers and packers of this valley took two steps distinctly in advance. They placed a minimum price of 75 cents per box on Bellefleur apples and they appointed a transportation committee to handle the business of rustling cars and routing shipments. The selling agreement bound the signers until October only. Up to that time the price of Bellefleurs was held up to a figure that gave a fair profit to packer and grower. The buyers were using every possible method to break the combination, and with the expiration of the term of the agreement it was not renewed.

"The next morning Bellefleurs dropped to 60 cents. Subsequent developments have demonstrated that had the shippers and packers had the wisdom to continue their agreement in force it would not have been necessary to sell a box of Bellefleurs for less than 75 cents.

"The purpose of the transportation committee was three-fold: By combination, to strengthen the shippers and packers in making demands of the transportation companies for service; to help out the association's members in the matter of obtaining cars for their shipments, and to accumulate a store of statistics for the use of the members in future years. Accurate information as to the number of boxes and the varieties of apples shipped into the several markets would enable the packers to handle this fruit to a great deal better advantage. Also, in presenting their side of the question as to freight rates, it would give them an immense advantage. At present only the railroad company has this information and the shippers are at its mercy. This question of rates is sure to come before the Interstate Commerce Commission in the end, and unless the packers have these accurate statistics they will find themselves in a most awkward position.

"The agreement signed by each of the packers provided that the transportation committee should be furnished with a list of the cars shipped by each packer; its destination and the number of boxes and varieties of apples contained. To cover the expenses incurred for stationery, etc., and the salary of the traffic manager, each packer in writing agreed to pay the committee the sum of 25 cents per car for each carload of apples shipped by him.

"The committee has put in a lot of time on its work, without compensation, and has succeeded in bettering transportation conditions very materially, but has been hindered in its work by reason of the fact that very many of those who signed the contract have refused to furnish the information as agreed to or to pay the small sum of 25 cents per car.

"Expenses have been incurred on the faith of these promises to pay and the committee is determined not to allow anyone to shirk. Ample time has been given to each delinquent to make good. Those who have not done so will now be sued and will be held for not only the 25 cents per car, but for a $100 penalty provided for in the contract and for the court costs.

"Suits were commenced today against Frank Radovan and E. B. Lettunich, and others will be filed as fast as the complaints can be prepared unless the required information is furnished and the payments are made.

"In connection with the freight service, which alone was worth the 25 cents per car charged, it would be timely here to say that the railroad this year furnished most excellent service and the accommodations all season were splendid. Agent Roy Davis of the local station deserves credit of the highest order for the part he played in securing such first-class service for the shippers and the railroad is to be complimented for its good work."

EP; 26 Nov 1912; article: "FRUIT PACKERS IN DANGER OF ARREST. With the police looking for John Dujmovich who is alleged to be a defaulter to the amount of several hundred dollars, and with the attachment yesterday evening of the plant and property of J. J. Voivodich, the developments in the local fruit scandals seem to be coming rather thick and fast if reports can be believed. No trace of Dujmovich has as yet been found although the police are looking high and low for the alleged defaulter. The technical charge against him is of stealing some hay, which charge has been filed against him in the court of Judge Rohrback at Pajaro, but if Dujmovich is ever returned here he is likely to be arrested on other charges of a more serious nature. Among the charges that it is reported will be pressed against the missing fruit packer will be one of forgery and the passing of a bogus check for $185 on the Tuttle Meat Company.

"Yesterday...another fruit packer, J. J. Voivodich, who has operated a packing house on Brennan street, had two attachments levied against his place of business. One claim was for $1400, which is held by the City Savings Bank of Santa Cruz as an assigned claim of Edward White and Anna R. White. The other claim is for $300 and is held by the Hihn-Hammond Lumber Company. Voivodich has also departed from his usual haunts and his packing house and residence on Brennan Street have been vacated for nearly a week. The police are looking for the missing man. We understand that a warrant for his arrest will be sworn out this afternoon..."

EP; 2 Dec 1912; article: "Stephen Kovacevich Enters Leu's Store, Examines Revolver and Cartridge, then Shoots Self Through Head. The suicide was one of the coolest and most deliberate in the history of the city and was most dramatic..."

"...Kovacevich calmly strolled into the Leu store on Main street and quietly asked the clerk, Lee Johnston, to see some of the revolvers displayed in a case on the counter. One of the pistols, a 32 caliber Iver Johnson, seemed to please Kovacevich, who looked carefully at the gun and then ask for some cartridges, saying he wanted to see how the gun worked. While Kovacevich was turning the gun over in his hand and inserting the cartridges in the chambers, Johnston stepped into the rear to attend to the wants of another customer and told Kovacevich to call him when he was ready to buy the weapon. Johnston had barely reached the small work room in the rear of the store when he heard a muffled report. He hastily opened the door and could see no trace of Kovacevich in the store. He walked out into the aisle and was horrified to see Kovacevich lying in a pool of blood on the floor with the revolver in his grasp. Passers-by on the street, who heard the shot, hastened into the store and the officers were notified. Kovacevich had committed the desperate deed in the front of the store at a spot perhaps 15 feet from the door leading into the street. He had placed the revolver to his right temple and had fired, the bullet entering one corner of the brain and lodging in his head..."

"Kovacevich was wanted by the police and the sheriff's office in connection with the sudden and mysterious disappearance several days ago of J. J. Voivodich, the Brennan street fruit packer and shipper, who unceremoniously left the city without paying his creditors and who is wanted on charges of embezzlement and other felony allegations. Kovacevich, who was Voivodich's confidential adviser and who was really a partner in several ventures, had been closely questioned for several days by the officers and only yesterday had been given the third degree in an endeavor to find where Voivodich was at present, Kovacevich knowing the whereabouts of the missing man. Investigation by the officers had disclosed the fact that Kovacevich was the last man in the city to see Voivodich, that he had accompanied the missing man to Pajaro on the night that he departed for parts unknown, that he had been given authority by Voivodich to draw his money from the banks here and that he had been in communication with the missing man all through the hunt that the police had made for him. When closely pressed by the officers Kovacevich had hotly denied that he knew anything about his partner but when confronted with evidence that contradicted his first story he admitted that he knew where the missing man was but further than that he knew nothing. Had he lived he would have been forced to confess all he knew or would have been arrested as an accomplice of the missing Voivodich.

"The supposition is that Kovacevich had brooded over the matter for several days and had been driven into temporary insanity by the trouble that he was plunged into. Rather than accept the alternative of going to jail or confessing all he decided to end his life and he chose this morning's dramatic method of killing himself. Kovacevich had lived here several years, was secretary of the local Croato-Servian society and for the season held the pruning contract on the J. H. Thompson ranch in the eastern end of the valley.

"Upon examining his effects this afternoon Deputy Coroner Dr. G. P. Tolman and Luke Scurich found a letter of explanation written by Kovacevich, which was a rambling and almost illegible statement of why he had decided to commit suicide. He stated in this letter, which was so jumbled up the translation was difficult, that he was afraid he would be further mixed up in the Voivodich deal and he could not stand any further pressure..."

"There were only four witnesses to be heard, Dr. George P. Tolman, Luke Scurich, Lee Johnston and Milo Perovich. Dr. Tolman, who performed the autopsy yesterday afternoon, testified as to the nature of the wound, Mr. Scurich told of his relations with the deceased and acted as interpreter, Mr. Johnston told how the deceased met his death by shooting himself and Mr. Perovich, who is a cousin of the deceased, told something about the deceased and his life.

"Among the interesting matters brought out at the inquest was a letter written by Kovacevich before his death to his brother, who is expected here this afternoon from Taft, Kern county. The letter when literally translated by Mr. Scurich, read as follows: 'I herewith leave this step. I am doing for the reason brought on to me shame for which I am not guilty because John Voidodich in a fact said that he would in two days return. That is all I know of him but the way it looks for me turn I am unable to tell my rights because my misery. I am unable that the public may think that I whatever share had.'

Their destination is unknown although it will either be to the Yosemite Valley or to the Sacramento Valley. They will, however, return to Watsonville in a few days to take up their future residence.

"...A few weeks ago the bride visited here for several weeks with Mrs. John Alaga on Bockius Street and at that time she was betrothed to Mr. Alaga although the fact was kept a secret from even the relatives of the pair..."

She is popular in the highest San Francisco society circles and while here in Watsonville made a host of friends through her charming personality. She is well educated, is a musician of much talent and is a young woman, whom the groom has just reason to feel proud to call his bride.

No effort has been made to arrest Rosich as no warrant for his arrest has been issued. The cutting took place as a result of a quarrel between Bupich and Rosich in the saloon and Rosich left the place with murder in his heart. He waited outside the saloon for Bupich and when the latter appeared the quarrel was started again. The two men had a rough and tumble fight in front of the saloon and when they disengaged Rosich fled down the street toward the river. Bupich was talking with a few friends when he felt a warm sensation on his right side and feeling that part of his body with his hand he was astonished to learn that he had been knifed.

"He was removed to the city hall where temporary medical aid was rendered him and later he was removed to the hospital. The wound in his right side was found to be two inches long and was pronounced quite serious. He is resting a bit more easily today and no serious results are feared."

“The deceased had been in California three years from Austria and has resided nearly all of that time here in Watsonville although he also lived in Los Angeles and Tehachapi. While here he was in the employ of his brothers in the fruit industry and was always regarded by all that knew him as an estimable young man, who made friends easily. All his friends will deeply mourn his untimely death. He is survived by three brothers in Austria, a brother, John Moncovich, in Reno, Nevada, and two brothers in this city, J. N. and Mitchell Moncovich.”

Dobrich was suing for $2000 personal damages, alleged to have been sustained at Spence switch several months ago when Gospodnetich, his employer, got angry and gave him a beating. The attorneys in the case were George W. Smith of Watsonville and P. E. Zabala of Salinas for the plaintiff and Thomas Renison of Salinas for the defendant.

“The Salinas Journal says:

“The jury of 20 citizen taxpayers who had been summoned to the Superior Court yesterday to try the case of John Dobrich, a laborer, against Kosmos Gospodnetich, an apple grower operating in the vicinity of Spence switch, were discharged. Their services were not required. A settlement was reached outside of court. Dobrich took $100 and quit.

“It appears that Dobrich had hired out to Gospodnetich early in the season to work at a certain stipend per month, during the time when work was light and when the apple harvest was on.

“Everything went on all right until the busy time came on and then Dobrich wanted to quit because he did not think he was getting all he was worth. Then there was trouble and Gospodnetich slammed him a few and drove him off the ranch. The result was a complaint for battery, a fine of $25 in the justice court and this suit for $2000 damages which was settled by payment of $100.”

“Attorney George W. Smith came from Watsonville this afternoon armed with an order from Judge B. V. Sargent and obtained the release of Marin Sriensa, a young man who was adjudged insane last Monday, and ordered committed to the Agnews State hospital. Sriensa is the man who made a sensational exit from a third-story window of the Salinas hotel Sunday morning by sliding down a blanket rope. Since Sriensa’s cousin, Andro Setola, demanded a jury trial for his relative, Sriensa has occupied a cell in the insane ward of the county jail. He has appeared to be rational at times. At others he betrays symptoms of mental aberration.

“Setola furnished a $500 bond to secure his cousin’s release and guarantee his appearance in court for trial, which must be held not later than Thursday next—if held at all. In this connection it is discretionary with Judge Sargent to order a trial or set aside the commitment and deliver Sriensa into the custody of his relatives to be cared for. It is thought possible he will take the latter course if satisfied it is best for the unfortunate man. Sriensa’s relatives are desirous of taking charge of him instead of having him sent to a State institution.”

EP; 21 Jan 1913; article: "HE WASN'T INSANE. If He Asked George for a Loan of Thirty Dollars."

"The Salinas Journal this morning publishes the following: ...

"Marin Sriensa, the Slavonian apple man of Watsonville whose exceedingly erratic conduct caused him to be arrested 10 days ago and ordered committed to a State hospital, but whose friends seemed to think that he was not getting a square deal and to suggest that there might be a motive for getting him put away, was returned to the custody of the sheriff on Sunday, by the friends who had taken him away.

"Sriensa's conduct at Watsonville after he got back there was fully as irresponsible as any of his acts had been here, and it culminated in his 'striking' his lawyer over there for a loan of $30. That was conclusive both to his friends and to his lawyer, that it would be unwise further to attempt, outside of the State hospital, to restore his mental faculties to their natural intellectual equilibrium.

"This matter was taken up in the Superior Court yesterday by George W. Smith of Watsonville, who withdrew his demand for a trial of the charge of insanity against him and asked to have the previous order of commitment to the Agnew State hospital enforced. This will be done."

EP; 21 Jan 1913; article: "M. N. Cosulich, manager of 'The Jadran,' the Slavonian paper of San Francisco, arrived in town last evening to attend the apple annual banquet, also to arrange for a local agency for his paper which will commence daily publication next month.

"Last year Mr. Cosulich spoke at the apple annual banquet but this year he was not heard. He couldn't be—he wasn't there. Why?"

"Cosulich, a fellow who never overlooks an opportunity to boost Watsonville both with pen and word, came here last evening especially to attend the apple annual banquet. It appears that Mark is not governed by union hours. He often rises when San Francisco morning newspaper workers generally retire. Having gotten up 'with the birds' yesterday morning he felt a little tired on his arrival here last evening and concluded to steal forty winks before going to the 'big feed.' Upon retiring at the Appleton he left orders to be called at 7:45.

"He was called but didn't get up.

"So for once, the enterprising one slept on the job and will have to get his story of the banquet second-hand."

"In the Superior Court Wednesday a suit for $2583.33 was filed against E. B. Lettunich by A. W. Condit Jr., the guardian of A. W. Condit, an incompetent person. The parties are Watsonville people.

"In the complaint it is set forth that on April 14th, 1911, a contract was entered into with the defendant for taking over the apple crop of the plaintiff for the years 1913, 1914, 1915 and 1916, the total sum to be $34,000.

"It is stated that $250 was paid when the arrangement was executed, that the next payment was to be $2583.33 on January 2d, 1913, and other payments to follow along in order during the period of the contract. The plaintiff set forth that the court on January 16, 1913, ratified the agreement and that when approached for the payment of $2583.33 due on January 2d, the defendant refused to make good, according to the allegations.”

EP; 24 Jan 1913; article: “Thirty representatives of the local apple packing and shipping interests will visit San Francisco next Monday morning in an effort to induce the commission men, wholesalers, retailers and others in that city to use or sell Watsonville apples in preference to the Oregon and Washington stock that is at present causing the Watsonville fruit to stand still. In case the commission men will not or cannot aid Watsonville in the manner desired the Pajaro Valley Packers’ and Shippers’ Association will establish several apple depots in San Francisco and will sell direct to the retailer and consumer. This action was decided upon yesterday afternoon at a session of the Shippers’ & Packers’ Association at the auditorium, at which time the committee of thirty was appointed by President James Sheehy. This committee will meet tomorrow...in the auditorium to discuss plans, ways and means and other matters regarding the campaign that is to be waged here after to get rid of the Watsonville apples.

“James Sheehy, president of the Association, opened the meeting by stating that at the present time there were 1,230,000 boxes of California apples in storage and as the market stood[,] the chances of selling the fruit were slender. Mr. Sheehy said further that it would do no good to sell the apples in England or other foreign markets for the prices there were low. The apples should be sold in San Francisco and in the United States in general and while some apples were being sold now in the metropolis at from $1.65 to $1.75 per box yet many of the Watsonville shippers would take $1 per box for their fruit...

“The following committee of thirty was then appointed by President Sheehy, the committee to get together tomorrow afternoon and take up the question of the selling of the apples:

“George W. Sill, H. L. Kalich, F. P. Marinovich, George F. Martin, F. L. W. MacDonald, T. J. Horgan, O. D. Stoesser, H. P. Kane, H. C. Peckham, C. H. Baker, B. Pista, J. B.
